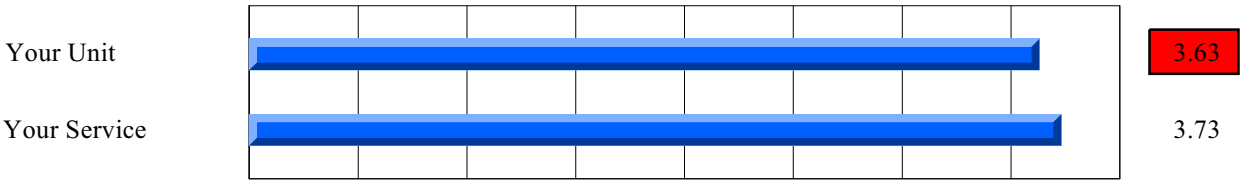
IV. SEXUAL ASSAULT PREVENTION AND RESPONSE



This section addresses members' perceptions of the Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) climate within your organization. Specifically, this section includes members' perceptions of the following topic areas:

1) Perceptions of Safety
2) Chain of Command Support
3) Publicity of SAPR Information
4) Unit Reporting Climate
5) Perceived Barriers to Reporting Sexual Assault
6) Unit Prevention Climate
7) Restricted Reporting Knowledge

Below you will find the overall unit summary information pertaining to the SAPR climate within your organization, compared to the DEOMI database for your Service. Results display above average, average, and below average using a green, blue, and red coding scheme, respectively. Above average indicates that the perceptions of your members are markedly more favorable than the perceptions commonly held across your Service. Average indicates that the perceptions of your members are similar to that of the perceptions commonly held across your Service. Below average indicates that the perceptions of your members are markedly less favorable than those held across your Service. Your organization's average is displayed along with its respective Service branch average.

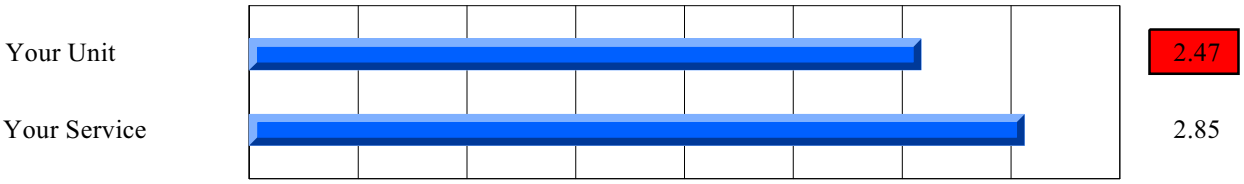
Perceptions of Safety

Range of "Near Service" Average = 3.65 - 3.84



Chain of Command Support

Perceptions of Safety

Perceptions of Safety refers to members' feelings of safety from being sexually assaulted where they currently live and perform their work/duties. Two questions measure Perceptions of Safety; each item is measured on a four-point scale, where respondents may select very unsafe, unsafe, safe, or very safe.

Table 3 displays Perceptions of Safety where individuals live, subdivided by residence and respondents' perceptions of safety where they work. The table displays the percentage of members who indicated they feel safe or very safe combined into "Safe" and displays the percentages of members who indicate they feel unsafe or very unsafe combined into "Unsafe." In cases where fewer than five people in a subgroup complete the survey, you will not receive any data for that subgroup in order to maintain respondent anonymity; that group's data will be marked with 0.00.

Table 3. Respondents' Perceptions of Safety

To what extent do you feel safe from being sexually assaulted where you currently live:	Safe		Unsafe		Total
	Number	Percent	Number	Percent	Number	Percent
On-base/post/station	36	100.00	0	0.00	36	100.00
Off-base/post/station	495	98.02	10	1.98	505	100.00
To what extent do you feel safe from being sexually assaulted where you perform your work/duties:	522	96.49	19	3.51	541	100.00

Analyzing Responses based on Demographic Subgroups:

Figure 7 displays the percentage of respondents who feel "Safe" where they live by demographic subgroups. In cases where fewer than five people in a subgroup complete the survey, you will not receive any data for that subgroup in order to maintain respondent anonymity; that group's data will be marked with 0.00.

Recommendations:

While Perceptions of Safety may not necessarily reflect the actual level of risk faced by an individual or group, the reasoning behind such perceptions may yield valuable information about a number of environmental risks that pertain not only to sexual assault, but also to domestic violence, substance abuse, disruptive conditions in living quarters, and other problems that require command attention. Use the results as a guide for developing a plan of action for leadership within your unit. Use the responses displayed by residence and by demographic subgroup to identify any differences between groups. Consider holding sensing sessions/focus groups with several members of these demographic groups to understand any differences in responses in your unit's results. Incorporate feedback from these sessions into your plan of action for leadership.

Here are additional recommendations and information to consider when developing your plan of action:

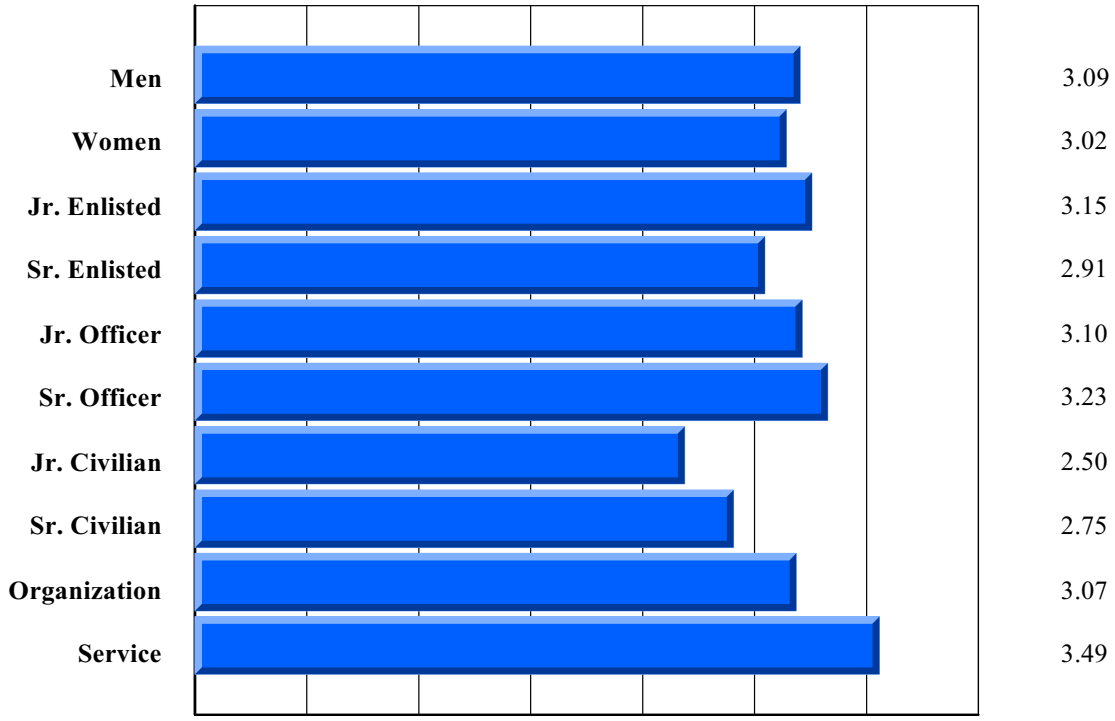
- Foster and encourage first-line supervisor involvement in the detection of potential threats and risks within your unit. About 80% of the sexual assaults within the Department of Defense occur between people that know each other. Consequently, standard physical security measures may not always address the factors that give rise to sexual assaults between co-workers, friends, and acquaintances. Well-trained and empowered first-line supervisors are likely the first to become aware of behaviors that contribute to increased risk for sexual assault and other disruptive behaviors within the unit.
- As appropriate, encourage your unit leaders to regularly visit military living quarters - especially during evenings and weekends.
- Consider contacting base law enforcement and criminal investigators to obtain local threat information, for both on- and off- base housing areas.
- Review and modify as appropriate "party" and alcohol use policies in on-base living quarters. Many interactions that lead to sexual assault begin in social settings and often involve alcohol. Such policies should promote responsible alcohol use, encourage all involved to be on the lookout for situations at risk for sexual assault, and outline how to safely address inappropriate behavior.
- Encourage professional workplace behavior and intervention against those who do not behave respectfully. Research has found that the presence of unchecked sexual harassment within a unit increases the likelihood of sexual assault within that unit. Unit leadership must not only enforce these standards but also set the example.

Chain of Command Support

Chain of Command Support refers to members' perceptions of the extent to which command behaviors are targeted towards preventing sexual assault and creating an environment where members would feel comfortable reporting a sexual assault. Seven questions measure Chain of Command Support; each item is measured on a four-point scale assessing extent, where respondents may select not at all, slight extent, moderate extent, or great extent.

Table 5 displays the percentage of individuals who perceive a favorable Chain of Command Support climate, meaning that they perceive the chain of command to display the positive command behaviors to a moderate extent or a great extent. Additionally, this table displays the percentage of individuals who perceive an unfavorable Chain of Command Support climate, meaning that they perceive the chain of command to display the positive behaviors to a slight extent or not at all.

Table 5. Respondents' Perceptions of Chain of Command Support



To what extent does your chain of command:	Favorable		Unfavorable		Total
	Number	Percent	Number	Percent	Number	Percent
Promote a unit climate based on "respect and trust"	364	67.41	176	32.59	540	100.00

Analyzing Responses based on Demographic Subgroups:

The Chain of Command Support index is calculated by first assigning numerical values to each anchor, where "1" equals not at all, "2" equals slight extent, "3" equals moderate extent, and "4" equals great extent, and then computing individuals' mean responses to the seven Chain of Command Support questions. Figure 9 displays your unit's combined average on these questions by demographic subgroups, with higher scores reflecting more favorable Chain of Command Support. In cases where fewer than five people in a subgroup complete the survey, you will not receive any data for that subgroup in order to maintain respondent anonymity; that group's data will be marked with 0.00.

Recommendations:

The Chain Of Command Support index provides insight into how unit members perceive leadership's behaviors related to preventing sexual assault and creating an environment where victims would feel comfortable reporting sexual assault. Use the results as a guide for developing a plan of action for leadership within your unit. Use the responses displayed by demographic subgroup to identify any differences between groups. Consider holding sensing sessions/focus groups with several members of these demographic groups to understand any differences in responses in your unit's results. Incorporate feedback from these sessions into your plan of action for leadership.

Here are additional recommendations and information to consider when developing your plan of action:

- Motivate and empower your command team to take action on those items that get a less favorable rating. For example, if the chain of command is not seen as actively discouraging sexist comments and behaviors, clearly set your expectations with your unit leaders and consider inviting an installation resource in to help improve their skill set. Some sexist comments and behaviors may be so common practice that they escape scrutiny by those using them. Capturing a wide variety of perspectives from people within and outside your leadership chain can help you identify problem areas. Unchecked sexist comments and behaviors communicate to offenders that the unit is a place that tolerates treating someone unfairly because of their gender. This kind of climate may act as a "green light" for those who perpetrate sexual assault.
- Emphasize the importance of reporting sexual assault and getting needed assistance.
- Refrain from using the phrase "zero tolerance" on an individual unit-level. While no one should ever tolerate, condone or accept sexual assault, use of this term may have the unintended effect of keeping victims from reporting; no service member wants to be the person that shatters the commander's expectation that "zero" sexual assaults will occur in the unit. Rather, emphasize that sexual assault has no place in your unit - but if it does occur, encourage those impacted to choose one of the reporting options and get care.
- Adjust supervision policies to allow unit members to engage care and other resources without intrusive questioning. An environment that is conducive to reporting also allows victims a reasonable amount of flexibility to schedule and attend appointments for care and assistance. While personnel accountability is important, victim feedback indicates that supervisors often ask such intrusive questions about the nature of care appointments that victims sometimes forego reporting the crime and getting care so as to not attract negative attention.
- Seek out training opportunities that encourage small group discussion and active participation. "One size fits all" training rarely imparts lasting changes in knowledge, skills, and behavior. Members between the ages of 18 to 25 may be most at risk for sexual assault, but many at this age see themselves as impervious to this and other harms. Small group discussions with a mentor can help overcome such resistance and impart lasting change. Contact your servicing Sexual Assault Response Coordinator for meaningful and impactful training formats and opportunities.

Training materials and discussion guides that can be used in smaller groups are available at www.sapr.mil. Also, follow links on sapr.mil to your Service webpage for additional materials.

Consider attending DEOMI's Leadership Team Awareness Seminar (LTAS). Target audience for LTAS is senior officers (commanders and key staff/department heads O-3/O-6) and senior enlisted advisors (E-7/E-9) as well as civilians including legal officers, chaplains, and inspector general personnel in leadership positions. Duration of the course is 5 Days (40 hours). For more information contact: Student Management Division for enrollment into LTAS, Commercial (321)494-5653/7543 (DSN 854).

Publicity of SAPR Information

Publicity of SAPR Information refers to the extent to which members' perceive that SAPR-related information and resources is publicly displayed and openly communicated. There are three questions measuring Publicity of SAPR Information; each item is measured on a four-point scale measuring extent, where respondents may select not at all, slight extent, moderate extent, or great extent.

The following table displays the percentage of individuals who perceive there to be a favorable climate of Publicity of SAPR Information, meaning that they perceive the display of SAPR information and resources is to a moderate extent or a great extent. This table also displays the percentage of individuals who perceive there is an unfavorable climate of Publicity of SAPR Information, meaning that they perceive the display of SAPR information and resources is to a slight extent or not at all.

Table 6. Respondents' Perceptions of Publicity of SAPR Information

To what extent does your chain of command:	Favorable		Unfavorable		Total
	Number	Percent	Number	Percent	Number	Percent
Publicize the outcomes of sexual assault cases	156	28.89	384	71.11	540	100.00
Publicize sexual assault reporting resources (e.g., Sexual Assault Response Coordinator contact information; Victim Advocate contact information; awareness posters; sexual assault hotline phone number)	385	71.30	155	28.70	540	100.00
Publicize the Restricted (confidential) Reporting option for sexual assault	310	57.41	230	42.59	540	100.00

Analyzing Responses based on Demographic Subgroups:

Figure 10 provides results of the Publicity of SAPR Information index by demographic subgroups. The Publicity of SAPR Information index is calculated by first assigning numerical values to each anchor, where "1" equals not at all, "2" equals slight extent, "3" equals moderate extent, and "4" equals great extent, and then computing individuals' mean responses to the three publicity questions. The figure below displays your unit's combined average on these questions by demographic subgroups, with higher scores reflecting more favorable perceptions of Publicity of SAPR Information. In cases where fewer than five people in a subgroup complete the survey, you will not receive any data for that subgroup in order to maintain respondent anonymity; that group's data will be marked with 0.00..

Recommendations:

The Publicity of SAPR Information index can provide insight about the availability of SAPR-related information and resources. Publically discussing issues surrounding sexual assault and displaying SAPR resources is an important step in decreasing the stigma associated with this crime. Communicating openly with members of your organization about sexual assault will also help to raise awareness of the issue. Use the results as a guide for developing a plan of action for leadership within your unit to increase the availability of these resources and information. Use the responses displayed by demographic subgroup to identify any differences between groups. Consider holding sensing sessions/focus groups with several members of these demographic groups to understand any differences in responses in your unit's results. Incorporate feedback from these sessions into your plan of action for leadership.

Here are additional recommendations and information to consider when developing your plan of action:

- Publicize SAPR information to prevent sexual assaults in your unit:
  - Empower your command team to publically display SAPR information by guiding them to resources that they can utilize (see Additional Resources section below).
  - Integrate SAPR messaging into existing communication plans and publications (e.g., town halls, all hands, commander's call, newsletter, etc.).
  - Feature sexual assault related resources in unit common areas. Publicize the DoD sexual assault hotline (www.safehelpline.org) as an anonymous, free, and available worldwide 24 hours a day resource.
  - Disseminate policy letters against sexism, sexual harassment, and sexual assault.
- Publicize SAPR information in response to a sexual assault allegation made in your unit:
  - Take the opportunity to discuss the SAPR program, the support resources available to both victims and accused members, and prevention topics.
  - Actively discourage rumors and speculation about the allegation.
  - Consider appropriate releases of information to keep unit members informed and derail rumors. The release must consider the privacy of the victim, the accused, and the sensitivity of the matters involved. Work with your local criminal investigators and staff judge advocate to determine what can be said, when it is released, and how to communicate such information.
  - To the extent legally permissible, discuss the outcomes and disciplinary actions, if any, of sexual assault allegations.

Unit Reporting Climate

Unit Reporting Climate measures the extent to which members perceive that the chain of command would take appropriate actions to address an Unrestricted Report of sexual assault and that there would be minimal social and professional retaliation if a sexual assault was reported. Ten questions measure Unit Reporting Climate, where respondents may select not at all likely, slightly likely, moderately likely, or very likely.

Table 7 below displays the percentage of individuals who perceive a favorable Unit Reporting Climate, meaning that they perceive individuals within the unit (chain of command or members) are moderately likely or very likely to engage in the positive Unit Reporting Climate behavior. The table also displays the percentage of individuals who perceive an unfavorable Unit Reporting Climate, meaning that they believe the individuals within the unit are slightly likely or not at all likely to engage in the positive reporting climate behavior. Within this scale, there are three questions that ask about the extent of negative behavior and are therefore reverse scored to remain consistent with a higher score being more favorable (indicated with an asterisk).

Table 7. Respondents' Perceptions of Unit Reporting Climate

If someone were to report a sexual assault to your current chain of command, how likely is it that:	Favorable		Unfavorable		Total

Analyzing Responses based on Demographic Subgroups:

Figure 11 provides the results of the Unit Reporting Climate index by demographic subgroups, with higher scores indicating more favorable responses. The Unit Reporting Climate index is calculated by first assigning numerical values to each anchor, where "1" equals not at all likely, "2" equals slightly likely, "3" equals moderately likely, and "4" equals very likely, and then computing individuals' mean responses to the 10 Unit Reporting Climate questions. The figure below displays your unit's combined average on these questions by demographic subgroups, with higher scores reflecting a more favorable Unit Reporting Climate. In cases where fewer than five people in a subgroup complete the survey, you will not receive any data for that subgroup in order to maintain respondent anonymity; that group's data will be marked with 0.00.

Recommendations:

The Unit Reporting Climate index can provide insight into how members perceive a report of sexual assault would be handled by the chain of command and unit members. These perceptions are important as they will likely influence members' willingness to report a sexual assault. Use the favorable and unfavorable ratings on the survey items as a guide for developing a plan of action for leadership within your unit to improve Unit Reporting Climate perceptions. Use the responses displayed by demographic subgroup to identify any differences between groups. Consider holding sensing sessions/focus groups with several members of these demographic groups to understand any differences in responses in your unit's results. Incorporate feedback from these sessions into your plan of action for leadership.

Here are additional recommendations and information to consider when developing your plan of action:

- Optimize Unit Reporting Climate to prevent sexual assault in your unit:
  - Encourage your command team to take action on those items that receive a less favorable rating. For instance, if unit members perceive that the chain of command does not take sexual assault reports seriously, follow up with unit leaders to ensure that this responsibility is not taken lightly. Service members perceive that sexual assault reports are not taken seriously when allegations are ignored, leadership at any level encourages victims to drop their report, and victims are scrutinized and blamed for getting victimized.
  - Ensure DoD and Service requirements are met with regard to case progress and updates to victims. DoD Instruction 6495.02 requires the establishment of a multi-disciplinary case management group (CMG), co-chaired by the Deputy Installation Commander and the SARC. While each Service may refer to this group by a different name (i.e., Sexual Assault Review Board, etc.), the CMG should meet monthly to review individual cases, improve reporting, facilitate monthly victim updates, and to discuss process improvements to ensure system accountability and victim access to quality services. As a commander, you must attend the monthly CMG until final disposition has been taken in the case. You are also responsible for providing monthly updates to victims of sexual assault on their case.
- Maintain a favorable Unit Reporting Climate in response to a sexual assault allegation made in your unit:
  - All sexual assault allegations that come to the chain of command's attention must be referred to a military criminal investigative organization (CID, NCIS or AFOSI). Commanders may not conduct their own internal or preliminary investigation (e.g., commander's inquiry, "15-6 investigations", etc.). Once the investigation is complete, you or a more senior commander must review the criminal investigation, evaluate the evidence with the assistance of a judge advocate, and determine any appropriate disciplinary action to be taken. If the victim and the accused are both within your unit, it is important that you should remain objective (fair and impartial) and take appropriate action based on the evidence.
  - Discourage members from participating in "barracks gossip" or grapevine speculation about the case or investigation. Remind everyone to wait until all the facts are known and final disposition of the allegation has occurred before reaching conclusions. While victims must see their allegations are taken seriously, the alleged offender is presumed innocent until proven guilty. Remind members that discussion of a possible sexual assault incident might compromise an ongoing investigation.
  - Emphasize the importance of balance in the justice system. "Choosing sides" is never fair to the parties involved, and can rip a unit apart. Supporting the victim and the accused through the military justice process does not require anyone to take a side. Rather, as a commander, you have a duty to ensure both parties (if both are under your command) are connected with appropriate services and support.

- Advise those who may have knowledge of the events leading up to or surrounding the incident to fully cooperate with any investigation involved.
- Consider some form of targeted unit refresher training; or have an outside expert address the unit regarding preventive measures, as well as some of the emotional or psychological feelings that may manifest themselves, affect the unit, and require the unit's response during the course of the investigation. It is important that unit members not see "refresher training" as a group punishment because someone reported a sexual assault. Rather, small group discussions led by knowledgeable leaders are often the most helpful.
- Continuously monitor the unit's overall climate to ensure neither the victim and/or the alleged offender is being ostracized. Prevent organizational splintering by communicating your expectations with first-line supervisors; encourage supervisors to stop rumors, monitor the formation of cliques, and communicate observed ostracism upwards. Keep in mind that sexual assault is not solely an individual-level issue; it requires a sustained systemic response because it is influenced by a wide-range of individual-, organizational-, and societal-level variables.
- Make victims aware of the option to request an expedited temporary or permanent transfer from their assigned command or base, or to a different location within their assigned command or base. Also keep in mind that alleged offenders may alternatively be moved.

Perceived Barriers to Reporting Sexual Assault

Perceived Barriers to Reporting Sexual Assault refers to the frequency of barriers to reporting sexual assault individuals perceive within their unit/organization. Members are asked to select all that may apply from eight potential barriers, along with two additional options: "Another reason other than what is provided above" and "There are no barriers that would prevent victims from reporting a sexual assault."

The table below displays the percentage of members who perceive each barrier to reporting sexual assault.

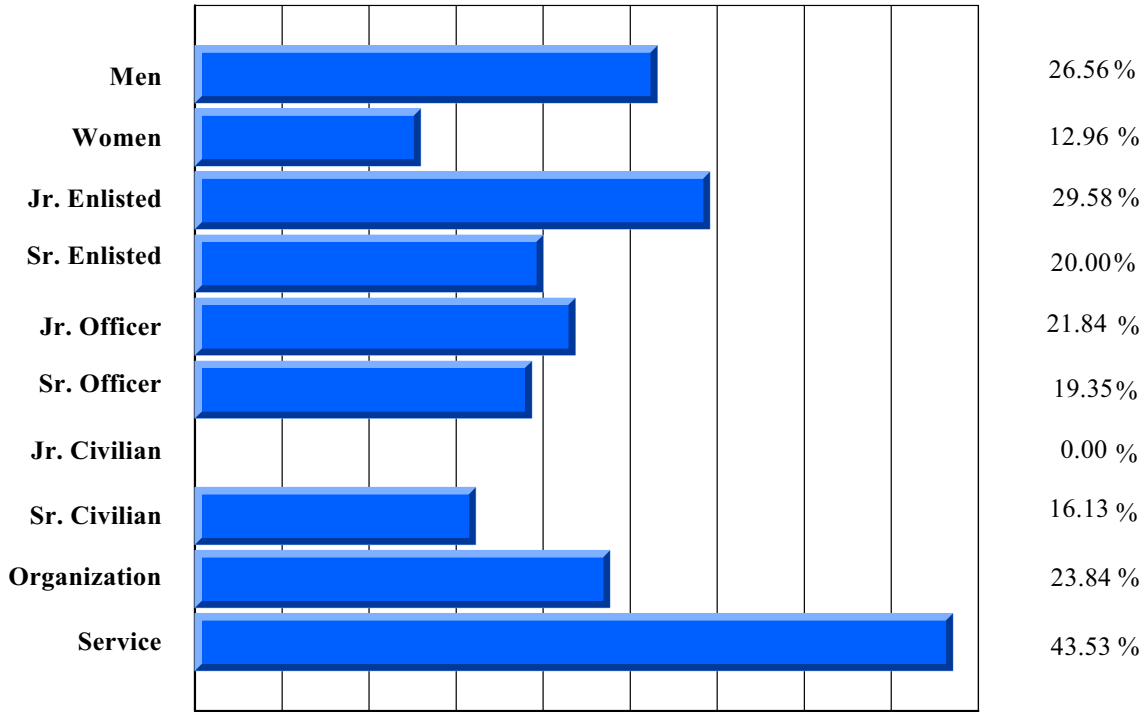

Table 8. Respondents' Perceived Barriers to Reporting Sexual Assault

In your current unit/organization, which of the following would be the most likely reasons why a victim of sexual assault would not report the incident?	Selected		Not Selected		Total
	Number	Percent	Number	Percent	Number	Percent
Negative impact to career or progress.	179	33.09	362	66.91	541	100.00

Analyzing Responses based on Demographic Subgroups:

The figures on the following pages provide results of the Perceived Barriers to Reporting Sexual Assault questions by demographic subgroups. The figures display the percentage of members that perceive zero barriers to reporting sexual assault (Figure 12), one to two barriers to reporting sexual assault (Figure 13), and three or more barriers to reporting sexual assault (Figure 14) by demographic subgroups. Taken together, these three figures represent the total group members who responded to the survey. In cases where fewer than five people in a subgroup complete the survey, you will not receive any data for that subgroup in order to maintain respondent anonymity; that group's data will be marked with 0.00.

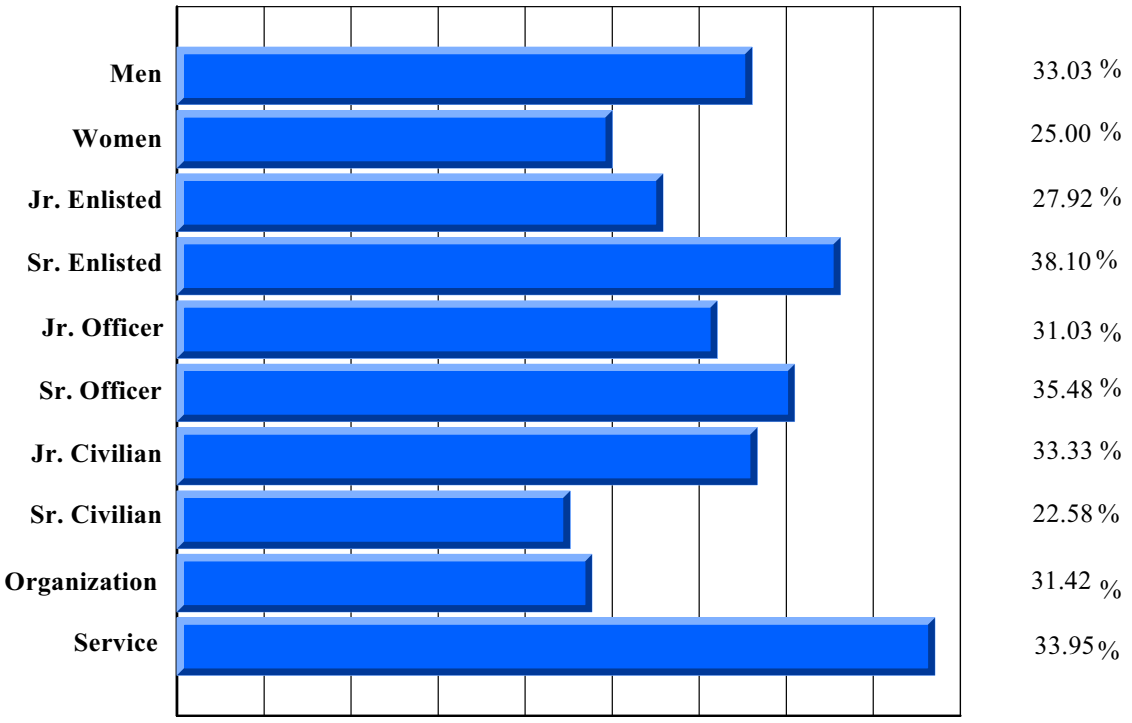

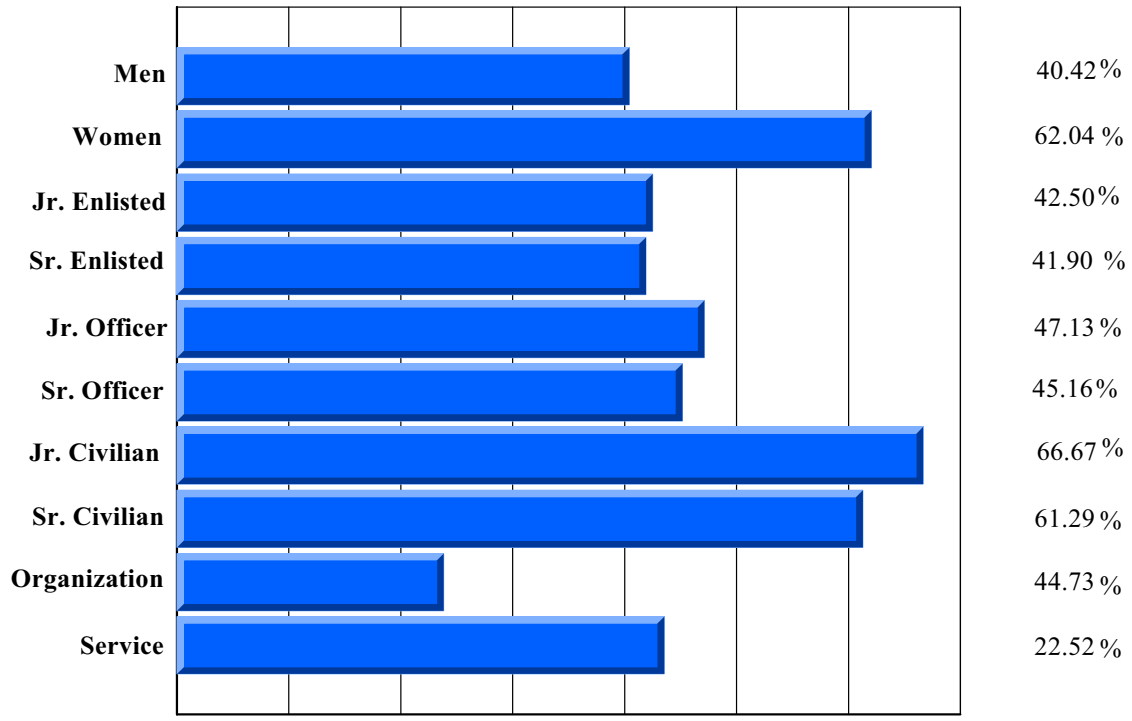

Figure 14. Percentage of Respondents who Perceived Three or More Barriers to Reporting Sexual Assault by Demographic Subgroups

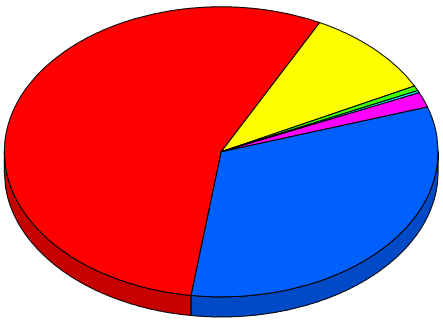
Recommendations:

Due to the nature of sexual assault crimes, victims often do not feel comfortable reporting or talking about their experience. There are steps leadership can take to reduce or eliminate these barriers which would increase the likelihood of a sexual assault being reported. The Perceived Barriers to Reporting Sexual Assault question can provide insight into why members within your organization may not feel comfortable reporting a sexual assault. Use these results as a guide to help develop a plan of action to eliminate perceived barriers within your organization. Compare the percentage of perceived barriers within your organization to the results of your respective service. Use the responses displayed by demographic subgroup to identify any differences between groups. Consider holding sensing sessions/focus groups with several members of these demographic groups to understand any differences in responses in your unit's results. Incorporate feedback from these sessions to help develop a plan of action for leadership to eliminate perceived barriers to reporting sexual assault. While you may never be able to eliminate all barriers to reporting, your work to address these concerns sends a powerful, positive message to victims.

Here are additional recommendations and information to consider when developing your plan of action:



- Motivate and empower your command team to take action on barriers that are frequently perceived. Have a frank discussion with members regarding these barriers and be open to members' suggestions for improvement. Take steps to clarify misperceptions and reduce concerns by demonstrating effort towards eliminating that barrier. For example, if members perceive "negative impact to career or progress" to be a barrier to reporting sexual assault within your unit, ask members why this perception exists. Inquire further about this perception and communicate procedures in place to safeguard against negative impact on career. Follow through by addressing this with your CMG to ensure members' careers and progression are not, in fact, affected by reporting a sexual assault.
- As a commander, you must carefully communicate two messages. First, sexual assault is a crime and has no place in your unit. Second, if sexual assault does occur, encourage victims to pick one of the two reporting options and seek assistance. Keep in mind that these messages must be balanced.
- Avoid statements like "zero tolerance" on an individual unit level. While this sounds effective, it actually sends a message to victims that you do not want them to come forward to report: No member wants to be the one to tell their commander that the number of known sexual assaults in the unit is no longer "zero."
- Ensure victims feel comfortable coming forward to report sexual assaults by encouraging them to do so to the Sexual Assault Response Coordinator (SARC). Stress to your members that you do not have access to identifying information about victims making Restricted Reports; this will build members' trust in your unit's SARC and Victim Advocate (VA).
- As a commander, you can strengthen member's trust in the reporting process by recommending the most qualified and trained professional to serve in critical advocacy positions.

Unit Prevention Climate (Bystander Intervention)

Unit Prevention Climate, also known as Bystander Intervention Climate, refers to individuals' intentions to act if they were to observe a situation that may lead to a sexual assault. Unit Prevention Climate is measured with two questions; one item is situation based and asks respondents to indicate which action they would take if in a given situation. One item presents respondents with a scenario and asks at which point they would most likely intervene if they witnessed the escalating situation. A summary of the responses collected within your organization are displayed in Figure 15 through Figure 17.

Suppose you see someone secretly putting something in another person's drink. You're unsure what it was. Which of the following are you most likely to do in this kind of situation?

	Frequency	Percent
	299	55.27
	53	9.80
	3	0.55
	2	0.37
	9	1.66

Imagine you go on temporary duty for some training. The first night you go to a restaurant/bar with a large group of colleagues, whom you just met. At what point would you intervene in the following escalating situation?

	Frequency	Percent
A senior leader buys a drink for a person in the group and tells him/her a drink cannot be refused, as doing so would go against tradition.	204	37.71
The senior leader buys a second and third drink for the same person despite his/her repeated objections.	194	35.86
The person appears intoxicated and disoriented, and continues to be the senior leader's main focus of attention.	62	11.46
The senior leader repeatedly hugs the person, rubs his/her shoulders, and offers to walk him/her back to quarters.	28	5.18
You see the senior leader quietly escorting the intoxicated person out of the bar.	22	4.07
As they leave, the person resists the senior leader and says, "No."	21	3.88
In this scenario, I would not intervene at any point.	10	1.85

Analyzing Responses based on Demographic Subgroups:

The Unit Prevention Climate index is the numeric composite of the two bystander intervention climate questions. Figure 17 provides the results of the Unit Prevention Climate index by demographic subgroups, with higher scores indicating more favorable responses. In cases where fewer than five people in a subgroup complete the survey, you will not receive any data for that subgroup in order to maintain respondent anonymity; that group's data will be marked with 0.00.

Prevalence of Respondents Observing High Risk Situations and Responses

Respondents were asked if they have observed a situation they believed could have led to a sexual assault within the past 12 months. Respondents' responses to this observation question are displayed in Figure 18.

In the past 12 months, I observed a situation that I believe was, or could have led to, a sexual assault.

	Frequency	Percent
Yes	23	4.25
No	518	95.75
Total	541	100.00

If respondents answered "yes" to the observation of a high risk situation question, they were prompted to identify the response that most closely resembled their actions. Figure 19 displays the responses of those who completed the question across your organization.

If yes, in response to this situation, select the response that most closely resembles your actions:

	Frequency	Percent
I stepped in and separated the people involved in the situation.	3	13.04
I asked the person who appeared to be at risk if they needed help.	4	17.39
I confronted the person who appeared to be causing the situation.	9	39.13
I created a distraction to cause one or more of the people to disengage from the situation.	2	8.70
I asked others to step in as a group and diffuse the situation.	0	0.00
I told someone in a position of authority about the situation.	3	13.04
I considered intervening in the situation, but I could not safely take any action.	1	4.35
I decided to not take action.	1	4.35
Total	23	100.00

Recommendations:

The Unit Prevention Climate index can provide insight into members' intentions to act if they observe a situation that may lead to a sexual assault. Use these results as a guide to help develop a plan of action to increase bystander intervention within your organization. Look at the frequency of responses to the hypothetical scenario questions and the prevalence of respondents observing a high risk situation question to gain an understanding of how respondents within your organization plan to intervene as well as how they have intervened in the past. Set the expectation that your people must look out for each other, both on and off the battlefield. Encourage safely stepping in to de-escalate the situation when someone looks to be at risk for sexual assault or about to perpetrate a crime. Employ training that relies on scenarios to demonstrate application of bystander prevention concepts and drive small group discussions.

[redacted]

Use Unit Prevention Climate index displayed by demographic subgroups to identify any differences between groups. Consider holding sensing sessions/focus groups with several members of these demographic subgroups to understand any differences in responses in your unit's results. Incorporate feedback from these sessions to help develop a plan of action for leadership to increase bystander intervention within your organization.

Here are additional recommendations and information to consider when developing your plan of action:

- Promote bystander intervention by "practicing what you preach." Be an active bystander by calling out sexist remarks and sexually harassing behaviors if they are observed. When appropriate, demonstrate acceptable alternative behaviors as part of the corrective process. This will help provide the motivation and confidence necessary for members within your organization to act.
- It takes some practice and courage to intervene and discourage or stop unacceptable behavior. Teach bystander intervention strategies to motivate and empower your people to watch for questionable behavior or risky choices, take safe action to de-escalate situations, and help ensure personal safety. One approach involves emphasizing the "ABCs" of Bystander Intervention:
    - Assess for safety. Ensure that all parties are safe, and whether the situation requires calling authorities. When deciding to intervene, your personal safety should be the #1 priority. When in doubt, call for help.
    - Be with others. If it is safe to intervene, you are likely to have a greater influence on the parties involved when you work together with someone or several people. Your safety is increased when you stay with a group of friends that you know well.
    - Care for the person. Ask if the target of the unwanted sexual advance, attention, or behavior is okay. Does he or she need medical care? Does he or she want to talk to a Victim Advocate about reporting the matter? Ask if someone they trust can help them get home safely.
- Encourage your members to be receptive to messages from others indicating their behavior is not acceptable.
- Recognizing the rewarding positive personnel behavior can also be an effective strategy to increase and reinforce appropriate bystander behavior.

Restricted Reporting Knowledge

Knowledge of the Restricted Reporting option is assessed with one question. The item reads, "All of the following people can receive an Unrestricted Report of sexual assault. However, a Restricted (confidential) Report can only be made to certain people. Please identify which of the following types of people can and cannot take a Restricted Report." The Sexual Assault Response Coordinator, Victim Advocate, and Military Service Healthcare Personnel can take a Restricted Report. "Anyone in my chain of command" and "Criminal investigator and Military Police Officer" are incorrect answers. These persons cannot take a Restricted Report. Table 9 displays the percentage of members within your organization who correctly and incorrectly identified who can and cannot take a Restricted Report.

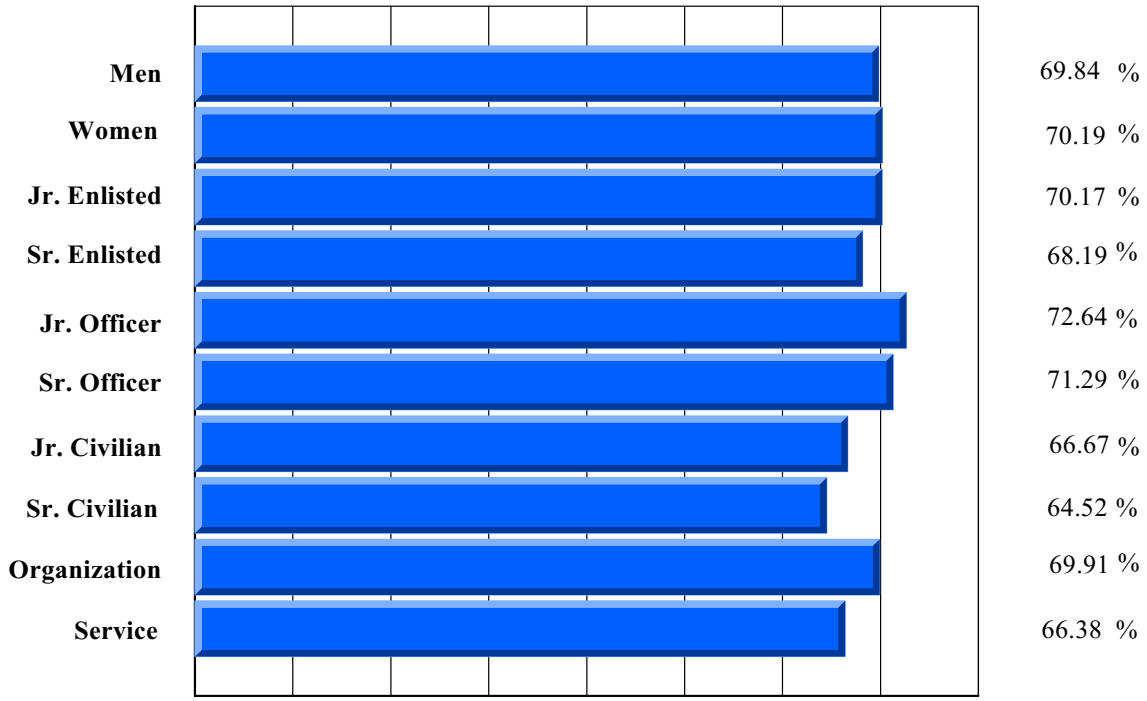

Table 9. Respondents' Restricted Reporting Knowledge

Identify which of following types of people can and cannot take a Restricted Report:	Correct		Incorrect		Total
	Number	Percent	Number	Percent	Number	Percent
Sexual Assault Response Coordinator	484	89.63	56	10.37	540	100.00
Victim Advocate	398	73.70	142	26.30	540	100.00
Military Service Healthcare Personnel	415	76.85	125	23.15	540	100.00
Anyone in my chain of command	382	70.74	158	29.26	540	100.00
Criminal investigator and Military Police Officer	212	39.26	328	60.74	540	100.00

Analyzing Responses based on Demographic Subgroups:

Figure 20 displays the average percentage of members who responded correctly, displayed by demographic subgroup, on the Restricted Reporting Knowledge question. The question is scored by averaging the percentage correct across the five response options of the types of people who can and cannot take a Restricted Report. In cases where fewer than five people in a subgroup complete the survey, you will not receive any data for that subgroup in order to maintain respondent anonymity; that group's data will be marked with 0.00.

Recommendations:

The Department of Defense is committed to ensuring victims of sexual assault are protected; treated with dignity and respect; and provided support, advocacy, and care. The DoD also strongly supports applicable law enforcement and criminal justice procedures that enable persons to be held accountable for sexual assault offenses and criminal dispositions, as appropriate. To achieve these dual objectives, the Department's preference is for complete Unrestricted Reporting of sexual assaults to allow for the provision of victims' services and to pursue accountability. However, Unrestricted Reporting may represent a barrier for victims to access services, when the victim desires no command or law enforcement involvement. Consequently, the DoD recognizes a fundamental need to provide a confidential disclosure vehicle via the Restricted Reporting option.

A Restricted Report allows victims to experience the services and support available to them and receive information about the investigative and military justice process in a means that preserves their confidentiality. Every year, a percentage of victims convert from a Restricted Report to an Unrestricted Report to participate in the justice process. As a result, the Department makes available the Restricted Reporting as a means for victims to become knowledgeable about their legal options. As of January 2014, all Services have specially-trained attorneys to represent victims of sexual assault, regardless of which reporting option is selected. This ability to confer confidentially with an attorney about their case may also encourage more victims to participate in the military justice system.

The Restricted Reporting Knowledge score can provide insight into members' knowledge of the reporting options of sexual assault. Use the correct and incorrect responses as a guide for developing a plan of action to increase awareness and knowledge of the reporting options. Use the responses displayed by demographic subgroup to identify any differences between groups. Use this information to enhance the education and training of your personnel.

Here are additional recommendations and information to consider when developing your plan of action:

- Periodically take the opportunity to remind everyone of how to make an Unrestricted or Restricted Report. Be sure to include how to contact the Sexual Assault Response Coordinator (SARC) and Victim Advocate (VA) that service your unit or the installation.
- Emphasize that command has a legal responsibility to follow up on all allegations of sexual assault. Individuals desiring a Restricted Report should contact a SARC, VA, or medical/mental health care provider.
- Publicize that victims of sexual assault may now have an attorney represent them during the military justice process. These attorneys are assigned at the victim's request, regardless of whether a victim makes either a Restricted or Unrestricted Report. SARCs connect victims with these specialized attorneys.
- Training is an important element in sexual assault prevention and response. Provide annual training and encourage members to take this training seriously. A short slide-based training once a year is NOT sufficient to make a lasting impression on your personnel - mostly because none of them expect to become a victim of sexual assault. Contact your servicing SARC for more meaningful and impactful training formats and opportunities.
- Incorporate specific sexual assault prevention and response monitoring, measures and education into normal command training, readiness, and safety forums (e.g., quarterly training guidance, unit status reports, and safety briefings).
- Discuss your unit's DEOCS results with your installation's SARC and request that he/she conduct additional training or speak at commanders' calls.

V. CLIMATE FACTOR SUBGROUP COMPARISONS

Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Climate Overview

The following chart provides a demographic summary of the SAPR Climate variables. Results display above average, average, and below average using a green, blue, and red coding scheme, respectively. Above average indicates that the perceptions of your members are markedly more favorable than the perceptions commonly held across your Service. Average indicates that the perceptions of your members are similar to that of the perceptions commonly held across your Service. Below average indicates that the perceptions of your members are markedly less favorable than those held across your Service. In cases where fewer than five people in a subgroup complete the survey, you will not receive any data for that subgroup; this helps maintain respondent anonymity.

VI. OVERALL UNIT SUMMARY

VIII. RECOMMENDATIONS

The following section provides interpretation and recommendations for the DEOCS report. Based on the data obtained, the DEOCS results for your organization may vary between organizational strengths and concerns. It is important to not only review section VII, DEOCS Summary, but to contrast that information with section V, Climate Factor Subgroup Comparison. Appendix on Written Comments, may also help to validate some areas of concerns within sections VII and V, please ensure you review that area to determine if there are comments that speak directly to any areas of concern.

This section also seeks to provide guidance for additional steps in the climate assessment effort, and prescribe actions to help address organizational concerns.

Share positive results with the organization's members. Compare subgroups to determine whether diminished perceptions of climate factors are prevalent among specific groups, and the sources of those perceptions.

Seek to identify-and reinforce-those practices and programs currently in place.

Reinforce behaviors that create a climate of inclusion, supporting and preserving the dignity and worth of all members.

Continue to promote and maintain a healthy human relations climate. This can be done by ensuring all members in the unit understand their roles and responsibilities.

Share positive results to enhance members' commitment to the organization and its mission.

Below Average

It is important to note that some or all of the three lowest averages may actually be comparable to your respective Service averages, and not necessarily represent a negative finding. If any of these averages appear appreciably lower than your Service average, they should be treated as an organizational concern. In cases where low averages, compare the demographic subgroups to determine whether diminished perceptions are more obvious among specific groups.

After identifying the specific climate factors with low averages and those demographic subgroups that harbor negative perceptions regarding them, use these findings to plan follow-on assessment efforts, including focus groups, interviews, and written record reviews. Conducting focus groups and interviews can help determine the source and extent of specific perceptions.

Develop an action plan and socialize the plan with members. Set a timeline for the action items designed to address each specific validated concern, and provide timely feedback on progress accomplishing them. This will demonstrate your willingness to listen to your subordinates, and take action to improve conditions when possible.

We trust these recommendations for interpretation will prove useful. DEOMI believes the DEOCS can help commanders improve the readiness within their commands. To make best use of this tool, DEOMI provides tools and products designed to address the mission impacting issues that were identified during the climate assessment process.

Appendix B. Investigation of Sexual Assault

As was noted in the Analysis of Sexual Assault in the AKNG above, investigation and differences in terminology have impeded the prosecution of sexual assault matters.

A. Investigation:

The active military services have, as a component of their force, military criminal investigative organizations (MCIOs) such as the Army Criminal Investigative Division and the Air Force Office of Special Investigations that are required by DoD policy to investigate all allegations of sexual assault involving federal forces.[1] These MCIOs, however, lack jurisdiction to investigate crimes that involve the National Guard when those crimes occur by members serving in a non-federal status, e.g., state active duty (SAD) or Title 32 status.

As a result of the above jurisdictional issues, sexual assault allegations against members of the National Guard not serving in a federal status are referred to local law enforcement. By DoD policy military commanders are not permitted to administratively investigate the facts and circumstances surrounding a sexual assault until all law enforcement investigative work has concluded or coordination for inquiry has been made.[2]

In Alaska this meant that most of the unrestricted reports were referred to Alaska state law enforcement entities.[3] More recently, the National Guard Bureau's Office of Complex Investigations has investigated allegations of sexual assault.

[1] A February 2014 update to DoD Instruction 6495.02 (dated 28 March 2013) states: "A unit commander who receives an Unrestricted Report of an incident of sexual assault shall immediately refer the matter to the appropriate military criminal investigation organization (MCIO).

[2] DoD 6495.02 states that "a unit commander shall not conduct internal command directed investigations on sexual assault or delay immediately contacting the MCIOs while attempting to assess the credibility of the report." Prior to this change, commanders were not expressly prohibited from directing a commander's inquiry into allegations of a sexual assault. Pursuant to CNGBN 0400.01 Command Investigative options are limited to military criminal investigative organizations, local law enforcement, or the NGB Office of Complex Investigations.

[3] Of the 37 reported cases of sexual assault 19 were unrestricted cases of which 2 fell under the jurisdiction of MCIOs due to the status of the offender at the time of the assault.

B. Sexual Assault Defined:

Not all military allegations of sexual assault arise to the level of a sexual assault under state law. DoD Directive 6495.01, Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) Program, defines "sexual assault" as: "Intentional sexual contact characterized by use of force, threats, intimidation, or abuse of authority or when the victim does not or cannot consent. Sexual contact is defined to include "Any touching, or causing another person to touch, either directly or through the clothing, any body part of any person, if done with intent to arouse or gratify the sexual desire of any person."[4]

The Alaska Revised Statutes defines sexual assault as including both sexual penetration and sexual contact where the victim did not consent or was incapacitated, mentally incapable, or unaware. Sexual contact includes "knowingly touching, directly or through clothing, the victim's genitals, anus, or female breast; or knowingly causing the victim to touch, directly or through clothing, the defendant's or victim's genitals, anus, or female breast."[5]

The distinction between any part of the body and specific parts of the body, as well as the absence of assault based on abuse of authority, are two specific areas where the DoD definition and Alaska's state law differ.

Appendix C: Justice in the Alaska National Guard

Justice in the non-federalized National Guard is at times challenging. The Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ) applies to all service members in a federal military status under Title 10 of the United States Code. However, a state's National Guard members typically perform their daily military duties in a non-federalized status under Title 32 (T-32) [1] of the United States Code, and consequently they are not usually subject to the federal UCMJ.

The TAG, like any commander, exercises discretionary command authority over military personnel within his command. When issues of good order and discipline come before TAG, he has a wide range of actions available based on what he decides is the appropriate course of action. These discretionary actions range from doing nothing; to judicial disciplinary actions pursuant to the state code of military justice; or to adverse administrative actions, including counseling, reprimands, relief from command/position, reassignment and separation. The chosen action is within the discretion of each TAG based upon his exercise of command authority which flows through all levels of state command to the TAG and to the Governor. Federal authorities, to include the National Guard Bureau, do not have command authority over the members of the ARNG and ANG when in a non-federalized status.

Many states have adopted state codes of military justice to address misconduct committed by military personnel serving within the state in a non-federalized status. Alaska has such a code, the Alaska Code of Military Justice (ACMJ) however, it lacks "teeth." More specifically, the applicability of the ACMJ is more restrictive than that of most state military justice codes in that it expressly withholds jurisdiction for any crime that can be tried by civil authorities.[2] Therefore, "common law" crimes such as rape, indecent exposure/touching, and all other assaults cannot be criminally prosecuted under the ACMJ, but must instead be referred to civilian authorities such as the Anchorage Police Department (APD) or, for most of the AKNG's dispersed units, the Alaska State Troopers (AST). This leaves only inherently military offenses – such as insubordination, malingering, asleep at post, drunk on duty – to be tried by military courts martial under the ACMJ.

[1] There are a few missions performed by the NG in a T10 status they include the Homeland Defense Missions such as the Space warning and missile defense mission currently being performed at Clear AFB and Ft Greely. Operators actually sit "crew" on shift; or when a fighter pilot sits runway alert or launches for air defense under the NORAD bilateral treaty or for Operation Noble Eagle

[2] See Alaska Statute 26.05.300, which provides that "An offense committed by a member of the militia, organized or unorganized, shall be tried in civil courts and prosecuted by civil authorities except offenses of a purely military nature."

Convening a General or Special Court-Martial under a state's code of military justice takes considerable effort and expense. Accordingly, the authority to convene courts martial is uniformly withheld throughout the several states to those cases involving severe misconduct. In Alaska, the Team found no record of an ACMJ court martial since passage of the original ACMJ in 1955. In fact, the leadership across the AKNG was largely under the impression that no ACMJ even existed. However, the ACMJ is in force, and it was supplemented in 1992 by a Governor's executive order published as Alaska ARNG Regulation 27-10 and ANG Regulation 111-9.[3] [4]

A Special Court Martial may be convened under the ACMJ by commanders as low as Battalion or Group level for enlisted members, and the Special Court may impose the same potential punishments as a General Court Martial, except that the maximum fine is $100.[5]

A Summary Court martial may be convened under the ACMJ by any commander for enlisted members only and may assess a mere $25 fine and forfeiture of one month's pay. There is, however, no provision for a Summary Court Martial under the Governor's order/implementing regulations, leading us to question whether or not a Summary Court is, in practice, still available under Alaska law.

Like the UCMJ, the ACMJ incorporates a Non-Judicial Punishment (NJP) provision, under which a commander may offer a member suspected of a crime

[3] The ACMJ also applies to the State Defense Force and Alaska Naval Militia and is published under their regulations as well.

[4] Under the ACMJ and its implementing regulations, the most severe punishment for even the most severe "inherently military crime" (e.g. mutiny and sedition) on conviction by a General Court Martial convened by the Governor himself, is a $200 fine, forfeiture of two months' pay & allowances, a reprimand, and 60 days' confinement (reduction in rank to the lowest grade is limited to noncommissioned officers, meaning that neither officers nor junior enlisted members may be reduced). While a General Court Martial may impose a Dishonorable Discharge (in actuality, a "separation") from the Alaska military forces, such a service characterization will apply only to the member's National Guard service – and not to their federal "Reserve of the Army" or "Reserve of the Air Force" service, limiting the effectiveness of such action.

[5] The regulation purports to permit 6 months' forfeiture, but this is at odds with the statute which permits only equivalent punishments for this lesser forum; the service characterization for a State discharge, only, is capped at a Bad Conduct Discharge.

the opportunity to have guilt or innocence decided by the commander in a comparatively informal setting, with available punishment capped at a substantially lower level than that typically permitted by courts martial. But NJP has absolutely no utility if a commander is not willing to proceed to a court martial if the offer of NJP is rejected, as it would be likely under the ACMJ owing to the infrequency of trials and the minimal maximum punishments. Such a scenario would also undermine good order and discipline within a unit.

Sensitivity: Confidential

Good evening Ms. Sims,

This is a retransmission of my previous e-mail to Mr. Nizich on this subject…

I realize that Mr. Nizich and you are extremely busy, but would be most grateful if you might find time to confirm receipt of this e-mail.

After giving this most unfortunate matter considerable additional thought, I would like to respectfully offer the following observation… It occurs to me that Governor Parnell might be very well served by relocating his new Deputy Commissioner's office into the Alaska National Guard Headquarters Building. Such a relocation would provide the Governor additional necessary oversight of the Alaska National Guard command structure, allow an independent "first-hand" daily assessment of the organizational climate, assure Guard personnel have direct unimpeded access to the DMVA Deputy Commissioner until trust in the Guard's command structure and complaint processes can be fully restored, and demonstrate the Governor's strong personal commitment to protecting all Guard personnel by ensuring that he has "eyes, ears and boots on the ground" within the Alaska National Guard.

Thank you in advance for your time and consideration.

Respectfully yours,
Michael Kelly

Good evening Mr. Nizich,

Please allow me to introduce myself and purpose for writing…

I am Michael Kelly, a retired Air Force field grade officer and resident of Alaska for more than twenty years. Recent events involving allegations of sexual assault, hostile work environment, fraud, misconduct, drug trafficking and overall ineffective and unacceptable command climate within the Alaska National Guard are deeply troubling to me. Therefore, I would like to humbly and respectfully offer any assistance that might be beneficial to the Governor, Alaska Department of Military and Veterans Affairs, and/or Alaska National Guard.

My background includes 21 years of honorable service with the United States Air Force, including eleven years of military auditing, investigation and inspection experience. I also have extensive first-hand knowledge and experience in resolving Inspector General, Congressional, Whistleblower Protection Act, and Fraud, Waste or Abuse (FWA) Hotline inquiries. A brief summary of relevant experience in these areas follows:

- Air Force Auditor / Office Chief / Branch Chief / Systems Audit Manager (Multiple Locations)

- Chief of Comptroller Inspections – HQ Air Training Command Inspector General Team (San Antonio, TX)
- Commander, 432d Comptroller Squadron (Eielson AFB, AK)
- Commander, 432d Services Squadron (Eielson AFB, AK)
- Deputy Wing Inspector General (Eielson AFB, AK)
- Director, Commander's Action Group – Eleventh Air Force (Elmendorf AFB)

Regrettably, I am no stranger to the types of challenges facing the Alaska National Guard… On January 17, 1997, after the previous Commander was suddenly relieved of duty, I assumed command of a troubled 400-person Support Services Squadron at Eielson AFB suffering from poor morale, substance abuse issues, sexual harassment, hostile work environment and other major challenges. Within 36 hours of taking command, I uncovered sufficient evidence of harassment and sexual misconduct to compel me to immediately initiate a comprehensive formal Social Actions investigation. I also found it necessary to bring formal charges under Article 112(a) of the Uniform Code of Military Justice against five enlisted personnel for substance abuse. All five individuals were subsequently discharged.

My experience includes carrying out inquiries related to potential Whistleblower Protection Act violations, as well as serving as an Inquiry Officer on a U.S. Air Force Inspector General Hotline complaint related to undue command influence and retaliation by a senior Hospital Commander against his subordinates for expressing concerns about serious and unresolved quality of care issues in his Cardiology Department.

A summary of my formal education and professional credentials includes:

- Bachelors of Business Administration – Corporate Finance (Texas A&I University)
- Masters Degree – Public Administration (University of Oklahoma)
- Certified Public Accountant – State of Texas (Certificate Number #58436)

Military decorations are as follows:

- Air Force Meritorious Service Medal (5)
- Air Force Commendation Medal (1)
- Air Force Achievement Medal (1)
- Air Force Outstanding Unit Award (2)
- Air Force Organizational Excellence Award (2)

In closing, if you think my background, education and experience might be of potential benefit to the Governor, DMVA and/or Alaska National Guard, I would consider it a genuine pleasure and privilege to talk to you in greater detail at your convenience.

Respectfully yours,

Michael Kelly

BOI

Dear Sir,

I wanted to take a moment to write in regards to the Alaska Army National Guard. I am the wife of a newly retired acting SGM and current APD officer. Who, only retired last year after the on going issues grew and as a leader and police officer

he felt his opinions were not only listened to but certainly not acted on. Therefor , even with his upcoming promotion to SGM he felt he had no choice but to resign as opposed to staying with a very corrupt organization that was tearing apart what we as military memebers and families believe should be the backbone of standards. It is only this week that he has said he feels with the sweep of leadership he would take back his retirement.

While , this has all be unfolding , I have watched as not only a spouse but an employee and listened to the morale of our organization fall to the very bottom.

The youngest Soldiers and Airmen no longer have faith in our leadership and the fact that they will actually stand by their word. Rather, they believe the only thing they will do is protect and do what is needed for their own careers. Sadly , this is the leadership we are instilling now for these young men and women to turn into.

Therein lies the nature of my letter. In the process of finding a new TAG. And, I know there is a team here. I implore you to understand bringing in an outsider is going to do as much harm as what we have now. An outsider no matter how well intended is still not someone we, the masses can trust. You can clean the entire house and bring in the Pope. But, if the E1 and up do not know that person and have an established link to them then once again w e are in a position to not trust.

I ask that you kindly look carefully at COL. David Osborn, He is a man who not only relieved another Commander in the middle of a deployment at the tail end of his. But, also someone who knows something about every single Soldier no matter the rank . I have seen him walk down the hall and talk to every single Soldier about something in their lives. He pays attention and the Servicemembers would follow him with pride into fire. His charisma and ethics is something that can not be learned. And, while I fully realise politics. In the position the organization is in now. There really should not be another option . People are jumping ship left and right and we need a reason to believe it can get better.

I understand you ofcourse recieve letters and calls daily to abundance. But, I ask that you take a moment to consider the importance of our future military memembers and the backlash this has taken across the country in regards to the greatest state in the nation.

Very Respectfully,

Gianna Varrati

Team (Please forward to Jay, I do not have his e-mail)

Attached is the list of traits we must find in the new TAG Alaska. Pride of authorship goes to GEN Bruce Clark, US Army. I will follow up with a second e-mail with the types of questions we need to get after to find the person who possesses these traits. To sum all this up is to demand each tell the truth and give best effort (My Mom taught me that in elementary school, easy to remember). Look forward to meeting all of you.

WHAT OUR SOLDIERS HAVE A RIGHT TO EXPECT FROM THEIR LEADERS

* Honest, just and fair treatment.

* Consideration due them as mature, professional Soldiers.

* Personal interest taken in them as individuals.

* Loyalty.

* Shielding from harassment from "higher up".

* That their needs be anticipated and provided for.

* All the comforts and privileges practicable.

* To be kept oriented and told the "reason why".

* A well-thought out program of training, work and recreation.

* Clear-cut and positive decisions and orders which are not constantly changing.

Demands on them commensurate with their capabilities--not too small--not too great.

* That their good work be recognized, and publicized when appropriate.

Subject: Complaint - BOI PERSONNEL RELATED

Hello General ... I talked to BOI today who called our office to try and get some help with a position he had applied for last year that he did not receive and feels he has been discriminated against. I know there is always another side to the story, but I would like this looked into given his allegation that the person who was put into the position was "having sex on duty with a supervisor."

BOI let me know that before he applied for the position (BOI), he had talked with Col. Bailey and Col. Wilbanks as he knew he was older than the requirements. He was told by both of these people that waivers are issued all the time for age requirements and if he was qualified for the position, it could be waived. And Col. Bailey told him if he was the number one or two pick, Col. Bailey would fight for an age waiver for him.

BOI tells me he was the first pick for the position; his PT scores were better than all other applicants; has excelled at everything he has done; and feels he deserved to be put into the position.

The reason he was given for not getting the position was that he was too old. He states that not getting this position "crushed him" and for the first time in his life he actually felt old. He has moved on from this but he still does not feel it was right, and given what has come out about how the Guard leadership has acted in some cases, he felt he should inquire to see if someone higher up could look into this position and the decisions that were made into who received the promotion.

General - please take a look at this case and provide a briefing to Mike and I on the circumstances of this particular case.

I also want to be sure that BOI is not discouraged from talking with us about this issue, and not treated unfairly because he did talk with us.

Thanks - and don't hesitate to let me know if you have questions.

Subject: Complaint - BOI/PR - PERSONNEL RELATED

Hello General … Another Guard member who I talked with today – BOI/PR – has written our office and then I spoke with him today. I've included his original email below, which is lengthy but it describes the issues of concern he's raising.

I would like to know the status of BOI/PR and why if the separation board recommended back in BOI/PR that he was to be removed from the Alaska National Guard – he is still in place, working in uniform. Also, was there a recommendation for a dishonorable discharge – or what was the exact recommendation; and why has there been so much delay?

Again, I do not want anyone taking negative action toward BOI/PR for coming forward to talk with our office.

Thank you,
Cindy

From BOI/PR

BOI/PR

BOI/PR AK BOI/PR

I have served my country for the past BOI/PR years, the first BOI/PR as an active duty soldier based at Ft. Wainwright, and the last BOI/PR as an Alaska Army National Guardsman based out of BOI/PR. Over these past BOI/PR years, I have not only been through, but excelled through countless trials and tribulations the vast populous can never begin to imagine. I completed one tour in BOI... in BOI/PR, where I saw my brethren permanently scarred and disfigured. I completed some of the Army's toughest, most demanding training in some of the harshest climates. I missed my first-born child's first birthday. My knees cause me constant pain from the countless miles of running and ruck marching. My left hip pops every time I move it, causing pain from the IED (improvised explosive device) that bashed my left side against the truck I was riding in. My ears constantly ring, causing seriously degraded hearing from all the rounds, not only that I have fired, but also the ones cracking over my head, because fortunately the insurgent sniper was not as good a shot as he thought.

All that said, if you were to ask me if I would do it over again, my answer, without hesitation would be an emphatic "I absolutely would!" because I have also had countless life-altering positive accomplishments. I will forever have the pride and satisfaction that I voluntarily stood up to serve my country in a time of war on multiple fronts and survived. I have gotten to travel the world, even if most of the places I have been were desolate wastelands. I have made bonds with friends, brothers that no number of miles can break. I have learned skills so few people get the opportunity to see first-hand let alone master. I have seen the stuff movies are made of. I have felt the concussion of explosions, both friendly and enemy, and I will forever know that almost child-like excitement that comes with it.

Unfortunately the past year and a half of my military career has brought a sour note to my service, not because of my own misdeeds, but those of others. About BO... years ago, I decided to change my MOS (military occupational specialty) from BOI/PR to BOI/PR. When I did, my new supervisor became BOI/PR. It became obvious early on that we seemingly had a lot in common. We were both prior infantry, both sniper trained, and both had an "old-military" mentality of accountability and integrity above all else. I flourished in my new role as a BOI/PR, and established myself as the non-commissioned officer best suited to take over the role of BOI/PR when my supervisor went to a d ifferent position in the unit. In BOI/PR, I was in BOI/PR completing the necessary training for my new MOS when rumors started flying that my wife was supposedly having an inappropriate relationship with BOI/PR. My wife caught word of it, and immediately told me about the rumors. I reported it to BOI/PR, and he quickly put the blame for the rumors on the wife of another NCO in my section and dismissed it as purely rumors based on jealousy because I was going to take over as BOI/PR. That NCO and his family had, until then, been very close with my family and I, and after learning of BOI/PR's findings, we regrettably had a falling out, keeping our relationship strictly professional. I returned from BOI/..., got promoted, and became the BOI/PR.

Fast forward to June, 2013 at our annual training in BOI/PR. While my section and I were up at our observation point for three days doing a live fire exercise, I had an opportunity to have a serious talk with the NCO mentioned earlier regarding what had happened back in BOI/PR. He told me that there was a lot more that my wife was not telling me, and that it had been bothering him since our falling out. He told me he could no longer keep the information he had to himself. He told me they had screen shots of text message conversations between my wife and his wife, where my wife detailed some of the things BOI/PR had been saying and doing behind my back. He was hesitant to give me specific details, for fear of reviving prior conflicts, but told me that I should have a serious conversation with my wife.

When I got home I finally convinced my wife to come clean and tell me what she had been hiding from me for so long. She told me he had done things ranging from excessive complimenting to inappropriate touching, all the way up to pressuring my wife into telling him she loved him. He would regularly tell her things like "You look smoking hot." and "I only used BOI/PR to get close to you." and "If you stick with me, I will make sure your husband flies through the ranks." She told me he was constantly sending her text messages and would not stop. She told me that he had pressured her into telling him she loved him. She told me the only reason she hadn't told me sooner was because he used his rank and position to intimidate her and held my promotion over her head.

I got on my cell phone provider's website to substantiate what my wife had told me. I found that several months had hundreds, and sometimes thousands of text messages between BOI/PR and my wife. Most specifically, the month of BOI/PR, when I was in BOI/..., he obviously took advantage of my absence, sending and receiving over 5,000 text messages. There were also phone conversations, many of which were longer conversations than my wife and I typically have on the phone. I took all of what I had found to my commander and first sergeant, and they both immediately said it required serious action. They sent it up the chain of command, until it got to the brigade commander, then BOI/PR. He assigned a special investigating officer, BOI/PR, who was to come to BOI/PR to investigate the allegations, not only of BOI/PR's actions towards my wife, but other disturbing offenses committed towards female soldiers and inappropriate activities conducted in the BOI/PR armory after business hours.

BOI/PR came to BOI/PR in mid BOI/PR and conducted his investigation, interviewing several critical witnesses. The brigade commander decided it warranted further investigation and he briefed the state commander, Brigadier General Mike Bridges and the state command sergeant major, Command Sergeant Major Pam Harrington. He submitted his recommendation for BOI/PR's removal from the AGR program and a TDY move to Anchorage for separation proceedings. Throughout this process my wife and I were promised by my squadron commander, BOI/PR, the brigade commander, then-BOI/PR, and the state SARC (Sexual Assault Response Coordinator) Octavia Thompson that we would be kept updated on the case and how it was proceeding.

For the next two and a half to three months, we heard nothing other than "JAG is reviewing the case before they proceed". Finally, in late BOI/PR, along with my Command Sergeant Major and First Sergeant, briefed me that BOI/PR would be going TDY to Anchorage very soon for the remainder of the investigation. Nearly a month and a half later, we had heard nothing from anyone regarding the case. I confronted my commander, BOI/PR and my First Sergeant, BOI/PR, regarding the broken promise of being kept in the loop and the lack of communication. They told me that he was being processed for discharge, but that nothing had changed. I expressed to them that if that was in fact the case, then a two minute phone call to the victim should be pretty easy, at least to let her know that it was still on-going and that the unit had not forgotten their promise to her. My commander, BOI/PR called my wife that evening and apologized for the break-down in communication and gave her the same, limited information he had given me earlier that day.

Almost exactly one month later, I was advised that BOI/PR would be in town for the week of BOI/PR in order to sign items over to another leader. That weekend I found out from a subordinate soldier, who was not even part of the investigation, that BOI/PR had expressed to him that he had been going to mental health, and that the doctor "thought there might be something wrong" with him, and that they were allegedly going to prescribe him medication. The following Monday I asked my First Sergeant if he knew about the c onversation. He said he knew nothing about it. I raised the point that it had already come out that BOI/PR had previously threatened the other NCO involved in the investigation for questioning him regarding his conduct with the wives of soldiers, and how that information coupled with the new information of BOI/PR seeing a mental health professional raised serious safety and security concerns with not only myself and my family, but the other NCO involved and his family. My family and I recently moved to BOI/PR and have opted not to give the unit our new address for safety and security reasons, however BOI/PR knows where the other NCO lives. Coincidentally, the week BOI/PR was in town, someone falsely accused the other NCO involved in the investigation of involvement in a hit-and-run. Fortunately, the other NCO was at work, furthermore, the vehicle he was allegedly driving, as described by the other driver with vehicle description, plate number, and driver de scription (mid-day, while he was at work) had been sitting at his house and had not been moved for a week, as he was on call with his civilian employer, therefore his personal vehicle was covered in snow and had no fresh tracks showing movement.

We are in the seventh month since this investigation began, and we still have gotten very little information, the case is moving at a snail's pace, and quite frankly, my family lives in fear and shame for what has happened and what could potentially happen if BOI/PR were to decide he wanted vengeance for my wife coming forward. We had filed for a restraining order early on, however, despite the mountain of evidence we presented to the magistrate, compared to BOI/PR's blank legal pad and the response of "I cannot refute the allegations, I am simply here to find out the terms of the restraining order." the magistrate somehow determined there was "not enough evidence to warrant a restraining order". My wife used to frequently go to the armory, volunteering her time to help coordinate family programs and unit morale events such as last year's unit Christmas party. Now she has sworn off the National Guard, and wants nothing to do with the unit. She no longer even supports me being in the National Guard, but endures my monthly duty because she knows it is a commitment I made.

Speaking of commitments, jumping back to BOI/PR, shortly before going to my training in BOI/..., I extended my contract for an additional BOI/PR in order to be eligible to attend my training. Shortly after arriving in BOI/..., the unit retention NCO contacted me and notified me there was a mistake on my contract, and that we needed to re-do it right away. I gave him the FAX number where he could send the new contract, and told him as soon as he sent it, I would sign it and send it back. The following day, I went to receive the FAX, and found he had never sent it. I contacted the retention NCO, and he said that his higher-ups said it could wait until I returned in early BOI/PR. When I returned, I immediately made contact with him to re-do my contract and he said he would get it taken care of and let me know when it was ready. This went on for several months, until we were just a few months away from my original ETS (Estimated Time of Separation), when I told my chain of command I was worried that it would not get done before my ETS, and that I would have no choice but to ETS because the contract was null and void. I also learned that the retention NCO failed to do the incentive contract he had promised, saying I would be paid a $10,000 incentive for my extension of
BOI/PR.

My ETS was originally in BOI/PR. By BOI/PR the unit finally started digging into what needed to be done, and found that someone had already mistakenly put the contract into the system, and that I was stuck with it, and would not get an incentive bonus. Our personnel NCOIC, BOI/PR went to great lengths researching regulation and policy to find a solution. He was finally able to find a solution that would result in the modification of the contract I signed in the BOI/PR, and I would then be able to sign a new contract, to include an incentive bonus contract. My ETS was adjusted to BOI/PR, and at the end of the last week of BOI/PR they finalized the new contract, this time extending for BOI/PR for an incentive bonus of $5,000. I was informed that the bonus would begin processing the day after my ETS, which was BOI/PR, and that it would take roughly 30 to 45 days to be deposited into my account. Well, we all know what happened with the government shut-down on BOI/PR, and obviously it delayed my incentive.

At the beginning of BOI/PR, when I spoke to my commander and first sergeant regarding the lack of communication about my wife's case, I also asked about my bonus, as it had been a month and I had heard no information about the status or timeline of my bonus.
They told me it was at PEC and NGB in Washington D.C. and that it should be deposited within a couple of weeks. A month later, and in true keeping of my unit's style, with no follow-up or communication as promised, I asked again, about my bonus. Three days later, I received a phone call from my commander stating that my bonus was still at PEC and NGB being reviewed. I am obviously getting nowhere with my unit, so I have decided to reach out to you. I truly hope that you can help me sort out what is going on with my bonus, and perhaps gain more ground than my unit is willing to attempt.

As I said earlier, I have served BOI/PR years in the military, and never once have I even gotten so much as a negative counselling statement. I do my best to set the example and uphold the highest standards. In the course of less than a year I have brought my section from a circus in shambles to the shining star of the brigade at our last annual training. My subordinates would do anything for me, because they know I would do anything for them. Perhaps that is just the mindset and mentality instilled in me by my grandfather, the World War 2 veteran. Perhaps I should be a bit more willing to change and adapt to the times, but in my mind, the generation of my grandfather was known as the best generation for a reason. They stood up for what was right, and accepted nothing less. If someone acted a fool or failed to make good on a promise, they were held accountable for it. I do not know when the military changed it's standard and deemed the current conduct acceptable, but it will never be acceptable in my mind.

In my mind, the military, not to mention the Alaska National Guard, with all it's rich heritage and history, should present a better image than that. I learned the Army Values in basic training. Loyalty. Duty. Respect. Selfless Service. Honor. Integrity. Personal Cou rage. I never would have imagined those values would become notional, only used on the recruiting commercials. The AGR's (guardsmen who have a full-time active job working for the National Guard) have developed a system of good-ol-boy back scratching where they take care of each other, only to trample all over the M-Day soldiers. They fail to realize, that as AGR's, they have a job solely to support the M-Day soldier that comprises the vast majority of the unit. They are too busy browsing The Chive or their Facebook accounts to ensure that the citizen soldiers who sacrifice so much for the unit are at least getting the compensation they are promised, compensation which is a mere fraction of the compensation for the very limited work the AGR's perform. The AGR's have forgotten what it is like to be an M-Day soldier, to have to scrape for every hour at their civilian job, just to make a meager income, trying to make ends meet. They forget that they get paid twice what most M-Day soldiers make in their civilian job, while doing half the work. They don't appreciate the fact they get that paycheck regardless of what time they show up, leave, or how long a lunch they take. When they turn a weekend drill into a Friday, Saturday, and Sunday drill with less than a month's notice, threatening soldiers with AWOL if they do not attend that Friday drill after they have already told their civilian employer, who pays far more, they could work. When they expect soldiers to turn their normal half hour lunch break into an hour and a half lunch break to meet their wants, causing that solider to miss out on an extra hour of pay, which, of course, the unit won't compensate for. For some of us, that extra hour is a day worth of fuel in our boiler keeping our families warm at night, or a dinner on the table to help our children grow. Many of the AGR's cannot even legitimately pass an Army Physical Fitness Test, often times faking the numbers so they are allowed to keep th eir job and get promoted to ranks they do not deserve and lower the standard that much more. These practices are not just the practices of one, but the majority. They are not only accepted by the chain of command in BOI/PR, but rewarded with illegitimate promotions. I am quickly learning why it is so common to hear so many locals in BOI/PR talk down about the military, and I just wish there was something I could do to change it. Hopefully with your help something can be done to change it. The tendency among the AGR's is to squirt a bit of oil on the squeaky wheels such as myself in order to quiet it down, only to resume pushing the cart through the mud puddle. Perhaps the problem is not the wheel, but the individual pushing the cart.

Got it.

This one was a SJA case that is complex. SARC involvement as well of some depth.
(No negative actions would be taken for contacting your office on this or any others).

I have to have the case and below questions pulled for a right back response to you.

Subject: Complaint - BOI/PR - PERSONNEL RELATED

Hello General … Another Guard member who I talked with today – BOI/PR – has written our office and then I spoke with him today. I've included his original email below, which is lengthy but it describes the issues of concern he's raising.

I would like to know the status of BOI/PR and why if the separation board recommended back in BOI/PR that he was to be removed from the Alaska National Guard – he is still in place, working in uniform. Also, was there a recommendation for a dishonorable discharge – or what was the exact recommendation; and why has there been so much delay?

Again, I do not want anyone taking negative action toward BOI/PR for coming forward to talk with our office.

Thank you,

Cindy

From Mr. BOI/PR

BOI/PR

, AK BOI/PR

I have served my country for the past BOI/PR years, the first BOI/PR as an active duty soldier based at Ft. Wainwright, and the last BOI/PR as an Alaska Army National Guardsman based out of BOI/PR. Over these past BOI/PR years, I have not only been through, but excelled through countless trials and tribulations the vast populous can never begin to imagine. I completed one tour in BOI... in BOI/PR, where I saw my brethren permanently scarred and disfigured. I completed some of the Army's toughest, most demanding training in some of the harshest climates. I missed my first-born child's first birthday. My knees cause me constant pain from the countless miles of running and ruck marching. My left hip pops every time I move it, causing pain from the IED (improvised explosive device) that bashed my left side against the truck I was riding in. My ears constantly ring, causing seriously degraded hearing from all the rounds, not only that I have fired, but also the ones cracking over my head, because fortunately the insurgent sniper was not as good a shot as he thought.

All that said, if you were to ask me if I would do it over again, my answer, without hesitation would be an emphatic "I absolutely would!" because I have also had countless life-altering positive accomplishments. I will forever have the pride and satisfaction that I voluntarily stood up to serve my country in a time of war on multiple fronts and survived. I have gotten to travel the world, even if most of the places I have been were desolate wastelands. I have made bonds with friends, brothers that no number of miles can break. I have learned skills so few people get the opportunity to see first-hand let alone master. I have seen the stuff movies are made of. I have felt the concussion of explosions, both friendly and enemy, and I will forever know that almost child-like excitement that comes with it.

Unfortunately the past year and a half of my military career has brought a sour note to my service, not because of my own misdeeds, but those of others. About BOI/... years ago, I decided to change my MOS (military occupational specialty) from BOI/PR to

BOI/PR. When I did, my new supervisor became BOI/PR. It became obvious early on that we seemingly had a lot in common. We were both prior infantry, both sniper trained, and both had an "old-military" mentality of accountability and integrity above all else. I flourished in my new role as a BOI/PR, and established myself as the non-commissioned officer best suited to take over the role of BOI/PR when my supervisor went to a d ifferent position in the unit. In BOI/PR, I was in BOI/PR completing the necessary training for my new MOS when rumors started flying that my wife was supposedly having an inappropriate relationship with

BOI/PR. My wife caught word of it, and immediately told me about the rumors. I reported it to BOI/PR, and he quickly put the blame for the rumors on the wife of another NCO in my section and dismissed it as purely rumors based on jealousy because I was going to take over as BOI/PR

. That NCO and his family had, until then, been very close with my family and I, and after learning of BOI/PR's findings, we regrettably had a falling out, keeping our relationship strictly professional. I returned from BOI/PR, got promoted, and became the

BOI/PR.

Fast forward to BOI/PR at our annual training in BOI/PR. While my section and I were up at our observation point for three days doing a live fire exercise, I had an opportunity to have a serious talk with the NCO mentioned earlier regarding what had happened back in BOI/PR. He told me that there was a lot more that my wife was not telling me, and that it had been bothering him since our falling out. He told me he could no longer keep the information he had to himself. He told me they had screen

shots of text message conversations between my wife and his wife, where my wife detailed some of the things

BOI/PR had been saying and doing behind my back. He was hesitant to give me specific details, for fear of reviving prior conflicts, but told me that I should have a serious conversation with my wife.

When I got home I finally convinced my wife to come clean and tell me what she had been hiding from me for so long. She told me he had done things ranging from excessive complimenting to inappropriate touching, all the way up to pressuring my wife into telling him she loved him. He would regularly tell her things like “You look smoking hot.” and “I only used BOI/PR to get close to you.” and “If you stick with me, I will make sure your husband flies through the ranks.” She told me he was constantly sending her text messages and would not stop. She told me that he had pressured her into telling him she loved him. She told me the only reason she hadn’t told me sooner was because he used his rank and position to intimidate her and held my promotion over her head.

I got on my cell phone provider’s website to substantiate what my wife had told me. I found that several months had hundreds, and sometimes thousands of text messages between BOI/PR and my wife. Most specifically, the month of BOI/PR, when I was in BOI/...,

he obviously took advantage of my absence, sending and receiving over 5,000 text messages. There were also phone conversations, many of which were longer conversations than my wife and I typically have on the phone. I took all of what I had found to my commander and first sergeant, and they both immediately said it required serious action. They sent it up the chain of command, until it got to the brigade commander, then BOI/PR. He assigned a special investigating officer, BOI/PR, who was to come to BOI/PR to investigate the allegations, not only of BOI/PR’s actions towards my wife, but other disturbing offenses committed towards female soldiers and inappropriate activities conducted in the BOI/PR armory after business hours.

BOI/PR came to BOI/PR in mid BOI/PR and conducted his investigation, interviewing several critical witnesses. The brigade commander decided it warranted further investigation and he briefed the state commander, Brigadier General Mike Bridges and the state command sergeant major, Command Sergeant Major Pam Harrington. He submitted his recommendation for BOI/PR’s removal from the AGR program and a TDY move to Anchorage for separation proceedings. Throughout this process my wife and I were promised by my squadron commander, BOI/PR, the brigade commander, then-BOI/PR, and the state SARC (Sexual Assault Response Coordinator) Octavia Thompson that we would be kept updated on the case and how it was proceeding.

For the next two and a half to three months, we heard nothing other than “JAG is reviewing the case before they proceed”. Finally, in late BOI/PR, along with my Command Sergeant Major and First Sergeant, briefed me that BOI/PR would be going TDY to Anchorage very soon for the remainder of the investigation. Nearly a month and a half later, we had heard nothing from anyone regarding the case. I confronted my commander, BOI/PR and my First Sergeant,

BOI/PR, regarding the broken promise of being kept in the loop and the lack of communication. They told me that he was being processed for discharge, but that nothing had changed. I expressed to them that if that was in fact the case, then a two minute

phone call to the victim should be pretty easy, at least to let her know that it was still on-going and that the unit had not forgotten their promise to her. My commander, BOI/PR called my wife that evening and apologized for the break-down in communication and gave her the same, limited information he had given me earlier that day.

Almost exactly one month later, I was advised that BOI/PR would be in town for the week of BOI/PR in order to sign items over to another leader. That weekend I found out from a subordinate soldier, who was not even part of the investigation, that

BOI/PR had expressed to him that he had been going to mental health, and that the doctor “thought there might be something wrong” with him, and that they were allegedly going to prescribe him medication. The following Monday I asked my First Sergeant if he knew about the c onversation. He said he knew nothing about it. I raised the point that it had already come out that BOI/PR had previously threatened the other NCO involved in the investigation for questioning him regarding his conduct with the wives of soldiers, and how that information coupled with the new information of BOI/PR seeing a mental health professional raised serious safety and security concerns with not only myself and my family, but the other NCO involved and his family. My family and

I recently moved to BOI/PR, and have opted not to give the unit our new address for safety and security reasons, however BOI/PR knows where the other NCO lives. Coincidentally, the week BOI was in town, someone falsely accused the other NCO involved in the investigation of involvement in a hit-and-run. Fortunately, the other NCO was at work, furthermore, the vehicle he was allegedly driving, as described by the other driver with vehicle description, plate number, and driver de scription (mid-day, while he was at work) had been sitting at his house and had not been moved for a week, as he was on call with his civilian employer, therefore his personal vehicle was covered in snow and had no fresh tracks showing movement.

We are in the seventh month since this investigation began, and we still have gotten very little information, the case is moving at a snail's pace, and quite frankly, my family lives in fear and shame for what has happened and what could potentially happen

if BOI/PR were to decide he wanted vengeance for my wife coming forward. We had filed for a restraining order early on, however, despite the mountain of evidence we presented to the magistrate, compared to BOI/PR's blank legal pad and the response of "I cannot refute the allegations, I am simply here to find out the terms of the restraining order." the magistrate somehow determined there was "not enough evidence to warrant a restraining order". My wife used to frequently go to the armory, volunteering her time to help coordinate family programs and unit morale events such as last year's unit Christmas party. Now she has sworn off the National Guard, and wants nothing to do with the unit. She no longer even supports me being in the National Guard, but endures

my monthly duty because she knows it is a commitment I made.

Speaking of commitments, jumping back to BOI/PR, shortly before going to my training in BOI/PR, I extended my contract for an additional BOI/PR in order to be eligible to attend my training. Shortly after arriving in BOI/PR, the unit retention NCO contacted me and notified me there was a mistake on my contract, and that we needed to re-do it right away. I gave him the FAX number where he could send the new contract, and told him as soon as he sent it, I would sign it and send it back. The following day, I went to receive the FAX, and found he had never sent it. I contacted the retention NCO, and he said that his higher-ups said it could wait until I returned in early BOI/PR. When I returned, I immediately made contact with him to re-do my contract and he said he would get it taken care of and let me know when it was ready. This went on for several months, until we were just a few months away from my original ETS (Estimated Time of Separation), when I told my chain of command I was worried that it would not get done before my ETS, and that I would have no choice but to ETS because the contract was null and void. I also learned that the retention NCO failed to do the incentive contract he had promised, saying I would be paid a $10,000 incentive for my extension of

BOI/PR.

My ETS was originally in BOI/PR. By BOI/PR the unit finally started digging into what needed to be done, and found that someone had already mistakenly put the contract into the system, and that I was stuck with it, and would not get an incentive bonus. Our personnel NCOIC, BOI/PR went to great lengths researching regulation and policy to find a solution. He was finally able to find a solution that would result in the modification of the contract I signed in the BOI/PR, and I would then be able to sign a new contract, to include an incentive bonus contract. My ETS was adjusted to BOI/PR, and at the end of the last week of BOI/PR they finalized the new contract, this time extending for BOI/PR for an incentive bonus of $5,000. I was informed that the bonus would begin processing the day after my ETS, which was BOI/PR, and that it would take roughly 30 to 45 days to be deposited into my account. Well, we all know what happened with the government shut-down on BOI/PR, and obviously it delayed my incentive.

At the beginning of BOI/PR, when I spoke to my commander and first sergeant regarding the lack of communication about my wife's case, I also asked about my bonus, as it had been a month and I had heard no information about the status or timeline of my bonus.

They told me it was at PEC and NGB in Washington D.C. and that it should be deposited within a couple of weeks. A month later, and in true keeping of my unit's style, with no follow-up or communication as promised, I asked again, about my bonus. Three days later, I received a phone call from my commander stating that my bonus was still at PEC and NGB being reviewed. I am obviously getting nowhere with my unit, so I have decided to reach out to you. I truly hope that you can help me sort out what is going on with my bonus, and perhaps gain more ground than my unit is willing to attempt.

As I said earlier, I have served BOI/PR years in the military, and never once have I even gotten so much as a negative counselling statement. I do my best to set the example and uphold the highest standards. In the course of less than a year I have brought my section from a circus in shambles to the shining star of the brigade at our last annual training. My subordinates would do anything for me, because they know I would do anything for them. Perhaps that is just the mindset and mentality instilled in me by my grandfather, the World War 2 veteran. Perhaps I should be a bit more willing to change and adapt to the times, but in my mind, the generation of my grandfather was known as the best generation for a reason. They stood up for what was right, and accepted nothing less. If someone acted a fool or failed to make good on a promise, they were held accountable for it. I do not know when the military changed it's standard and deemed the current conduct acceptable, but it will never be acceptable in my mind.

In my mind, the military, not to mention the Alaska National Guard, with all it's rich heritage and history, should present a better image than that. I learned the Army Values in basic training. Loyalty. Duty. Respect. Selfless Service. Honor. Integrity. Personal

Cou rage. I never would have imagined those values would become notional, only used on the recruiting commercials. The AGR's (guardsmen who have a full-time active job working for the National Guard) have developed a system of good-ol-boy back scratching where they take care of each other, only to trample all over the M-Day soldiers. They fail to realize, that as AGR's, they have a job solely to support the M-Day soldier that comprises the vast majority of the unit. They are too busy browsing The Chive or their

Facebook accounts to ensure that the citizen soldiers who sacrifice so much for the unit are at least getting the compensation they are promised, compensation which is a mere fraction of the compensation for the very limited work the AGR's perform. The AGR's have forgotten what it is like to be an M-Day soldier, to have to scrape for every hour at their civilian job, just to make a meager income, trying to make ends meet. They forget that they get paid twice what most M-Day soldiers make in their civilian job, while doing half the work. They don't appreciate the fact they get that paycheck regardless of what time they show up, leave, or how long a lunch they take. When they turn a weekend drill into a Friday, Saturday, and Sunday drill with less than a month's notice, threatening soldiers with AWOL if they do not attend that Friday drill after they have already told their civilian employer, who pays far more, they could work. When they expect soldiers to turn their normal half hour lunch break into an hour and a half lunch break to meet their wants, causing that solider to miss out on an extra hour of pay, which, of course, the unit won't compensate for. For some of us, that extra hour is a day worth of fuel in our boiler keeping our families warm at night, or a dinner on the table to help our children grow. Many of the AGR's cannot even legitimately pass an Army Physical Fitness Test, often times faking the numbers so they are allowed to keep th eir job and get promoted to ranks they do not deserve and lower the standard that much more. These practices are not just the practices of one, but the majority. They are not only accepted by the chain of command in BOI/PR, but rewarded with illegitimate promotions. I am quickly learning why it is so common to hear so many locals in BOI/PR talk down about the military, and I just wish there was something I could do to change it. Hopefully with your help something can be done to change it. The tendency among the AGR's is to squirt a bit of oil on the squeaky wheels such as myself in order to quiet it down, only to resume pushing the cart through the mud puddle. Perhaps the problem is not the wheel, but the individual pushing the cart.

Hello General … I talked to BOI BOI today who called our office to try and get some help with a position he had applied for last year that he did not receive and feels he has been discriminated against. I know there is always another side to the story, but I would like this looked into given his allegation that the person who was put into the position was "having sex on duty with a supervisor."

BOI let me know that before he applied for the position (BOI), he had talked with Col. Bailey and Col. Wilbanks as he knew he was older than the requirements. He was told by both of these people that waivers are issued all the time for age requirements and if he was qualified for the position, it could be waived. And Col. Bailey told him if he was the number one or two pick, Col. Bailey would fight for an age waiver for him.

BOI tells me he was the first pick for the position; his PT scores were better than all other applicants; has excelled at everything he has done; and feels he deserved to be put into the position.

The reason he was given for not getting the position was that he was too old. He states that not getting this position "crushed him" and for the first time in his life he actually felt old. He has moved on from this but he still does not feel it was right, and given what has come out about how the Guard leadership has acted in some cases, he felt he should inquire to see if someone higher up could look into this position and the decisions that were made into who received the promotion.

General – please take a look at this case and provide a briefing to Mike and I on the circumstances of this particular case.

I also want to be sure that BOI is not discouraged from talking with us about this issue, and not treated unfairly because he did talk with us.

Thanks – and don't hesitate to let me know if you have questions.

Hi Cindy,

Apologize on not being able to attend event this morning, hope it went well. Mike and I met with reporter Jill Burke this morning and meeting local news this afternoon.

Can you confirm if 3:30 tomorrow afternoon works again at your office for the weekly update?

Let us know if that works so we can schedule around it.

Thanks.

Your recent decision to reinstate BG Jorgensen is extremely damaging to the organization. She has perpetuated a toxic and psychologically damaging environment in our organization. She has singlehandedly orchestrated and covered up many of he agregous offenses that have taken place in the organization at least since 2006. You are continuing to cause real damage by leaving her in command. Additionally she supports two other commanders, LTC schell and COL streff who have assisted Her in covering up sexual assault and fraud. Why am I writing this anonymously if I have knowledge of this? It is because I am still a member of a once great organization and have personal endured reprisal from BG Jorgensen. I extend this pl ea for help to you and hope that although anonymous, you take it quite seriously. Thank you for what you have done thus far but we are far from becoming an honest organization again.

I chatted with her some at the end of last week. Everybody's playing it by ear for the moment, but I thought it makes the most sense for her to keep the routine DMVA correspondence she's been dealing with outside of the investigations, and she is likely able to best support Jay with the casework you'll be transferring as well. She can have Rachel print items for him, keep lists of who needs to be called or responded to, and manage the CRM part.

Don't know if we can reasonably expect Tara to keep up with you, the Governor, and Jay all at the same time. ☺

Hello Chris and Jon … I have copied Jay Pullins on this email to introduce you each to him. Although I will still be working with you both, Jay will be joining our team and integrating into the work we're doing with our Alaska National Guard. Don't hesitate to contact him through our office at 907.269.7450, and you both know my cell number and how to reach me as well.

Jon … It would be good for Jay to sit in on your meetings with the teams to hear the updates, if that's possible. And, of course, to get the weekly updates from you.

Thanks,

Cindy

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE No. 14-168

Jay Pullins Named as Special Assistant for DMVA Issues

October 6, 2014, Anchorage, Alaska – Governor Sean Parnell today announced retired Lieutenant Colonel Jay Pullins will represent the Office of the Governor on the review team established to implement recommendations from the National Guard Bureau's Office of Complex Investigations. Pullins will serve as the special assistant to the governor handling issues relating to the Department of Military and Veterans Affairs.

"I have known Jay for many years and appreciate his willingness to serve in this capacity to help restore trust in the Guard leadership," Governor Parnell said. "I am deeply committed to restoring a command structure that leads not only to operational success in the field, but to an even-handed, fair, and just internal structure."

Brigadier General Jon K. Mott, the assistant adjutant general for the Connecticut National Guard, is leading separate collaborative working groups in the Alaska National Guard around implementing each major recommendation in the OCI report, including sexual assault and misconduct, equal opportunity and equal employment opportunity, coordination with law enforcement, management of misconduct, command climate, and administration of justice.

Pullins, 47, served for 26 years in the U.S. Air Force and the Alaska National Guard, before retiring in 2011. He was the director of the Joint Operations Center at Fort Richardson, where he was responsible for Alaska National Guard's ability to support command and control of assigned forces during domestic emergencies.

Pullins also served as the flight commander for the Alaska NORAD Region. While in the Alaska National Guard, Pullins served as chief of staff for then-Lieutenant Governor Sean Parnell. He most recently worked as a pastor at ChangePoint Church in Anchorage. Pullins earned a bachelor's degree in political science from the Air Force Academy and a master's degree in adult education from the University of Oklahoma.

BOI/PR

Dear Governor Parnell,

Sir, I am writing on behalf of the alleged pending resignation of one of Alaska's Army National Guard leaders: Brigadier General Catherine Jorgensen.

I was the BOI/PR and I was appointed by then COL Catherine Jorgensen. I had known her before as she was one of the few Alaska Military Leaders to visit us when my Battalion, BOI/PR, was deployed to BOI/PR. In working with her on the BOI/PR I was directed by her to BOI/PR. At the time, as a BOI/PR, I had never worked with either such a high ranking officer or in such an official investigation. It was her guidance and confidence in me that allowed me to uncover some unsettling relationships and lack of leadership, or at worst-leadership that participated in events that undermined their integrity and their Soldier's trust in them, for the Soldiers tasked with protecting US airspace.

I deployed BOI/PR and the support of my Company's deployment readiness was disregarded under the Command of BG Leon Bridges, his G-3 COL Joseph Lawendowski, and BOI/PR BOI/PR. BG Bridges's only contribution to my Company's deployment was an uncalled for ass-chewing of my Soldiers just prior to deploying to BOI/PR that was misinformed and demoralizing to my Soldiers. At no time during our deployment did a Senior Leader in the Alaska Arm y National Guard come to visit us in theater, we ended up being the only unit that didn't have their leadership visit, and I believe this lack of interest in the health and well-being of your Troops is not reflective of positive leadership.

When I returned from my deployment I had a host of medical problems that needed to be addressed as I had deferred them until after I had successfully brought my Company home. I am BOI/PR. I have spent over 500 hours of my own time pursuing treatment for these injuries and in asking for help from the Guard, by receiving credit for drill due to the time spent attending my medical appointments for injuries sustained during the deployment, I was ignored. The only Senior Leader that has contacted me as I recover and seek help is BG Catherine Jorgensen.

I believe that true leadership occurs when nobody is watching and from what I've seen of BG Jorgensen she does the right thing for Soldiers regardless of if it is going to get her face in the paper or provide her with public notoriety. I can speak from personal experience that she was the only Leader that asked me what I needed and if I was okay as I struggle to regain my health. I have been through a tremendous personal financial burden and it has been all that I can do to hang onto my job while I try to recover.
Having a General call you up personally and ask if you're okay and if there is anything that can be done to help me recover made me feel like I wasn't alone and that somebody cared.

I guess what I'm asking Sir is that consideration be given to the sum of the feedback you're getting from the Guard. I believe it is a mistake to put General Bridges in charge as he isn't respected by the Leadership that serves under him or the Soldiers that work for him. I believe that BG Jorgensen, both as a female Soldier and a leader of integrity, will be an asset to the Guard for years to come and her leadership will be wise, her decisions swift and fair, and the Guard will recover from the rot that has been growing in it's upper ranks.

I don't envy you the difficult job of trying to sort the wheat from the chaff but if there was a survey of junior Leaders, BOI/PR I think you'd be surprised at the discrepancy between what is being reported in the papers and what the Company Commander's and Battalion Commander's are laboring with to try and provide a professional, military environment with meaningful training under Senior Leadership with their own agendas and a top tier of names in Senior positions of leadership that never changes. The corruption in the Guard is related to the amount of money people make in these positions and what they will do to hold onto their jobs.

I offer my opinion as I am exciting the Guard, more than likely under a medical retirement, and while I'm going to miss the Soldiers I've grown to love as family I will not miss seeing the demoralization amongst the Junior Enlisted Soldiers and Officers brought about by disengaged Senior Leaders that have disregarded the need of the Soldiers to feel that they have purpose in their service and that don't support meaningful training or attend to the fostering of the professional growth of their Soldiers. Too many junior leaders BOI/PR have left because the military values that are ingrained in us are not reflected by our leadership and continued service in the Alaska Army National Guard placed you in a compromising position of abandoning your morality or risking rejection by not giving in to immoral and selfish leaders.

Respectfully,

BOI/PR

Good morning Gentlemen …

I wanted to connect you all with our new Special Assistant for DMVA issues – Jay Pullins. Some of you may remember Jay from his days with the Alaska National Guard, or from his time with the Lt. Governor's Office (when the Governor was LG). I know General Bridges was in with the Chief of Staff yesterday and I believe introductions were made, but I just wanted to be sure you all knew that Jay had joined our team and will be working with you all.

Jay will be our liaison with all things DMVA so please make sure he is aware of any pertinent meetings he should attend, directors meetings, and I would also like him to sit in on the meetings with General Mott's teams as we work through implementation of the OCI recommendations.

Let Mike Nizich or I know if you have any questions. Thanks!

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE No. 14-168

Jay Pullins Named as Special Assistant for DMVA Issues

October 6, 2014, Anchorage, Alaska – Governor Sean Parnell today announced retired Lieutenant Colonel Jay Pullins will represent the Office of the Governor on the review team established to implement recommendations from the National Guard Bureau's Office of Complex Investigations. Pullins will serve as the special assistant to the governor handling issues relating to the Department of Military and Veterans Affairs.

"I have known Jay for many years and appreciate his willingness to serve in this capacity to help restore trust in the Guard leadership," Governor Parnell said. "I am deeply committed to restoring a command structure that leads not only to operational success in the field, but to an even-handed, fair, and just internal structure."

Brigadier General Jon K. Mott, the assistant adjutant general for the Connecticut National Guard, is leading separate collaborative working groups in the Alaska National Guard around implementing each major recommendation in the OCI report, including sexual assault and misconduct, equal opportunity and equal employment opportunity, coordination with law enforcement, management of misconduct, command climate, and administration of justice.

Pullins, 47, served for 26 years in the U.S. Air Force and the Alaska National Guard, before retiring in 2011. He was the director of the Joint Operations Center at Fort Richardson, where he was responsible for Alaska National Guard's ability to support command and control of assigned forces during domestic emergencies.

Pullins also served as the flight commander for the Alaska NORAD Region. While in the Alaska National Guard, Pullins served as chief of staff for then-Lieutenant Governor Sean Parnell. He most recently worked as a pastor at ChangePoint Church in Anchorage. Pullins earned a bachelor's degree in political science from the Air Force Academy and a master's degree in adult education from the University of Oklahoma.

Here are the primary responses to his key issues, provided by Legal and Inspector General respectively:

- BOI / PR / FPA was convinced that his wife was sexually assaulted by BOI / PR / FPA. A Separation Board was conducted and BOI / PR / FPA was separated by the board. It was later determined that the sexual contact was consensual. BOI / PR / FPA has over B... but less than B... years of service and therefore he has additional due process as contained in AR 135-178. The Head Quarters Department Army (HQDA) must process the separation. The separation action was held up as the former TAG was hesitant to send the documents forward for separation action. We sent the document to HQDA over BOI / P... ago, and have received corrections which were made in BOI... and resubmitted in Mid to late BOI... . It can take several months for HQDA to process these sanctuary separations as there is heightened scrutiny by the Army. HQDA could make a finding that the Soldier be retained by the AKARNG. Until the Soldier is completely separated by HQDA, he is required to come to drill. BOI / PR / FPA was removed from his BOI / PR / FPA status in BOI / PR / FPA as a result of the board. We must now be patient. We recently also received a Trooper Report wherein the wife withdrew her allegation of sexual assault.

- He was paid his $5000 bonus, after taxes and a deduction for SSLI $3729.01 was deposited on BOI/PR/FPA.

Hello General … Another Guard member who I talked with today – BOI/PR – has written our office and then I spoke with him today. I've included his original email below, which is lengthy but it describes the issues of concern he's raising.

I would like to know the status of BOI/PR and why if the separation board recommended back in BOI/PR that he was to be removed from the Alaska National Guard – he is still in place, working in uniform. Also, was there a recommendation for a dishonorable discharge – or what was the exact recommendation; and why has there been so much delay?

Again, I do not want anyone taking negative action toward BOI/PR for coming forward to talk with our office.

Thank you,

Cindy

BOI/PR, AK BOI/PR

I have served my country for the past BOI/PR years, the first BOI/PR as an active duty soldier based at BOI/PR, and the last BOI/PR as an Alaska Army National Guardsman based out of BOI/PR. Over these past BOI/PR years, I have not only been through, but excelled through countless trials and tribulations the vast populous can never begin to imagine. I completed one tour in BOI... in BOI/PR, where I saw my brethren permanently scarred and disfigured. I completed some of the Army's toughest, most demanding training in some of the harshest climates. I missed my first-born child's first birthday. My knees cause me constant pain from the countless miles of running and ruck marching. My left hip pops every time I move it, causing pain from the IED (improvised explosive device) that bashed my left side against the truck I was riding in. My ears constantly ring, causing seriously degraded hearing from all the rounds, not only that I have fired, but also the ones cracking over my head, because fortunately the insurgent sniper was not as good a shot as he thought.

All that said, if you were to ask me if I would do it over again, my answer, without hesitation would be an emphatic "I absolutely would!" because I have also had countless life-altering positive accomplishments. I will forever have the pride and satisfaction that I voluntarily stood up to serve my country in a time of war on multiple fronts and survived. I have gotten to travel the world, even if most of the places I have been were desolate wastelands. I have made bonds with friends, brothers that no number of miles can break. I have learned skills so few people get the opportunity to see first-hand let alone master. I have seen the stuff movies are made of. I have felt the concussion of explosions, both friendly and enemy, and I will forever know that almost child-like excitement that comes with it.

Unfortunately the past year and a half of my military career has brought a sour note to my service, not because of my own misdeeds, but those of others. About BOI/... years ago, I decided to change my MOS (military occupational specialty) from BOI/PR to

BOI/PR. When I did, my new supervisor became BOI/PR. It became obvious early on that we seemingly had a lot in common. We were both BOI/PR, and both had an "old-military" mentality of accountability and integrity above all else. I flourished in my new role as a BOI/PR, and established myself as the non-commissioned officer best suited to take over the role of BOI/PR when my supervisor went to a d ifferent position in the unit. In BOI/PR I was in BOI/PR completing the necessary training for my new MOS when rumors started flying that my wife was supposedly having an inappropriate relationship with

the rumors. I reported it to BOI/PR, and he quickly put the blame for the rumors on the wife of another NCO in my section and dismissed it as purely rumors based on jealousy because I was going to take over as BOI/PR

. That NCO and his family had, until then, been very close with my family and I, and after learning of BOI/PR's findings, we regrettably had a falling out, keeping our relationship strictly professional. I returned from BOI/..., got promoted, and became the

BOI/PR.

Fast forward to BOI/PR at our annual training in BOI/PR. While my section and I were up at our observation point for three days doing a live fire exercise, I had an opportunity to have a serious talk with the NCO mentioned earlier regarding what had happened back in BOI/PR. He told me that there was a lot more that my wife was not telling me, and that it had been bothering him since our falling out. He told me he could no longer keep the information he had to himself. He told me they had screen shots of text message conversations between my wife and his wife, where my wife detailed some of the things BOI/PR had been saying and doing behind my back. He was hesitant to give me specific details, for fear of reviving prior conflicts, but told me that I should have a serious conversation with my wife.

When I got home I finally convinced my wife to come clean and tell me what she had been hiding from me for so long. She told me he had done things ranging from excessive complimenting to inappropriate touching, all the way up to pressuring my wife into telling him she loved him. He would regularly tell her things like "You look smoking hot." and "I only used BOI/PR to get close to you." and "If you stick with me, I will make sure your husband flies through the ranks." She told me he was constantly sending her text messages and would not stop. She told me that he had pressured her into telling him she loved him. She told me the only reason she hadn't told me sooner was because he used his rank and position to intimidate her and held my promotion over her head.

I got on my cell phone provider's website to substantiate what my wife had told me. I found that several months had hundreds, and sometimes thousands of text messages between BOI/PR and my wife. Most specifically, the month of BOI/PR, when I was in BOI/PR

he obviously took advantage of my absence, sending and receiving over 5,000 text messages. There were also phone conversations, many of which were longer conversations than my wife and I typically have on the phone. I took all of what I had found to my commander and first sergeant, and they both immediately said it required serious action.

They sent it up the chain of command, until it got to the brigade commander, then BOI/PR. He assigned a special investigating officer, BOI/PR, who was to come to BOI/PR to investigate the allegations, not only of BOI/PR's actions towards my wife, but other disturbing offenses committed towards female soldiers and inappropriate activities conducted in the BOI/PR armory after business hours.

BOI/PR came to BOI/PR in mid-June and conducted his investigation, interviewing several critical witnesses. The brigade commander decided it warranted further investigation and he briefed the state commander, Brigadier General Mike Bridges and the state command sergeant major, Command Sergeant Major Pam Harrington. He submitted his recommendation for BOI/PR's removal from the AGR program and a TDY move to Anchorage for separation proceedings. Throughout this process my wife and I were promised by my squadron commander, BOI/PR, the brigade commander, then-BOI/PR, and the state SARC (Sexual Assault Response Coordinator) Octavia Thompson that we would be kept updated on the case and how it was proceeding.

For the next two and a half to three months, we heard nothing other than "JAG is reviewing the case before they proceed". Finally, in late BOI/PR, along with my Command Sergeant Major and First Sergeant, briefed me that BOI/PR would be going TDY to Anchorage very soon for the remainder of the investigation. Nearly a month and a half later, we had heard nothing from anyone regarding the case. I confronted my commander, BOI/PR and my First Sergeant,

BOI/PR, regarding the broken promise of being kept in the loop and the lack of communication. They told me that he was being processed for discharge, but that nothing had changed. I expressed to them that if that was in fact the case, then a two minute

phone call to the victim should be pretty easy, at least to let her know that it was still on-going and that the unit had not forgotten their promise to her. My commander, BOI/PR called my wife that evening and apologized for the break-down in communication and gave her the same, limited information he had given me earlier that day.

Almost exactly one month later, I was advised that BOI/PR would be in town for the week of BOI/PR in order to sign items over to another leader. That weekend I found out from a subordinate soldier, who was not even part of the investigation, that

BOI/PR had expressed to him that he had been going to mental health, and that the doctor "thought there might be something wrong" with him, and that they were allegedly going to prescribe him medication. The following Monday I asked my First Sergeant if he knew about the c onversation. He said he knew nothing about it. I raised the point that it had already come out that BOI/PR had previously threatened the other NCO involved in the investigation for questioning him regarding his conduct with the wives of soldiers, and how that information coupled with the new information of BOI/PR seeing a mental health professional raised serious safety and security concerns with not only myself and my family, but the other NCO involved and his family. My family and

I recently moved to BOI/PR, and have opted not to give the unit our new address for safety and security reasons, however BOI/PR knows where the other NCO lives. Coincidentally, the week BOI/PR was in town, someone falsely accused the other NCO involved in the investigation of involvement in a hit-and-run. Fortunately, the other NCO was at work, furthermore, the vehicle he was allegedly driving, as described by the other driver with vehicle description, plate number, and driver de scription (mid-day, while he was at work) had been sitting at his house and had not been moved for a week, as he was on call with his civilian employer, therefore his personal vehicle was covered in snow and had no fresh tracks showing movement.

We are in the seventh month since this investigation began, and we still have gotten very little information, the case is moving at a snail's pace, and quite frankly, my family lives in fear and shame for what has happened and what could potentially happen

if BOI/PR were to decide he wanted vengeance for my wife coming forward. We had filed for a restraining order early on, however, despite the mountain of evidence we presented to the magistrate, compared to BOI/PR's blank legal pad and the response of "I cannot refute the allegations, I am simply here to find out the terms of the restraining order." the magistrate somehow determined there was "not enough evidence to warrant a restraining order". My wife used to frequently go to the armory, volunteering her time to help coordinate family programs and unit morale events such as last year's unit Christmas party. Now she has sworn off the National Guard, and wants nothing to do with the unit. She no longer even supports me being in the National Guard, but endures

my monthly duty because she knows it is a commitment I made.

Speaking of commitments, jumping back to BOI/PR, shortly before going to my training in BOI/PR, I extended my contract for an additional BOI/PR in order to be eligible to attend my training. Shortly after arriving in BOI/PR, the unit retention NCO contacted me and notified me there was a mistake on my contract, and that we needed to re-do it right away. I gave him the FAX number where he could send the new contract, and told him as soon as he sent it, I would sign it and send it back. The following day, I went to receive the FAX, and found he had never sent it. I contacted the retention NCO, and he said that his higher-ups said it could wait until I returned in early BOI/PR. When I returned, I immediately made contact with him to re-do my contract and he said he would get it taken care of and let me know when it was ready. This went on for several months, until we were just a few months away from my original ETS (Estimated Time of Separation), when I told my chain of command I was worried that it would not get done before my ETS, and that I would have no choice but to ETS because the contract was null and void. I also learned that the retention NCO failed to do the incentive contract he had promised, saying I would be paid a $10,000 incentive for my extension of

BOI/PR.

My ETS was originally in BOI/PR. By BOI/PR the unit finally started digging into what needed to be done, and found that someone had already mistakenly put the contract into the system, and that I was stuck with it, and would not get an incentive bonus. Our personnel NCOIC, BOI/PR went to great lengths researching regulation and policy to find a solution. He was finally able to find a solution that would result in the modification of the contract I signed in the BOI/PR, and I would then be able to sign a new contract, to include an incentive bonus contract. My ETS was adjusted to BOI/PR, and at the end of the last week of BOI/PR they finalized the new contract, this time extending for BOI/PR for an incentive bonus of $5,000. I was informed that the bonus would begin processing the day after my ETS, which was BOI/PR, and that it would take roughly 30 to 45 days to be deposited into my account. Well, we all know what happened with the government shut-down on BOI/PR, and obviously it delayed my incentive.

At the beginning of BOI/PR, when I spoke to my commander and first sergeant regarding the lack of communication about my wife's case, I also asked about my bonus, as it had been a month and I had heard no information about the status or timeline of my bonus.

They told me it was at PEC and NGB in Washington D.C. and that it should be deposited within a couple of weeks. A month later, and in true keeping of my unit's style, with no follow-up or communication as promised, I asked again, about my bonus. Three days later, I received a phone call from my commander stating that my bonus was still at PEC and NGB being reviewed. I am obviously getting nowhere with my unit, so I have decided to reach out to you. I truly hope that you can help me sort out what is going on with my bonus, and perhaps gain more ground than my unit is willing to attempt.

Description: PressBanner_vSeanParnell-WEB

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE No. 14-168

Jay Pullins Named as Special Assistant for DMVA Issues

October 6, 2014, Anchorage, Alaska - Governor Sean Parnell today announced retired Lieutenant Colonel Jay Pullins will represent the Office of the Governor on the review team established to implement recommendations from the National Guard Bureau's Office of Complex Investigations. Pullins will serve as the special assistant to the governor handling issues relating to the Department of Military and Veterans Affairs.

"I have known Jay for many years and appreciate his willingness to serve in this capacity to help restore trust in the Guard leadership," Governor Parnell said. "I am deeply committed to restoring a command structure that leads not only to operational success in the field, but to an even-handed, fair, and just internal structure."

Brigadier General Jon K. Mott, the assistant adjutant general for the Connecticut National Guard, is leading separate collaborative working groups in the Alaska National Guard around implementing each major recommendation in the OCI report, including sexual assault and misconduct, equal opportunity and equal employment opportunity, coordination with law enforcement, management of misconduct, command climate, and administration of justice.

Pullins, 47, served for 26 years in the U.S. Air Force and the Alaska National Guard, before retiring in 2011. He was the director of the Joint Operations Center at Fort Richardson, where he was responsible for Alaska National Guard's ability to support command and control of assigned forces during domestic emergencies.

Pullins also served as the flight commander for the Alaska NORAD Region. While in the Alaska National Guard, Pullins served as chief of staff for then-Lieutenant Governor Sean Parnell. He most recently worked as a pastor at ChangePoint Church in Anchorage. Pullins earned a bachelor's degree in political science from the Air Force Academy and a master's degree in adult education from the University of Oklahoma.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE No. 14-168

Jay Pullins Named as Special Assistant for DMVA Issues

October 6, 2014, Anchorage, Alaska - Governor Sean Parnell today announced retired Lieutenant Colonel Jay Pullins will represent the Office of the Governor on the review team established to implement recommendations from the National Guard Bureau's Office of Complex Investigations. Pullins will serve as the special assistant to the governor handling issues relating to the Department of Military and Veterans Affairs.

"I have known Jay for many years and appreciate his willingness to serve in this capacity to help restore trust in the Guard leadership," Governor Parnell said. "I am deeply committed to restoring a command structure that leads not only to operational success in the field, but to an even-handed, fair, and just internal structure."

Brigadier General Jon K. Mott, the assistant adjutant general for the Connecticut National Guard, is leading separate collaborative working groups in the Alaska National Guard around implementing each major recommendation in the OCI report, including sexual assault and misconduct, equal opportunity and equal employment opportunity, coordination with law enforcement, management of misconduct, command climate, and administration of justice.

Pullins, 47, served for 26 years in the U.S. Air Force and the Alaska National Guard, before retiring in 2011. He was the director of the Joint Operations Center at Fort Richardson, where he was responsible for Alaska National Guard's ability to support command and control of assigned forces during domestic emergencies.

Pullins also served as the flight commander for the Alaska NORAD Region. While in the Alaska National Guard, Pullins served as chief of staff for then-Lieutenant Governor Sean Parnell. He most recently worked as a pastor at ChangePoint Church in Anchorage. Pullins earned a bachelor's degree in political science from the Air Force Academy and a master's degree in adult education from the University of Oklahoma.

Attn: Cindy Sims

Dear Governor Parnell,

This letter is in response to your October 3, 2014 inquiry into the issues BOI/PR/FPA BOI/PR/FPA raised to your office regarding his non-selection for a commissioning opportunity in the BOI/PR/FPA and his concerns about an on duty sexual relationship between the selectee and a supervisor. The second concern is very serious, I directed the 176th Wing to conduct a Command Directed Investigation (CDI) into the matter, and if substantiated take appropriate action. That matter does not have any bearing on the fact that, unfortunately, BOI/PR/FPA exceeds the maximum waiver age of 35 up to 40 years for commissioning under Air Force Policy.

Commissioning in the Air National Guard is governed by Air Force Instruction 36-2005 which states that line officers commissioned in the grade of Second Lieutenant must be commissioned by their 35th Birthday. The Air National Guard (ANG) recruiting services issued a program guidance memorandum, PGM-21-A1YO, on 13 Jan 2012 which outlined a new nationwide program to inform and prequalify potential officer candidates. They followed up with, "Air Force Enlisted Guide to Become an Officer in the Air National Guard," on 12 April 2012. The guide states that, "Initial non-rated (non flying) line applicants must be commissioned prior to their 35th Birthday. Exception to Policy (ETP) for nonrated personnel can be requested for applicants with prior service if the applicant is commissioned prior to his 40th birthday."

I am sorry that BOI/PR/FPA is unable to receive a commission as a line officer, and I know that he is an asset to the Non-Commissioned Officer corps. I expect a report from the 176th WG's CDI when complete as described in the enclosed memorandum, and will provide you with additional detail then. Please contact me at (907)428-6075, if you need further assistance on this matter.

FROM: 176 WG/CV

SUBJECT: TAG Inquiry - BOI/PR/FPA

1. Sir, attached is our first response and research into BOI/PR/FPA 's age waiver, along with a copy of the initial congressional inquiry. The Air Force Instructions and guidance have not changed. On the initial inquiry, National Guard Bureau stated in the past ten years they have only seen three cases approved for personnel going to commissioning school after their 40th birthday. Those three individuals were exceptional cases with extenuating circumstances, which required Secretary of the Air Force approval, all other requests were disapproved. BOI/PR/FPA 's situation did not appear to be an exceptional case with extenuating circumstances. What is different in this inquiry is BOI/PR/FPA alleges the person who was put into the position "was having sex on duty with a supervisor." This information was not provided to us in the congressional inquiry from Senator Murkowski's office on September 19, 2013. This is a separate issue and does not change the results of BOI/PR/FPA 's age waiver request.

2. On October 5, 2014, BOI/PR/FPA was asked to provide details of the allegation of the person having sex on duty with her supervisor. BOI/PR/FPA gave a written statement stating he does not know if the allegation is true. BOI/PR/FPA stated he heard it from an unnamed First Sergeant, whom he feels is a reliable source within the wing. During the interview, BOI/PR/FPA refused to say who had the alleged sexual relationship and declined to name the First Sergeant in the wing who told him this information. BOI/PR/FPA stated this unnamed First Sergeant did not tell him a name of the person having a sexual relationship, but told him the person having an alleged sexual relationship with her supervisor was the number two pick on the order of merit list for the position he applied for. BOI/PR/... BOI/PR/FPA stated he submitted information to Mr. Kaplan in Senator Murkowski's office in his congressional inquiry. During this interview, BOI/PR/FPA stated he was not making an allegation of (sexual) misconduct, but merely passing on what he was told by this unnamed First Sergeant, because he felt officers or officer candidates should be held to a high moral standard.

3. We take allegations of sexual misconduct and/or unprofessional relationships very seriously; someone having sex with their supervisor while on duty is a very serious allegation. BOI/PR/F... BOI/PR/FPA s statements indicates he has no direct knowledge of whether these allegations occurred. will not disclose who the First Sergeant or the person he believes is reliable source told him this information and further states he is not making an allegation of misconduct. Even with this limited information, due to the seriousness of the allegation, we plan on conducting a command directed investigation into the matter. This investigation may take at least two months, due to the some of the alleged parties may be Drill Status Guardsmen and normally drill a weekend a month. If this allegation is substantiated, we will inform you.

4. Please let us know if we can be of further assistance on this matter.

Mr Kaplan,

There is a waiver process available to me. My recent commander had an age waiver, and BOI/PR in maintenance received a waiver. They call it an exception to policy, and it would have to be filled out by the 176th BOI/PR After words, I was told later by BOI/PR that I need to have been commissioned by age 40, where I saw on the Air National Guard Officer website says, "Those interested n joining the Air Guard who have previously served are required to be able to complete 20 years serv ce time (combined, Active and participating Guard or Reserve) before the age of 60. For example, a person serving 4 years active duty and serving in a reserve component for 3 years is eligible to join up to their 47th birthday." I was 8 years active duty Air Force and around 8 years Air National Guard. I should have been told, ahead of time, that I was not eligible to become an officer due to my age. I was not, and that was not in the posting requirements.

I attached my privacy release and I really hope Lisa Murkowski's office could help me. This was a dream of mine to become an officer, and it was shattered.

I received the message you sent to Senator Murkowski's web site regarding the age issue you are running up against with your attempt to be an commissioned officer in the Alaska Air National Guard.

Is there a waiver process available to you? Why were you not told of the age requirement before you went through the whole testing process? How did you find out about the age requirement?

I have attached our privacy release form you would need to complete if we are able to assist you with the National Guard Bureau.

I will be standing by to help.

I turned in my packet, and participated in an oral board, where I beat out everyone, including a Captain for the position.

My packet was sent up to BOI/PR and the National Guard level, and was turned down because of my age (44 years old). Not that I was the first pick or the highest qualified to be a leader, but by my age.

Is there anything you could do to help me attain my dream to become an officer in the Air National Guard?

Dear Major General Katkus:

Enclosed is a letter from my constituent, BOI/PR, who serves in the Alaska Air National Guard. BOI/PR wrote that he expressed interest in becoming an officer, but was aware that he exceeded the age requirement. BOI/PR was told to go through the process and if he finishes high enough, command would fight for his age waiver. BOI/PR stated he had the highest score, but the command could not do a waiver for his age. BOI/PR is requesting reconsideration for a waiver with the Secretary of the Air Force.

I would appreciate it if your office could review and respond to BOI/PR's letter and request. Please send your response to my Anchorage office attention: Greg Kaplan.

Thank you for your attention on this matter.

Dear Senator Lisa Murkowski:

I request your assistance in resolving the problem I am having with (agency) The Alaska Air National Guard.

Give highlights, necessary dates and locations. Attach second sheet if necessary. Around 8/12/2013 I met with BOI/PR Alaska Air National Guard, and explained my interest in becoming an officer in the Air National Guard. I explained my qualifications and told him that I was 44 years old, but in great shape. I explained that I scored a 97.34% in my PT test scores. BOI/PR told me if I was #1 or #2, he would "Fight for my age waiver." I turned in my officer packet, and boarded on BOI/PR in front of three officers, and a Senior Master Sergeant. On 9/13/2013 I was contacted by BOI/PR who stated that I won, but I lost. He explained that I was the boards first pick and I even beat a Captain with operational experience for the officer position. BOI/PR sent up my packet to the Alaska Air National Guard Bureau, and they sent it back down saying I was too old. They said they could not do an age waiver. BOI/PR stated that he sent it up higher, and they said I was too old. BOI/PR stated that he was told he could ask the Secretary of the Air Force, and that when he gave up. Alaska National Guard, PO Box 5800, Building 49000

SUBJECT: TAG Inquiry - BOI/PR/FPA

1. Sir, in resoonse to your inquiry regarding BOI/PR/FPA research has been conducted to reconsider submitting an age waiver package for a prior service member who is over 40 years old to the Secretary of the Air Force. However, after doing the preliminary ground work, which included researching the Air Force Instructions (AFIs), reviewing the hiring proeess, reviewing historical age waivers and contaeting the National Guard Bureau (NGB): at this time. the wing does not support endorsing an age waiver paekage for a prior service member for a line officer commissioning opportunity who is over 40 years old for the below reasons.

2. After contacting NGB, NGB stated since 2003 only three packages for members over 40 have been sent to the Secretary of the Air Force for approval and those were exceptional cases with extenuating circumstances. Extenuating circumstances are inferred to as eircumstances beyond the member's control, such as an unforeseen family emergency or medical condition which interfered or prevented attendance to the commissioning school. NGB further stated it was a 'high possibility' that an age waiver for someone over 40 'would be disapproved.' BOI/PR/FPA does not appear to fit into the extenuating circumstances category.

3. After further research, NGB has a policy, still in effect, for Air National Guard commissioning for line officers. The policy states: "Prior service applicants will be eonsidered and must be commissioned prior to their 40th birthday. For each year the applieant exceeds age 35, the applicant must have equivalent years of prior enlist service. Age waivers beyond age 40 will not be considered."

4. The wing has been following AFI 36-2005, Appointment in Commissioned Grades and Designation and Assignment in Professional Categories – Reserve of the Air Force and United States Air Force, with regards to age waivers for commissioning officers. In regards to commissioning a prior service member for a line officer position the AFI states: "The agencies below may not grant age waivers for appointment in the grade of second lieutenant beyond age 35. In the most unusual cases or the extraordinary qualifications of the individual, they may grant an age waiver for appointment in the grade of first lieutenant or higher. Waivers will not exceed the maximum age limit by more than 3 years." In the past four years, the 176th Wing has submitted and received approval on three age waivers for initial eommissioning of line officers; all three candidates were under 38 years old, including the one BOI/PR/FPA mentions in his letter, which all met the AFI guidance of waivers will not exceed the maximum age limit by more than 3 years. In the past four years, there was a top scoring candidate who was over 40 years old, and the wing did not support an age waiver for that applicant.

5. NGB has also given guidance in that "Commanders must carefully weigh the needs of both their units and the Air National Guard when considering highly qualified age waiver candidates for commissioning. Waiver requests must be fully justified and supported." The selecting commander did not prescreen any applicants and all were encouraged to apply. The selecting commander's intent was to interview all applicants, rack all the applicants in an order of merit list, give the list to the Recruiters to determine eligibility for commissioning. There were several applicants who interviewed for th[BOI/PR/FPA] position. During the interview process, each of the applicants was given notice and read the following statement: "The commander will review the board results and based on force structure management, present the top candidates to the ANG recruiters. The recruiters will then work with the top candidates to determine eligibility for commissioned service in the ANG." Once the interview process was over and an order of merit list established, the selecting Commander did advocate for an age waiver. There are several layers of endorsement needed before going to NGB which the selecting commander has little control over, such as approval by his commander, the wing commander, the Assistant Adjutant General, The Adjutant General and the Air National Guard. In this case based on the AFI and NGB guidance, there does not appear to be a most unusual case, extraordinary qualifications, or extenuating circumstances to justify and support an applicant who is over 40 years old when there are several other applicants who are qualified to fill the position.

6. Please let us know if we can be of further assistance on this matter.

Dear Governor Sean Parnell,

My name is BOI/PR/LE, I'm B... years old and I live in Anchorage, Alaska. I'm hoping that you would be able to help me. I am a victim of rape and sexual assault from an active military member of the Air Force, BOI/PR/LE who just so happens to be BOI/PR/LE. This incident occurred BOI/PR/LE when I was blacked out from alcohol BOI/PR. During the investigation process, BOI/PR/LE. My case was brought to court marshal, which is the militar y court. BOI/PR/LE The case had enough evidence and even the prosecutor thought that he would be found guilty. The judge read the verdict not guilty on all charges and it surprised everyone in the room. The Air Force let him get away with everything that he did to me. There was no justice served and no consequences for his actions towards me, a civilian. It was hard to come forward as a victim, to be poked and prodded during the rape kit, to collect evidence, to make sure I wasn't pregnant, and to make sure I had no sexually transmitted diseases, to stand there naked having pictures taken of my bruises and my swollen vagina. BOI/PR/LE waiting for that test to come back for weeks was emotionally draining. It was difficult to talk about what he did to me with nurses, doctors, investigators, counselors, advocates, and the legal staff that was going to prosecute the case, let alone family and friends. The investigation wasn't an easy process, along with all the triggers and flashbacks that I have to deal with on a daily basis and get counseling for, and the countless interviews that provoked them. What he did to me, BOI/PR/LE. The trial started BOI/PR/LE and lasted until the verdict was read on BOI/PR/LE. I don't believe that I got a fair trial because BOI/PR/LE. It was an Air Force prosecutor against an Air Force defense attorney, with an Air Force judge. I came forward because I couldn't live with the fact that if I didn't speak up that he could do it again to another woman BOI/PR/LE. I told the whole truth on the stand, while the defense created lies and he walked away without any consequences. I believe that regardless of there being alcohol involved, "no" means no, BOI/PR/LE No one deserves what he did to me. It was a traumatic experience for me and I got absolutely nothing from doing the right thing and coming forward.

I am writing you in the hope that you would be able to help me seek justice in any form. I know now exactly why women don't come forward because it is devastating process to go through, but it's even more devastating to put yourself through for absolutely nothing.
Due to the fact the verdict was read by the Airforce judge there can be no more criminal charges against him with the rape and sexual assault, which isn't fair to have quick judgment in a case like this. We are currently trying to find another avenue to try him in a civilian court where I would be fairly represented, through Anchorage Police Department. However, t here is a slim chance due to jurisdiction issues. Thank you for your time. If there is any way you could help me please contact me, my personal cell phone number is BOI/PR/LE or by email BOI/PR/LE

Sincerely,

BOI/PR/LE

first of all it's unfair for them to give you less than one day they need to give you the name of th Veteran so you can check the veracity of the claim ask for them to hold story, unless GOA is available to respond on camera

if needed, go to news director

do we know how they contacted the office? is there a record of the contact?

you might have Mike N call the veteran directly

Call me when you learn more

Sharon,

We are airing a story tonight with an Alaska National Guard veteran who makes some serious accusations against command.

We have documentation that shows [BOI/PR] forged documents. We also have documentation that shows inconsistent Medical Readiness Audits.

The airman we talked to accuses command of forging and falsifying documents in order to pass those readiness tests, tests that measure if that medical unit was ready for war. The airman says in their opinion, the unit was unprepared for war.

The airman also goes on to say she was bullied, isolated and harassed, tried to contact the Governor's Office, yet never heard back.

The story will air at 10 tonight. I want to give you plenty of time to respond.

We would love to sit down with the Governor today. We haven't heard from him since his press conference last week.

I would hate for this story to air without hearing from the Governor.

Thanks so much,

Emily Carlson

Dear Governor Sean Parnell,

I recently reported a sexual crime committed by BOI/PR I/PR , BOI/PR , against my BOI/PR daughter, BOI/PR

A few days later, Officer Phelps told me he talked to BOI/PR and he admitted to the allegations against him.

Nothing has been really done about it though. He is still in the National Guard, and today, this evening when I came home from work, I found out that BOI/PR has secretly been seeing my daughter again recently.

Why can't anything be done about BOI/PR ? Why do I have to put my daughter in a treatment center to protect her? I would think that something could be done to restrain BOI/PR I/PR ! Not my daughter. Although, my daughter had a part by not keeping herself away from him, but isn't that what predators do? They entice and groom their unknowing victims? She doesn't even understand that she is a victim, because he caused her so much enjoyment!!!

I need something to be done about this.

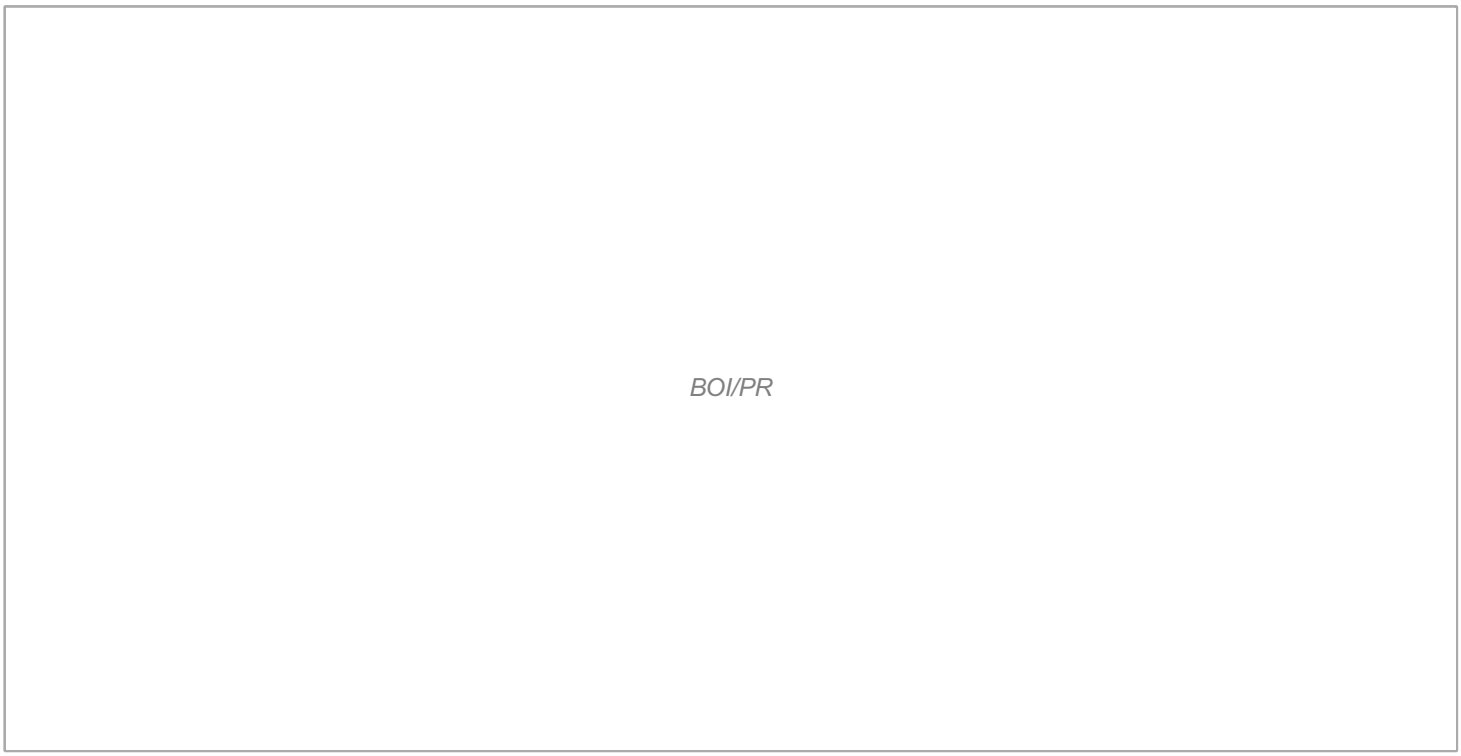
The Honorable Sean Parnell
Governor of Alaska
P.O. Box 110001
Juneau, AK 99811-0001

Dear Governor Parnell:

I am writing to raise issue with the personal conduct and command climate established by the Alaska Army National Guard's (AKARNG) Commander, Brigadier General (BG) Leon M. Bridges and Chief of Staff, BG Catherine Jorgensen. The basis for this issue and corresponding complaint is based upon the auspices of Article 138 (Complaints of Wrongs by a Senior Official) and the overall command climate created by the two senior leaders of the AKARNG. The Article 138 Complaint is indicative of the command climate established by these personnel, as the established climate is one of fear, intimidation, retribution and coercion. There is also significant inequality in the application of standards they apply to individuals. This inequality is varies depending upon their personal relationship with the affected soldier.

I have been serving in the military with honor and distinction both on active duty in the US Army and with the National Guard since my initial enlistment into the Massachusetts Army National Guard in 1985 and accession to the US Army as a Lieutenant in 1991. I have received outstanding ratings and commendations in every position I've held. I have never in my entire military career been witness to, nor been accused of, anything remotely like what is unfolding before me now. The amount of personal attacks, personal agenda driven actions and personal conduct of senior officers is astounding.

I took command of the AKARNG Recruiting and Retention Battalion in December of 2007. The AKARNG Commander at the time, BG Thomas Katkus, assigned me there with the directive to "fix it". The unit was dysfunctional and had many issues exacerbated by poor leadership over multiple years. I spent a majority of the first year and a half of my command removing soldiers for poor performance or ethical type issues. I was promoted to Lieutenant Colonel in June of 2008. Following that period of rebuilding, the unit started performing well and during the next three years of my command; we exceeded our recruiting mission each year. I received Above Center Mass ratings on each Officer Evaluation Reports during my four and a half year tenure as the commander.



In December 2011 BG Bridges (then COL Bridges) called me into his office prior to taking command of the Alaska Army National Guard. During the conversation he reached into one of his bags in the office, pulled out a set of Colonel pin-on rank insignia, put it on the table in his office and said, "Here, you are going to need this". Also in the conversation he informed me that I would be changing command in May of 2012 and taking an assignment as the Deputy Chief of Staff, Operations (G3) for the AKARNG. In February of 2012, I arrived at work to find a promotion packet on my desk. Recalling the recent conversation in his office and knowing that the G3 position was an O6 position and that I had the required time in service and time in grade for promotion I expected that I was going to be promoted under the Unit Vacancy Promotion program. I completed the packet and brought it to MG Katkus (now The Adjutant General) for signature, which he signed. I turned the packet in for processing.

BOI/PR

BOI/PR

BOI/PR

BG Jorgenson only complies with Army regulations when it suits her, and likewise ignores it if it does not suit her end goal. There have been significant violations and inconsistencies with hiring practices, re-assignments and even promotions; CW3 Curtis Cain, CW3 Katherine Sanders, CW4 Tammy Kostoff and MSG John Phlegar can attest to these. These inconsistencies have had a negative effect on soldiers who were treated unfairly and unequally due to having a relationship with me. Two of note is CPT Scott Lathrop and MAJ Jeffrey Lunsford. Everyone I have listed has documented proof or personal events highlighting the inconsistent application of the regulation or outright malfeasance conducted by or directed by BG Jorgenson and by extension BG Bridges, but due the fear of reprisal have chosen to remain silent.

An example of these questionable practices involves the employment of BOI/PR. In the summer of 2013, BOI/PR was interviewed and apparently provided testimony in the investigation of BOI/PR. After BOI/PR provided her testimony, she was placed on an BOI/PR set of orders (which she is still on today through the end of this fiscal year) and assigned to work in the BOI/PR BOI/PR. There are two significant issues with this hire. First, BOI/PR has three felony charges on her record (two of them resulted in convictions). All three charges occurred after she enlisted in the National Guard. One of the felony convictions was for theft and another was for possession of a controlled substance. To assign a soldier with this record, who in reality should have had their security clearance revoked, is evidence of the quid pro quo conduct and vindictive nature in the current command climate. Second, BOI/PR was reassigned from BOI/PR during the ongoing investigation and was assigned temporarily to the same office as BOI/PR. To assign a soldier to work along side the one they accused of misconduct is not conducive to a positive work environment. BG Jorgenson was the final authority in regards to placing any soldier BOI/PR orders. While she retained this authority, she prevented many quality soldiers from obtaining BOI/PR

BOI/PR (to include CPT Scott Lathrop) yet provided these opportunities to others BOI/PR).

BOI/PR

I have other examples of the abusive nature of the command climate that is present in the AKARNG. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

BOI/PR

Joseph Lawendowski

I have a complaint about Brigadier Gen. Catherine Jorgensen. She ruined many leadership enlisted and officer with the highest attributes of integrity, loyalty, work ethic, and due care for their soldiers.

General Jorgensen had been around for the last 10 years. She had seen and known everything. She has seen all the criminal acts and hadn't raised an eye brow between right and wrong. She has has been around and seen dirt on the good ole boy change of command with their corruption and unethical conduct. This was a leverage tool for her. This is ridiculous conduct, that is unconscionable wrong to the members of the Alaska National Guard. The upper echelon needs to unders tand what integrity and ethics are. As a whole we need to be strong from the lowest level to the highest! And need to look out for the welfare for the soldiers and their family. It's been ten years we've ignored our members and their families! We as a whole need to look out for the residence of he state of Alaska and their families.

Soldiers are the ones exposed to combat deployments and speaking with the residents of the State. Governor we need to look out for our citizen soldiers, families, and the citizens of Alaska.

Thank You.

He has an open case from the attached mail (Case 43033).

It was assigned to Jessica, and she had a note in there in June that she was waiting final approval on a couple of other responses before using that as a basis to draft a response. When Jessica left the office, it was transferred to Meg, but it appears no further action had been taken on it yet. No response has been sent.

This is the only case record I find for him in the system.

Sir,

I'm greatful you've requested NGB come and investigate the activities of the Alaska National Guard and hope the investigation truly uncovers the corruption, intimidation and practices of BG Bridges and BG Jorgensen. I filed both an IG Complaint and Congressional Complaints against both of them regarding Abuse of Power and the toxic command climate that exists within the Alaska Army National Guard. As a result of recent activities I've also filed a Whistleblower complaint due to the actions taken against me.

This article: "Tarnished reputations: A National Guard officer in Columbia alleges retaliation, discrimination part of Guard culture" (http://www.columbiatri bune.com/news/local/tarnished-reputations-a-national-guard-officer-in-columbia-alleges-retaliation/article_5c15b492-7e0c-11e3-a774-001a4bcf6878.html) mirrors only some of the conduct of these individuals.

Soldiers are so afraid of reprisals that will cause the loss of their jobs they are hesitant to say anything. Frankly, I was among them until they turned their sights on me. I've served honorably with top reports for over 19 years and to be going through the repurcussions that are occuring is deplorable.

I filed my complaint with you in February along with the others and can only hope that influenced your decision.

WASHINGTON DC 20301-1636

APR 10 2012

Chief, National Guard Bureau

The Honorable Mark Begich
United States Senate
Washington, DC 20510

Dear Senator Begich:

Thank you for bringing your concerns regarding the Alaska National Guard to my attention. The National Guard appreciates the seriousness of the issues raised in your inquiry and I assure you they will be thoroughly investigated. I have forwarded a copy of the material to the Department of the Army and the Department of the Air Force. All allegations involving senior officials will be investigated by the appropriate service Inspector General.

I have directed the National Guard Bureau Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) Office to contact the Alaska National Guard Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Coordinator to verify that all reported cases have been handled or are being handled appropriately. Additionally, I have directed my SAPR Office to make Alaska a top priority for their Staff Assistance Visit program.

Finally, I have asked the Director of the Air National Guard to send a team to Alaska to conduct a thorough assessment of the 176th Wing and the 168th Wing.

As more information becomes available, I will keep you updated. In the meantime, should you have any questions about this matter please contact the Director of the National Guard Bureau's Legislative Liaison, Brigadier General Wilton S. Gorkse at (571) 256-7339.

Sincerely,

The Honorable Lisa Murkowski

MAY 2 1 2014

Dear Senator Murkowski:

This is in response to your letter dated June 19, 2013, regarding allegations that the command climate within the Alaska National Guard (AKNG) is not conducive to reporting and investigating sexual assaults and that, in some instances, officials may have taken steps to cover up incidents of sexual assault.

Our letter of July 18, 2013, indicated that the DoD Hotline referred the allegations to the Department of the Army Inspector General (Army IG) for action (case number 20130620-014429). Our letter of March 6, 2014, indicated that officials within the Directorate for Investigations of Senior Officials (ISO) opened case number 20130715-014791-CASE-01 to monitor the senior official investigation by the Army IG.

On April 15, 2014, the Army IG completed the investigation and forwarded the Report of Investigation to ISO officials for review. The Army IG investigation found AKNG command climate sensing sessions did not identify concerns regarding sexual assault or sexual harassment reporting, and that The Adjutant General (TAG), AKNG, and other AKNG officials did not cover up any reported sexual assault incidents.

The Army IG report noted the Sexual Assault Response Coordinator, AKNG, received reports of 11 alleged sexual assault incidents (since February 2012) and promptly coordinated referrals of all incidents to Alaska law enforcement authorities. Alaska State Statute, "Military Code of Alaska," Section 26.05, dictates that Alaska state civilian law enforcement authorities investigate, and the Alaska civilian criminal system prosecute, cases involving AKNG member suspects. The TAG took adverse administrative action on the only two cases upon which he could act; those which substantiated sexual assault allegations against AKNG members. In one case, the TAG discharged the subject from the AKNG, and in the other, he initiated the subject's separation.

On May 6, 2014, ISO Oversight Branch officials completed a review of the Army IG investigation and concurred with the findings and conclusions.

Should you have questions, please contact me at 703-604-8324.

Sincerely,

Larry D. Turner

Re: 2012 National Guard Bureau's Site Assistance Visit Report, Alaska National Guard

Senator Dyson,

I would like to personally thank you for your concern and your desire to address sexual assault within the Alaska National Guard. As you know, reducing sexual assault in our state is one of the top priorities of Governor Parnell's administration. As the Commissioner of the Department of Military and Veterans Affairs, ensuring the safety of all of our citizen Soldiers, Airmen, and state work force is my number one focus. Every one of us has a role in bringing about awareness and combating this horrible crime in our work environment.

In April 2012, at the inquiry of Senator Mark Begich to General Craig McKinley, the Chief of the National Guard Bureau, the NGB Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) Program Manager, Ms. Jane Lux, accompanied by the Air National Guard and Army National Guard program managers, conducted a SAPR Staff Assistance Visit (SAV) on June 11th and 12th, 2012. The SAV specifically had these objectives:

- Meet with State Joint, Army National Guard and Air National Guard leadership to provide an overview of SAPR/SHARP program policy requirements and answer questions.
- Assist the new Joint Forces Headquarters and Wing Sexual Assault Response Coordinators (SARCS), Ms. Octavia Thompson and Major Keolani Bailey, on steps to set up programs and review checklists for program development.
- Define sexual assault reporting standard operating procedures and ensure SARCs have access to all data management systems for documenting reports.
- Present an understanding and update on NGB and DoD SAPR goals and initiatives.

It is important to know the SAV was not intended to serve as an inspection of the Alaska National Guard program. The team did not review case files of reported sexual assaults, nor did they speak with Soldiers or Airmen in sensing sessions to research command climate, as an inspection team would have done. A copy of Ms. Lux's trip report and Out-brief presentation is attached for your reference. The areas in the trip report mirrored the out brief with leadership:

- Leadership can only investigate what comes to their attention.
- The previous SARC did not adequately document sexual assaults in the data system of record. This was immediately rectified by the current SARC.
- The Air National Guard SAPR Program Manager concerns were noted that is AF Office of Special Investigations has jurisdiction for investigation of a sexual assault on JBER and should be referred to OSI rather than local law enforcement.
- At the time of the SAV, there were anonymous reports of ANG sexual assault victims not coming forward. This needed to be addressed through Wing SARC training opportunities in an effort to build confidence in the system. The Wing SARCS noted to the ANG SAPR PM that they continued to encourage airmen to come forward at follow up trainings.

Since the June 2012 SAV, changes and improvements have been made within the Alaska National Guard and DoD SAPR program. One of these improvements involves the requirement of national certification through the National Organization of Victim Advocates for SARCs and victim advocates. Ms. Thompson, JFHQ SARC, is one of only four National Guard SARCs, nationwide, who qualified at the highest level of experience and training (Level IV). All SARCs and victim advocates must now go through extensive training and background checks before working with victims, thus ensuring the highest quality possible for support of our members. Recruitment of new victim advocates to serve at the company and brigade levels, as well as the squadron and group levels, has increased with additional advocates to provide a wide range of availability.

Ms. Thompson has reached out statewide to programs such as the Alaska Network of Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault, Alaska Council on Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault, and to the Governor's Choose Respect initiative. Locally, she coordinates closely with other programs such as STAR, AWAIC, Forensic Nursing Services of Providence and the active duty programs on JBER. Educating others about the process of our response is one of her main tasks when meeting with those outside the Alaska National Guard.

Two changes of note include the new National Guard Bureau's Office of Complex Investigations (OCI) which now investigates all sexual assault allegations not investigated or prosecuted by local authorities. When a case is referred to NGB for an OCI investigation, NGB will assign trained investigators from different states to conduct the investigation to ensure complete and unbiased input.

Lastly, since Spring of 2012, more victims have come forward to report unrestricted reports. All but three have been unrestricted, a complete reversal from previous reports, where most were restricted. I believe this is due to the confidence in leadership and the quality of support being provided to our members. Our goal of strengthening the culture against sexual violence and misconduct is at the forefront of this organization.

I am available at anytime to provide additional information or clarification if you need further assistance.

MG Thomas H. Katkus
Commissioner, DMVA

NGB J1-SAPR 6 July 2012

MEMORANDUM FOR Director, J1, National Guard Bureau, 111 South George Mason Drive, Arlington, VA 22204

SUBJECT: Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) Staff Assistance Visit (SAV), Alaska National Guard

1. A SAPR Staff Assistance Visit (SAV) was conducted on11-12 June 2012 to the Alaska Joint Force Headquarters in Anchorage, Alaska. NGB staff members participating in the SAV were Jane Lux, NGB J1 SAPR Program Chief, MAJ Tela McFadden, ARNG Sexual Harassment and Assault Response and Prevention (SHARP) Branch Chief, and 1stLt Lori Alix, NGB/A1S SAPR Program Manager.

2. The objectives of the SAV were to:
   a. Meet with state Joint, ARNG, and ANG leadership to provide an overview of SAPR/SHARP program policy requirements and answer questions
   b. Assist new JFHQ and Wing Sexual Assault Response Coordinators (SARCs) on steps to set up program and review checklists for program development
   c. Define sexual assault reporting standard operating procedures and ensure SARCs have access to all data management systems for documenting reports
   d. Present an understanding and update on NGB and DoD SAPR goals and initiatives

3. State leadership and employees present for the initial in brief:
1) MG Katkas – AK Adjutant General; 2) BG Bridges - ATAG; 3) Col O'Brian168th Wing Commander; Col Wenke, 176th Wing Commander, 4) COL Williams – USPFO; 5) Col Bailar, AK – NG JAG; 6) Octavia Thompson-JFHQ SARC; 7) Maj Bailey, 176th Wing SARC; 8) Maj Hunstein, 168th SARC 9) Col Grunwald – HRO & J1 Director 9) Col Lincoln, AKANG CoS; 10) LTC Schell, ARNG Asst COS; 11) Lt Col McPhetres, ANG DoS 12) LTC Koch, Chaplain. 13) CMSgt Calvin-WG/Command Chief- 176th; 14) CCSM Gordon Choate, CSM Pamela Harrington, CW2 Nicholas Forbes, CMSgt Timothy Delph, COL Hunt Kerrigan, COL Michael Thompson; 15) Lt Col Kay Spear-Budd, Family Program Chief and Alt JFHQ SARC

4. Background on reasons Alaska was selected for a Staff Assistance Visit:

a. The previous full-time JFHQ SARC was initially hired as a temporary technician. When the temporary position expired, the state created a contract for her to continue in the role. During the time she served as JFHQ SARC, she did not report state ARNG sexual assaults into the Army's system of records, SADMS. Additionally, she was often late or did not input required metrics into the GKO SAPR site. When this issue was brought to her and her immediate leadership, she regularly stated that she had site accessibility problems with her computer. That prevented her from uploading the data into the system. There was no problem with access from the NGB side and it was recommended that she work with her state Help Desk to resolve the problem.

b. The NGB J1 SAPR Program Chief, met with Brig Gen McManus, AK CoS, when she visited NGB late in 2011. At that time, documentation was provided to Brig Gen McManus about some of the problems with the contract JFHQ SARC. Although the SARC was a skilled trainer and victim advocate, she did not regularly meet program management requirements to document cases in systems of record.

c. The state advertised the JFHQ SARC position for hire as a technician and a new JFHQ SARC was hired in February 2012. Additionally, the two Wing SARCs were new to the positions and were trained by NGB SAPR in December 2011. It was important to provide support and program guidance to help create a positive climate where the new SARCs could be successful and meet program requirements.

d. The SAV to Alaska was moved up in the SAPR team's priority to respond to an IG report and congressional inquiry to the CNGB from Senator Mark Begich. There was a concern within the inquiry that not all sexual assaults were being reported. It was not clear in the IG report whether reports in Alaska were not being reported to NGB, or whether sexual assault victims did not have confidence in coming forward to report to SARCs or VAs.

5. SAV Process:

a. The SAV included an initial SAPR 101 briefing for AK leadership on day one of the visit. The briefing began at 0800 at the AK National Guard JFHQ with good attendance from state leadership. The initial briefing slide details the SAPR program elements. The initial elements fall to the SARC and Victim Advocates to provide training, victim advocacy, and prevention awareness. The last element is accountability, which falls to leadership. MG Katkas expressed the opinion that accountability is dependent on whether or not leadership is aware of a sexual assault report and leadership cannot be held accountable for offenders if there is no knowledge of the sexual assault.

b. There were questions from those in attendance that addressed the SAPR processes and roles of commanders and specific questions about restricted and unrestricted reports are handled.

c. The TAG stated that all sexual assault reports are investigated by local law enforcement through a Memorandum of Agreement. The ANG SAPR Program Manager expressed concerns that AFOSI may not be called if an assault of an ANG member occurred while in an active service status or on Joint Base Richardson/Elmendorf. Her concern was based on the AFI 36-6001 guidance that requires any sexual assault an active duty installation involving an ANG member who was in a duty status, must be investigated and reported to AFOSI. MG Katkas stated that all AK National Guard reports go to the local civilian law enforcement based on their memorandum of agreement.

d. After the SAPR 101 briefing, MG Katkas requested a separate meeting with the NGB SAPR team and the JFHQ and Wing SARCs. During the private meeting, MG Katkas stated that he believed his SAPR program was solid. He brought up the IG and Congressional Inquiry as being the reason for the NGB visit. The NGB J1 SAPR Program Chief reiterated that although the SAV's priority was elevated due to the IG complaint, the team's function was to provide a staff assistance visit and the team was not acting as an inspection team.

e. The ARNG SHARP branch chief, J1 SAPR Program Chief then broke to meet separately with the JFHQ SARC. The ANG SAPR Program Manager met with the two Wing SARCs.

f. Program managers discussed SAPR and SHARP program implementation. There were no major program concerns or misunderstandings from the SARCs about program policy or procedures that were evident. However, the Wing SARCs, who are co-located with active duty AF bases, were not aware of and had not seen the Memorandum of Agreement with local law enforcement for jurisdiction authority that was discussed by the TAG during the in-brief. It was recommended that all MOAs be included in continuity books for the program by the SARCs.

g. The program managers discussed with the SARCs whether or not they perceived any command climate issues that may prevent victims of sexual assault from coming forward with a report to a SARC or victim advocate. The 176th WG SARC reported that they recently had received an anonymous statement in as AFCAST (Safety Survey-SAF) that statement "I can think of three women who have been assaulted in our Wing and are afraid to report it." The ANG SAPR program manager provided guidance and various options as the best way to handle and response to an anonymous survey. The Wing SARC outlined steps he has already put in place since he was trained in December 2011. He and the new JFHQ SARC are working jointly to better market the program, ensure all Bystander Intervention Training is completed for airmen, execute all meetings as required, ensure Victim Advocates receive annual refresher training, and display prevention materials with information about the DoD Safe Helpline resource.

h. The joint base environment for the active component and the National Guard appear to be working well and the JFHQ and Wing SARCs collaborate for training and response support.

i. The meetings with the JFHQ SARC and Wing SARCs concluded at approximately 1700. The NGB program managers provided suggestions for improvement. Those areas centered on ensuring proper documentation. Recommendations included: input of prior ARNG sexual assault reports in SADMS by the JFHQ SARC; validation and identification of all trained SAPR VAs in the state; completion of all SAPR VA background checks in preparation for VA credentialing requirements; appropriate waiver requests on file; training of ARNG SARC/SHARP personnel in the required T10 80-hour training; and documentation of all MOAs and MOUs in continuity books.

6. After SAV:

a. The NGB SAPR Team joined the SARCs and many of the state leaders for dinner that evening at a local restaurant. The evening offered the opportunity to emphasis the positive efforts being put forward by the new SARCs at the JFHQ and the 176th and 168th Wings. It also offered the opportunity for the team to meet Governor Parnell, who happened to be at the same restaurant that evening for a political event. MG Katkas introduced the governor to the NGB Team.

b. The NGB SAPR team provided an out brief the following morning, 12 June, for the TAG and some of the leadership who had been present at the in brief. The briefing focused on the state's SAPR program history, areas they should sustain, improve, and plan for in the future. The out brief slides are included with this trip report.

7. Lessons learned:

a. State leadership initially perceived the SAV to be an inspection. The SAPR team's purpose is to provide support and guidance and that can be misinterpreted if a SAV is conducted prior to an IG team's visit.

b. The SAV was productive and all new SARCs appear to have a clear understanding of tasks and actions that are needed to move the program implementation ahead.

Re: 2012 National Guard Bureau's Site Assistance Visit Report, Alaska National Guard

Major General Katkus,

I thank you for your service to all Alaskans in your role as Adjutant General and Commissioner of the Department of Military & Veterans Affairs. I appreciated you and Dep. Commissioner Pierre's visit to my office earlier this month in response to my inquiry about the recent public reports of sexual assault and misconduct Alaska National Guard employees against Guard employees, civilian job applicants, and other persons.

I asked you in this meeting about the 2012 National Guard Bureau's Site Assistance Visit Report concerning the Alaska National Guard, but I did not refer to it by its correct name. You and Dep. Comm. Pierre said you were not familiar with this report. This report was carried out at the direction of General Frank J. Grass, Chief of the National Guard Bureau, and Lt. General Stanley E. Clark, Director, Air National Guard. I have since learned that this report of investigation concerning the Alaska National Guard was focused on the issues of sexual assault, sexual misconduct and other Alaska National Guard discipline matters.

I trust that Governor Parnell received a copy of this report. If possible, I would like a copy. I would appreciate you summarizing for me the outcomes of this report and what resulting action items were implemented in the Alaska National Guard to strengthen its culture against sexual violence and misconduct.

NATIONAL GUARD BUREAU
WASHINGTON DC 20301-1636

APR 10 2012

Chief, National Guard Bureau

The Honorable Mark Begich
United States Senate
Washington, DC 20510

Dear Senator Begich:

Thank you for bringing your concerns regarding the Alaska National Guard to my attention. The National Guard appreciates the seriousness of the issues raised in your inquiry and I assure you they will be thoroughly investigated. I have forwarded a copy of the material to the Department of the Army and the Department of the Air Force. All allegations involving senior officials will be investigated by the appropriate service Inspector General.

I have directed the National Guard Bureau Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) Office to contact the Alaska National Guard Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Coordinator to verify that all reported cases have been handled or are being handled appropriately. Additionally, I have directed my SAPR Office to make Alaska a top priority for their Staff Assistance Visit program.

Finally, I have asked the Director of the Air National Guard to send a team to Alaska to conduct a thorough assessment of the 176th Wing and the 168th Wing.

As more information becomes available, I will keep you updated. In the meantime, should you have any questions about this matter please contact the Director of the National Guard Bureau's Legislative Liaison, Brigadier General Wilton S. Gorkse at (571) 256-7339.

The Honorable Lisa Murkowski

Dear Senator Murkowski:

This is in response to your letter dated June 19, 2013, regarding allegations that the command climate within the Alaska National Guard (AKNG) is not conducive to reporting and investigating sexual assaults and that, in some instances, officials may have taken steps to cover up incidents of sexual assault.

Our letter of July 18, 2013, indicated that the DoD Hotline referred the allegations to the Department of the Army Inspector General (Army IG) for action (case number 20130620-014429). Our letter of March 6, 2014, indicated that officials within the Directorate for Investigations of Senior Officials (ISO) opened case number 20130715-014791-CASE-01 to monitor the senior official investigation by the Army IG.

On April 15, 2014, the Army IG completed the investigation and forwarded the Report of Investigation to ISO officials for review. The Army IG investigation found AKNG command climate sensing sessions did not identify concerns regarding sexual assault or sexual harassment reporting, and that The Adjutant General (TAG), AKNG, and other AKNG officials did not cover up any reported sexual assault incidents.

The Army IG report noted the Sexual Assault Response Coordinator, AKNG, received reports of 11 alleged sexual assault incidents (since February 2012) and promptly coordinated referrals of all incidents to Alaska law enforcement authorities. Alaska State Statute, "Military Code of Alaska," Section 26.05, dictates that Alaska state civilian law enforcement authorities investigate, and the Alaska civilian criminal system prosecute, cases involving AKNG member suspects. The TAG took adverse administrative action on the only two cases upon which he could act; those which substantiated sexual assault allegations against AKNG members. In one case, the TAG discharged the subject from the AKNG, and in the other, he initiated the subject's separation.

On May 6, 2014, ISO Oversight Branch officials completed a review of the Army IG investigation and concurred with the findings and conclusions.

Should you have questions, please contact me at 703-604-8324.

Sincerely,

Larry D. Turner

Senator Dyson,

I would like to personally thank you for your concern and your desire to address sexual assault within the Alaska National Guard. As you know, reducing sexual assault in our state is one of the top priorities of Governor Parnell's administration. As the Commissioner of the Department of Military and Veterans Affairs, ensuring the safety of all of our citizen Soldiers, Airmen, and state work force is my number one focus. Every one of us has a role in bringing about awareness and combating this horrible crime in our work environment.

In April 2012, at the inquiry of Senator Mark Begich to General Craig McKinley, the Chief of the National Guard Bureau, the NGB Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) Program Manager, Ms. Jane Lux, accompanied by the Air National Guard and Army National Guard program managers, conducted a SAPR Staff Assistance Visit (SAV) on June 11th and 12th, 2012. The SAV specifically had these objectives:

- Meet with State Joint, Army National Guard and Air National Guard leadership to provide an overview of SAPR/SHARP program policy requirements and answer questions.
- Assist the new Joint Forces Headquarters and Wing Sexual Assault Response Coordinators (SARCS), Ms. Octavia Thompson and Major Keolani Bailey, on steps to set up programs and review checklists for program development.
- Define sexual assault reporting standard operating procedures and ensure SARCs have access to all data management systems for documenting reports.
- Present an understanding and update on NGB and DoD SAPR goals and initiatives.

It is important to know the SAV was not intended to serve as an inspection of the Alaska National Guard program. The team did not review case files of reported sexual assaults, nor did they speak with Soldiers or Airmen in sensing sessions to research command climate, as an inspection team would have done. A copy of Ms. Lux's trip report and Out-brief presentation is attached for your reference. The areas in the trip report mirrored the out brief with leadership:

- Leadership can only investigate what comes to their attention.
- The previous SARC did not adequately document sexual assaults in the data system of record. This was immediately rectified by the current SARC.
- The Air National Guard SAPR Program Manager concerns were noted that is AF Office of Special Investigations has jurisdiction for investigation of a sexual assault on JBER and should be referred to OSI rather than local law enforcement.
- At the time of the SAV, there were anonymous reports of ANG sexual assault victims not coming forward. This needed to be addressed through Wing SARC training opportunities in an effort to build confidence in the system. The Wing SARCS noted to the ANG SAPR PM that they continued to encourage airmen to come forward at follow up trainings.

Since the June 2012 SAV, changes and improvements have been made within the Alaska National Guard and DoD SAPR program. One of these improvements involves the requirement of national certification through the National Organization of Victim Advocates for SARCs and victim advocates. Ms. Thompson, JFHQ SARC, is one of only four National Guard SARCs, nationwide, who qualified at the highest level of experience and training (Level IV). All SARCs and victim advocates must now go through extensive training and background checks before working with victims, thus ensuring the highest quality possible for support of our members. Recruitment of new victim advocates to serve at the company and brigade levels, as well as the squadron and group levels, has increased with additional advocates to provide a wide range of availability.

Ms. Thompson has reached out statewide to programs such as the Alaska Network of Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault, Alaska Council on Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault, and to the Governor's Choose Respect initiative. Locally, she coordinates closely with other programs such as STAR, AWAIC, Forensic Nursing Services of Providence and the active duty programs on JBER. Educating others about the process of our response is one of her main tasks when meeting with those outside the Alaska National Guard.

Two changes of note include the new National Guard Bureau's Office of Complex Investigations (OCI) which now investigates all sexual assault allegations not investigated or prosecuted by local authorities. When a case is referred to NGB for an OCI investigation, NGB will assign trained investigators from different states to conduct the investigation to ensure complete and unbiased input.

Lastly, since Spring of 2012, more victims have come forward to report unrestricted reports. All but three have been unrestricted, a complete reversal from previous reports, where most were restricted. I believe this is due to the confidence in leadership and the quality of support being provided to our members. Our goal of strengthening the culture against sexual violence and misconduct is at the forefront of this organization.

I am available at anytime to provide additional information or clarification if you need further assistance.

MG Thomas H. Katkus
Commissioner, DMVA

NGB J1-SAPR 6 July 2012

MEMORANDUM FOR Director, J1, National Guard Bureau, 111 South George Mason Drive, Arlington, VA 22204

SUBJECT: Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) Staff Assistance Visit (SAV), Alaska National Guard

1. A SAPR Staff Assistance Visit (SAV) was conducted on11-12 June 2012 to the Alaska Joint Force Headquarters in Anchorage, Alaska. NGB staff members participating in the SAV were Jane Lux, NGB J1 SAPR Program Chief, MAJ Tela McFadden, ARNG Sexual Harassment and Assault Response and Prevention (SHARP) Branch Chief, and 1stLt Lori Alix, NGB/A1S SAPR Program Manager.

2. The objectives of the SAV were to:
   a. Meet with state Joint, ARNG, and ANG leadership to provide an overview of SAPR/SHARP program policy requirements and answer questions
   b. Assist new JFHQ and Wing Sexual Assault Response Coordinators (SARCs) on steps to set up program and review checklists for program development
   c. Define sexual assault reporting standard operating procedures and ensure SARCs have access to all data management systems for documenting reports
   d. Present an understanding and update on NGB and DoD SAPR goals and initiatives

3. State leadership and employees present for the initial in brief:
1) MG Katkas – AK Adjutant General; 2) BG Bridges - ATAG; 3) Col O'Brian168th Wing Commander; Col Wenke, 176th Wing Commander, 4) COL Williams – USPFO; 5) Col Bailar, AK – NG JAG; 6) Octavia Thompson-JFHQ SARC; 7) Maj Bailey, 176th Wing SARC; 8) Maj Hunstein, 168th SARC 9) Col Grunwald – HRO & J1 Director 9) Col Lincoln, AKANG CoS; 10) LTC Schell, ARNG Asst COS; 11) Lt Col McPhetres, ANG DoS 12) LTC Koch, Chaplain. 13) CMSgt Calvin-WG/Command Chief- 176th; 14) CCSM Gordon Choate, CSM Pamela Harrington, CW2 Nicholas Forbes, CMSgt Timothy Delph, COL Hunt Kerrigan, COL Michael Thompson; 15) Lt Col Kay Spear-Budd, Family Program Chief and Alt JFHQ SARC

4. Background on reasons Alaska was selected for a Staff Assistance Visit:

a. The previous full-time JFHQ SARC was initially hired as a temporary technician. When the temporary position expired, the state created a contract for her to continue in the role. During the time she served as JFHQ SARC, she did not report state ARNG sexual assaults into the Army's system of records, SADMS. Additionally, she was often late or did not input required metrics into the GKO SAPR site. When this issue was brought to her and her immediate leadership, she regularly stated that she had site accessibility problems with her computer. That prevented her from uploading the data into the system. There was no problem with access from the NGB side and it was recommended that she work with her state Help Desk to resolve the problem.

b. The NGB J1 SAPR Program Chief, met with Brig Gen McManus, AK CoS, when she visited NGB late in 2011. At that time, documentation was provided to Brig Gen McManus about some of the problems with the contract JFHQ SARC. Although the SARC was a skilled trainer and victim advocate, she did not regularly meet program management requirements to document cases in systems of record.

c. The state advertised the JFHQ SARC position for hire as a technician and a new JFHQ SARC was hired in February 2012. Additionally, the two Wing SARCs were new to the positions and were trained by NGB SAPR in December 2011. It was important to provide support and program guidance to help create a positive climate where the new SARCs could be successful and meet program requirements.

d. The SAV to Alaska was moved up in the SAPR team's priority to respond to an IG report and congressional inquiry to the CNGB from Senator Mark Begich. There was a concern within the inquiry that not all sexual assaults were being reported. It was not clear in the IG report whether reports in Alaska were not being reported to NGB, or whether sexual assault victims did not have confidence in coming forward to report to SARCs or VAs.

5. SAV Process:

a. The SAV included an initial SAPR 101 briefing for AK leadership on day one of the visit. The briefing began at 0800 at the AK National Guard JFHQ with good attendance from state leadership. The initial briefing slide details the SAPR program elements. The initial elements fall to the SARC and Victim Advocates to provide training, victim advocacy, and prevention awareness. The last element is accountability, which falls to leadership. MG Katkas expressed the opinion that accountability is dependent on whether or not leadership is aware of a sexual assault report and leadership cannot be held accountable for offenders if there is no knowledge of the sexual assault.

b. There were questions from those in attendance that addressed the SAPR processes and roles of commanders and specific questions about restricted and unrestricted reports are handled.

c. The TAG stated that all sexual assault reports are investigated by local law enforcement through a Memorandum of Agreement. The ANG SAPR Program Manager expressed concerns that AFOSI may not be called if an assault of an ANG member occurred while in an active service status or on Joint Base Richardson/Elmendorf. Her concern was based on the AFI 36-6001 guidance that requires any sexual assault an active duty installation involving an ANG member who was in a duty status, must be investigated and reported to AFOSI. MG Katkas stated that all AK National Guard reports go to the local civilian law enforcement based on their memorandum of agreement.

d. After the SAPR 101 briefing, MG Katkas requested a separate meeting with the NGB SAPR team and the JFHQ and Wing SARCs. During the private meeting, MG Katkas stated that he believed his SAPR program was solid. He brought up the IG and Congressional Inquiry as being the reason for the NGB visit. The NGB J1 SAPR Program Chief reiterated that although the SAV's priority was elevated due to the IG complaint, the team's function was to provide a staff assistance visit and the team was not acting as an inspection team.

e. The ARNG SHARP branch chief, J1 SAPR Program Chief then broke to meet separately with the JFHQ SARC. The ANG SAPR Program Manager met with the two Wing SARCs.

f. Program managers discussed SAPR and SHARP program implementation. There were no major program concerns or misunderstandings from the SARCs about program policy or procedures that were evident. However, the Wing SARCs, who are co-located with active duty AF bases, were not aware of and had not seen the Memorandum of Agreement with local law enforcement for jurisdiction authority that was discussed by the TAG during the in-brief. It was recommended that all MOAs be included in continuity books for the program by the SARCs.

g. The program managers discussed with the SARCs whether or not they perceived any command climate issues that may prevent victims of sexual assault from coming forward with a report to a SARC or victim advocate. The 176th WG SARC reported that they recently had received an anonymous statement in as AFCAST (Safety Survey-SAF) that statement "I can think of three women who have been assaulted in our Wing and are afraid to report it." The ANG SAPR program manager provided guidance and various options as the best way to handle and response to an anonymous survey. The Wing SARC outlined steps he has already put in place since he was trained in December 2011. He and the new JFHQ SARC are working jointly to better market the program, ensure all Bystander Intervention Training is completed for airmen, execute all meetings as required, ensure Victim Advocates receive annual refresher training, and display prevention materials with information about the DoD Safe Helpline resource.

h. The joint base environment for the active component and the National Guard appear to be working well and the JFHQ and Wing SARCs collaborate for training and response support.

i. The meetings with the JFHQ SARC and Wing SARCs concluded at approximately 1700. The NGB program managers provided suggestions for improvement. Those areas centered on ensuring proper documentation. Recommendations included: input of prior ARNG sexual assault reports in SADMS by the JFHQ SARC; validation and identification of all trained SAPR VAs in the state; completion of all SAPR VA background checks in preparation for VA credentialing requirements; appropriate waiver requests on file; training of ARNG SARC/SHARP personnel in the required T10 80-hour training; and documentation of all MOAs and MOUs in continuity books.

6. After SAV:

a. The NGB SAPR Team joined the SARCs and many of the state leaders for dinner that evening at a local restaurant. The evening offered the opportunity to emphasis the positive efforts being put forward by the new SARCs at the JFHQ and the 176th and 168th Wings. It also offered the opportunity for the team to meet Governor Parnell, who happened to be at the same restaurant that evening for a political event. MG Katkas introduced the governor to the NGB Team.

b. The NGB SAPR team provided an out brief the following morning, 12 June, for the TAG and some of the leadership who had been present at the in brief. The briefing focused on the state's SAPR program history, areas they should sustain, improve, and plan for in the future. The out brief slides are included with this trip report.

7. Lessons learned:

a. State leadership initially perceived the SAV to be an inspection. The SAPR team's purpose is to provide support and guidance and that can be misinterpreted if a SAV is conducted prior to an IG team's visit.

b. The SAV was productive and all new SARCs appear to have a clear understanding of tasks and actions that are needed to move the program implementation ahead.

Cindy would like a meeting arranged for 15 minutes from now. We can video conference or I can dial you in via teleconference. Please let me know your preference right away.

Erin,
Is the JNU large conf room open/available at 3:30? I'd ask Julia and Janice but they are both out.

AP: Former Alaska National Guard soldier says he told chain of command about allegations years ago
Associated Press

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — A former Alaska National Guard soldier said he told his chain of command about misconduct in the Guard more than seven years before the federal Department of Defense issued a report detailing allegations of sexual assault, abuse of power and cover-ups.

But his superiors failed to act on his concerns, Lt. Col. Kenneth Blaylock told KTUU (http://bit.ly/1p1Zqfp). So in 2010, Blaylock summarized and submitted them to the governor's office and Anchorage police.

He said his concerns weren't taken seriously until he met investigators from the Department of Defense National Guard Bureau. He said he was labeled a crackpot by adjutant general Maj. Gen. Thomas Katkus.

"Essentially, anything I tried to bring forward after that was muddied because my name was attached to it. I had a lot of people who basically wouldn't talk to me, including in law enforcement," Blaylock said.

Blaylock was heading the recruitment and retention division when he noticed the Guard was paying for the same advertising twice.

He said in 2007 he alerted the Guard's deputy chief of staff and personnel, Catherine Jorgensen, and Katkus (before he was promoted to adjutant general) of his suspicions soldiers were misusing recruiting and retention account funds.

"We only had one product for advertising, and yet we were paying for it more than twice. The money was going somewhere it didn't need to go to," Blaylock said.

When asked to comment on the Guard's policy on credit card charges, a Guard spokeswoman sent this statement:

"We are redirecting our efforts from looking into anonymous and/or unsubstantiated claims that lack detail, and that we are unable to verify," wrote Lt. Col. Candis Olmstead. "There are a broad range of requests, and we feel it is counterproductive to address these allegations and claims stemming from individual complaints. Our priority is to focus on the way forward and to work on developing and communicating plans to correct past issues."

Blaylock said he was forced to retire in 2012 after serving nearly 30 years in the National Guard.

The Department of Defense's Office of Complex Investigations prepared the report on allegations of sexual assault and fraud at Gov. Sean Parnell's request. The governor released the report, which found victims do not trust the system because of a lack of confidence in the command, last month.

Parnell said he requested and received Katkus' resignation. Parnell said the buck stopped with Katkus.

BOI / PR sent this letter in today, and just called me to ask that we be careful about how the information is distributed. He certainly wants the Governor and his "inner circle," as he described it, to have the information, but is concerned about potential reprisal to his Guard career that could come about if this is distributed widely. I assured him that while I am not personally involved in the NG review and reform process, our office was sensitive to that issue and that I would share his concerns with you directly.

This has been logged to Tara as a case in CRM.

Sir -

Attached is a copy of the letter we discussed earlier today. I also dropped a hard copy off with the Anchorage Office - they said you should get it in a few days.

- B...

Oct. 6, 2014

The Honorable Sean Parnell
Governor of Alaska
Alaska State Capitol Building

Governor Parnell:

My name is BOI / PR. For the last BOI / PR I have served as BOI / PR for the 176th Wing, the largest component of the Alaska Air National Guard and one of the largest and busiest Air Guard wings in the country. That introduction aside, I absolutely must stress that in writing to you today I express only my own personal opinions, and in no way claim to speak for the 176th Wing or the Alaska National Guard.

I was inspired to write you today after reading the latest ADN story about the Alaska National Guard, and seeing a few days ago a television interview where you spoke about rebuilding trust and confidence in our organization. I would like to suggest a way forward that will do that.

Brig. Gen. Thomas Katkus sent waves of shock through the Air National Guard when, over a short period of time, he pushed out the three senior officers who I think nearly all of us would agree were our most distinguished and accomplished leaders: Brig. Gen. Charles "Chuck" Foster, the 176th Wing's commander; Col. Robert Doehl, the wing's vice commander; and Brig. Gen. Carlisle Lincoln, the wing's former Operations Group commander who at that time was serving as the assistant adjutant general/air. All three were widely respected and admired officers who had risen to their positions through sheer merit and leadership.

My purpose in writing is this: Now that you have relieved Gen. Katkus of duty, I believe that the Alaska National Guard and the public we serve would benefit tremendously if you consider appointing the wing's former commander, Brig. Gen. Foster, as Gen. Katkus' replacement.

Before I elaborate, let me make a brief aside to explain why my opinion is worth considering. As the wing's BOI / PR I B... BOI / PR BOI / PR routinely talk to Airmen from the very lowest Airman Basic to the top levels of wing and Alaska National Guard leadership.* I am intimately familiar with the morale and sentiment of the officers and enlisted personnel throughout this organization – not just any one part of it. In addition, I have been with the wing through BOI / PR and BOI / PR, and have been privileged, in my position, to observe leadership operations firsthand. Finally, in my civilian career I am a BOI / PR, so of course I have worked with many private and public-sector leaders in that capacity as well.

I can unequivocally state that Gen. Foster is easily one of the best and most highly regarded leaders I have worked for in the military, including a tour of duty at BOI / PR. As a civilian, I would compare his leadership to that of Al Parrish, who used to be the CEO of Providence Health & Services Alaska BOI / PR

* The others are the wing's Family Programs manager, Jill Meszaros; and the long-time wing chaplain, Rick Cavens, who retired a month or so ago. Either one of them, I am certain, would confirm everything I have written.

In this letter, I'm not going to go into General Foster's many accomplishments – I can talk about those later, if you like, but really he can tell you himself. What I want to do is let you know what appointing him as the new TAG would do for the Alaska National Guard and the State of Alaska:

- With more than 1,400 members, the 176th Wing is the largest single component of the Alaska National Guard. Within that unit, Gen. Foster is almost universally admired and respected, and appointing him as the new TAG would be hugely popular.

- Appointing Gen. Foster would serve an additional public purpose. The problems with sexual assault in the Alaska National Guard were on the Army side. The governor could make a public statement to the effect that: "The 176th Wing has a proven track record of success in fostering an environment of equal opportunity – they have one of the highest proportions of women among all the nation's Guard wings, and have built a strong, proven anti-sexual harassment program. So, to show how seriously I take this issue, I am appointing as TAG an officer who helped develop that track record; one who has a proven record of ensuring that all members of his command work in a safe and welcoming environment."

- Gen. Foster worked extremely well with the Army during his time as wing commander – indeed, I do not think it is an exaggeration to say that it was the best relationship between the Army and Air Guard in recent memory. This is important, because, on the Army side, Gen. Foster is very well-regarded -- his appointment as TAG would not be seen as punitive, or a blow to morale. Within the Guard, it would be seen as a very pointed repudiation of Gen. Katkus' approach.

- As a BOI / PR, I can tell you that Gen. Foster is an experienced and articulate spokesman and leader. He projects exactly the kind of calm, focused and reassuring public image that the Guard desperately needs right now.

As you can probably tell, I am passionate about the Alaska National Guard. Building respectfully on the work of those before him, Gen. Foster helped mold the 176th Wing into one of the country's premier Air Guard wings. The Guard has been a great asset to the state I love, and it has broken my heart to see it weaken the way it has in the last few years. I ask you to help heal and strengthen this organization by appointing Gen. Foster as TAG. I believe that, at the very least, you absolutely must talk with him, and get his insight into the problems and challenges the organization faces.

I am happy to answer whatever questions about this I can.

Very Respectfully,

BOI / PR

Writing strictly in my own capacity,
Not as an official spokesman

REPORT A CRIME

If you are the victim of a crime or require immediate assistance, call 911 or contact your local Military Police.

If you would like to report a crime, are the victim of a crime, have information about a crime, or would like to speak with a CID Special Agent, contact your local CID Office, the Military Police, call 1-844-ARMY-CID (844-276-9243) or email CID at Army.CID.Crime.Tips@mail.mil.

ANTITERRORISM

If you have information that may be important to the security of the U.S. Army, Army facilities, Army personnel or you wish to be contacted by Army Counterintelligence, contact iSALUTE.

IMPERSONATION FRAUD

If you feel you have been scammed by a person claiming to be a U.S. Soldier, read the attached letter and contact the FTC and IC3.

CLICK HERE FOR MORE INFORMATION ABOUT ONLINE ROMANCE SCAMS

Recently these scams have evolved into Impersonation Fraud affecting U.S. Soldiers. Scam artists in these instances search the internet for photographs of U.S. Soldier, and then use these photographs in emails or on social/dating sites to lure unsuspecting citizens into providing money to them for such reasons as transportation costs, communication fees, marriage, processing and medical fees.

The U.S. has established numerous task force organizations to deal with this growing epidemic; unfortunately, the personnel committing these scams are utilizing untraceable email addresses, routing accounts through numerous locations around the world and utilizing pay per hour Internet Cyber cafes, which often times maintain no accountability of use. The ability of law enforcement to identify these perpetrators and close down their operations is very limited. Unfortunately, as is the situation in most cases, as soon as one incident is resolved, the criminals are finding another means of attack.

SEXUAL ASSAULT

If you are the victim of a sexual assault and need assistance, call the Department of Defense Safe Helpline anywhere, anytime, 24-hours-a-day, 7-days-a-week, worldwide. The phone number is the same inside the U.S. or via the Defense Switched Network (DSN) at 877-995-5247. DSN users can dial U.S. toll-free numbers by simply dialing 94 + the 10-digit toll-free number. For those unable to call toll-free or DSN, call 202-540-5962. You can also send a text to 55-247 (within CONUS) or 202-470-5546 (OCONUS) or online chat with a counselor at www.SafeHelpline.org 24-hours-a-day.

You should also contact your local Sexual Assault Response Coordinator (SARC), Victim Advocate (VA) or healthcare provider. You may also contact your chain of command or law enforcement (military or civilian), however if you do, an investigation will occur and you will not have the option of making a Restricted Report.

You can also contact the Military One Source Hotline, 24-hours-a-day at 800-342-9647. If you are overseas, click here for calling instructions for your specific international location.

IF YOU HAVE BEEN SEXUALLY ASSAULTED OR THINK YOU HAVE BEEN:

- Go to a safe location away from the attacker.

· Seek medical care as soon as possible. Even if you do not have any visible physical injuries, you may be at risk of becoming pregnant or acquiring a sexually transmitted disease. Ask the healthcare provider to conduct a sexual assault forensic examination (SAFE) to preserve forensic evidence. If you suspect you had been drugged, request that a urine sample be collected.

· Preserve all evidence of the assault. Do not bathe, wash your hands, eat or drink or brush your teeth. Do not clean or straighten up the crime scene.

· Write down, tape or record by any other means all the details you can recall about the assault and your assailant.

VICTIMS ASSISTANCE

Along with conducting investigations and solving crimes, CID Special Agents are also concerned with the welfare of victims of crime, violent or otherwise. The following resources provide information on where victims of crime can go for help.

CHAPTER 10

ENFORCEMENT

SECTION 1. ENFORCEMENT OF THE PROVISIONS OF THE JOINT ETHICS REGULATION

10-100. Penalties

a. Penalties for violation of the rules republished in, and prescribed by, this Regulation include applicable criminal, civil and administrative sanctions for current DoD employees, including punishment under the Federal UCMJ (reference (a)) for military members subject to the Federal UCMJ. Many of the statutes that regulate the post-Government service Federal employment activities of former or retired DoD employees also provide for specific criminal and administrative sanctions. This Chapter sets out the requirements for reporting and inquiry to ensure that ethics-related laws and regulations are properly enforced and that appropriate administrative or disciplinary action is taken.

b. For National Guard Members who are subject to this Regulation, but are not subject to the Federal UCMJ or other Federal statutes, regulations, or directives, the method of enforcement for this Regulation is the applicable State code of military justice or other applicable State statutes or regulations.

SECTION 2. REPORTING PROCEDURES

10-200. Reporting Suspected Violations. With the exception of the provisions of 41 U.S.C. 423 (reference (b)) that are addressed in subsection 10-202 of this Regulation, below, DoD employees who suspect that a violation of

b. If a suspected violation is reported to some entity other than those named in 10-200.d. through g. of this Regulation, above, then the notified person shall promptly report the matter to his Ethics Counselor.

c. An Ethics Counselor who receives a report shall review the facts and, if the facts tend to support a violation, report the allegation to the appropriate investigative organization or, through the chain of command or supervision, to the head of the DoD Component command or organization of the suspected violator. In addition, the Ethics Counselor must ensure that the following is accomplished:

(1) If a violation of 18 U.S.C. 203, 205, 207, 208 or 209 (reference (c)) is suspected, the matter shall be reported to the DoD Component's criminal investigative organization. The investigative organization is responsible for investigating the allegation and notifying DoJ in accordance with DoD Directive 5525.7 (reference (d)). In addition, the Ethics Counselor shall:

(a) Report to the DoD Component DAEO as follows:

1 The name and position (optional) of the informant;

of this Regulation, above, except that OGE Form 202, Appendix C of this Regulation, is not used for referrals;

(3) If a violation of 5 C.F.R. 2635 (reference (e)) in subsection 2-100 of this Regulation involving a loss to the Federal Government of $5,000 or more is suspected, the Ethics Counselor shall report the matter to the DoD Component DAEO in the same manner as in subsection 10-201.c.(1)(a) of this Regulation, above.

d. In addition, if any of the above violations fall within a DoD Component's procurement fraud program, the Ethics Counselor shall ensure that referrals, coordinations, and reports required by that program are accomplished. If the matter includes a suspected violation of the Gratuities Clause in a defense contract, the Ethics Counselor shall report the matter in accordance with DoD Component procedures issued pursuant to FAR 3.203 (reference (f)) in Appendix B of this Regulation. See subsection 10-202 of this Regulation, below.

e. For matters not handled within the DoD Component's procurement fraud program, any civil or criminal referrals to DoJ or the local U.S. Attorney of violations of this Regulation shall be coordinated with the DoD Component DAEO. The DoD Component DAEO shall be informed of referrals of violations of this Regulation handled within the DoD Component's procurement fraud program.

Report outlines Arizona National Guard troubles

PHOENIX -- A Defense Department agency's report on corrupt conduct in the Arizona National Guard says the state military organization suffers from lax discipline, unethical behavior by command personnel, a failure to assist sexual-abuse victims and multiple other problems.

Arizona Gov. Jan Brewer released the report Thursday and announced that Maj. Gen. Hugo Salazar, Arizona's adjutant general, will retire this year after 30 years of military service.

The 107-page National Guard Bureau report contains investigative findings from a team of military officers commissioned by Brewer after an Arizona Republic series in October series in October documented extensive criminal and ethical violations that whistle-blowers blamed on failed discipline and a corrupt culture.

The report verified newspaper accounts of fraud, fraternization, sexual abuse, assault and numerous other crimes, and the failure to discipline those responsible. However, it also concludes that commanders overall have attempted to address misconduct, and "have been working diligently to improve their practices."

In a statement released with the report, Brewer declared, "It is clear that the Arizona National Guard is not 'broken.' The findings are not an indictment of the Arizona National Guard, nor its leadership. ... Nonetheless, significant concerns were identified, and they will be remedied."

Brewer said she has instructed Salazar to develop a plan by May 17 to implement recommendations in the report. "I have depended upon his leadership of the Arizona National Guard, and will look for him to provide a steady hand and wise counsel as he transitions to planned retirement later this year."

In a letter to Brewer, Salazar described the assessment as "comprehensive," adding, "In general, I concur with the majority of findings and recommendations ... I believe the report shows that we are on the right track but that there is more that we can do."

The investigation was conducted by Maj. Gen. Ricky Adams and a team of officers who interviewed 35 witnesses and pored over military records between November and February. The review team found significant weaknesses in accountability, the reporting of misconduct, administrative actions, military justice and command ethics.

Among the findings:

-- Senior leaders in the Guard have engaged in ethical misconduct, especially sexual relations with subordinates, that "clearly violated" military regulations. "This misconduct created the perception that leadership lacked the moral high ground to take appropriate steps when disciplinary matters arose."

-- Full-time soldiers and airmen who committed serious wrongdoing rarely suffered military punishment. Instead, they were allowed to quit their jobs and remain in the National Guard. "Thus the misconduct would continue to permeate the good order and discipline of the organization."

-- Prior to 2009, the Arizona Guard did not conduct military courts martial due to a shortage of funding and a lack of judges; systemic problems blocked commanders from meting out nonjudicial punishment.

-- Victims of sexual abuse said their complaints were neglected or covered up. "Identified victims of sexual assault and harassment stated that they had been victimized twice: Once by the perpetrator and once by the leadership that was unable to address their needs."

-- Ethical and criminal violations were "prevalent" among non-commissioned officers who abused their authority and committed fraud that included recruiting graft and forgeries of military records.

-- The recent culture of the Arizona Guard "did not encourage members to report misconduct," and those who did so were hindered by retaliation by commanders. "They were specifically told to 'get on board' or 'quit making waves.' " That problem was exacerbated by "a lack of trust in the inspector general and legal offices," which are supposed to protect victims and whistle-blowers.

The assessment team also conducted an opinion survey of Guard personnel. Although 90 percent of the respondents listed high morale, nearly half of the soldiers and airmen called for improved leadership ethics, especially regarding fraternization, abuse of authority and fraud.

Four out of 10 soldiers and airmen said discipline is not meted out properly and leaders do not adhere to core values of the military. They also identified sexual assault, racism and favoritism as major problems.

Investigators said they met with numerous victims of adultery between supervisors and subordinates. "Each story was compelling in its impact on the families and the units involved," they wrote. "Most disturbing was the apparent lack of discretion exhibited by service members that blatantly violated fraternization policies.

"Fraternization, when engaged in by senior leaders, lays the groundwork for harassment ... and creates a permissive environment where misconduct can occur."

Like many of you, I am deeply concerned by the recent allegations of misconduct involving the Arizona National Guard and a small number of its service members.

I hold our National Guard members in the highest esteem. We entrust them with our nation's defense and security and turn to them during times of emergency.

Our sons and daughters look up to the 8,000 soldiers and airmen of the Arizona National Guard, and rightly so. That's why these allegations are so disturbing.

They erode public faith in this critical institution and undercut its ability to fulfill its mission to our state and nation. I won't stand for that.

But I also recognize we cannot rush to judgment in assuming the worst about the Arizona National Guard and its members. As commander in chief, I owe it to Arizonans and our service members to find the truth. Only then can I determine if issues of misconduct at the Arizona National Guard are isolated or systemic in nature and whether discipline has been handed down appropriately.

I need answers, and I'm going to get them. I've called for a full, fair and independent review of Arizona National Guard operations, including personnel, disciplinary procedures and the handling of recent cases and allegations of misconduct. It is to the credit of Maj. Gen. Hugo Salazar, adjutant general of the Arizona National Guard, that he welcomes this review and has pledged his full support and cooperation.

In recent weeks, my staff and I have been in frequent contact with the National Guard Bureau, the federal authority that helps oversee National Guard branches in each state. In the coming days, the bureau will be sending to Arizona personnel who will assist with an independent inquiry for which I've selected Maj. Gen. Ricky Adams to lead.

Adams is deputy commanding general of U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command for the Army National Guard and is based in Oklahoma. His military career spans more than three decades of decorated service, beginning with his enlistment in the 45th Field Artillery Brigade. Following the 9/11 terrorist attacks, he was deployed to Afghanistan, where he directed efforts in Kabul to bring Western-style law-enforcement procedures and modern training to a national police force of more than 60,000 officers.

More recently, Adams was assistant adjutant general of the Oklahoma Army National Guard. He is a recipient of the Bronze Star medal, among his many commendations for honorable conduct and service.

In his civilian capacity, Adams has more than 27 years of law-enforcement experience with the Oklahoma Highway Patrol. He serves as the assistant commissioner of the Oklahoma Department of Public Safety. In short, Adams is supremely qualified for this important task. I am thankful to Oklahoma for temporarily parting with his services and, of course, to Adams himself for his willingness to leave behind his family and work responsibilities in order to travel to Arizona for this critical mission.

As a token of my gratitude, I pledge any assistance necessary for Adams and his team to complete their work as quickly and thoroughly as possible. This review will go where the facts lead. At its conclusion, I'm confident I'll have the information necessary to help make certain the Arizona National Guard lives up to its honorable heritage and the public trust.

Janice K. Brewer is governor of Arizona.

Hi Ben … please proof the attached letter and then Tara can print for Governor's review in the morning. I'm hoping to get this out early this week; however, I need to know if we can personalize the letters in any way and how we think is going to be the best way to send it out.

Once the Governor has provided edits/approval on the letter, we'll need to work to get them printed (I believe roughly 4,000) and then also a pdf emailed out to Guard members. Let me know what the plan is on getting this sent out.

Also, once we have a final letter (and we'll need to make sure the correct date is on it depending on when we'll send it out) – please make sure Sharon and Heather have a pdf copy of the letter via email.

Thank you! ☺

Pease print in draft for Governor's review.

Cindy – I sent you a note about delivery earlier. I have sent another note to General Bridges' crew to see if they can at least provide a list of names so we can personalize the letters for them to deliver, and also a breakdown of how many of them would need a hard copy letter as opposed to an email letter, if we decide to send as a pdf.

Subject: Application for Alaska Adjutant General and DMVA Commissioner

Governor Parnell and Members of the Search Committee:

Please find my letter of interest and resume for consideration as the Alaska Adjutant General and DMVA Commissioner. The opportunity came to my attention following Maj Gen McGuire's visit to the Pentagon.

I am currently a Florida National Guardsman assigned to the National Guard Bureau, and meet the statutory requirements to be federally recognized as a general officer. If selected, my family and I will move to Alaska and I will transfer to the Alaska National Guard as required by Chapter 26.05 of the Alaska Military Code.

Thank you for your consideration.

Most respectfully,
John Muller

SUBJECT: Letter of Interest for the Adjutant General of Alaska Position

Governor Sean Parnell
Office of the Governor
P.O. Box 110001
Juneau, AK 99811-0001

Dear Governor Parnell:

The purpose of this letter is to express my interest in serving as the Adjutant General of Alaska. You will undoubtedly have many capable officers from which to choose, and clearly your real challenge is to identify the best candidate to serve the State at this critical point in time.

In considering the recent Alaska National Guard issues, the principle solutions appear to be leadership, presence, and accountability. Alaska has a proud tradition of rugged independence. This core value can be used to drive change when combined with non-negotiable standards that leaders model ethical behavior and promote diversity. Although administrative effectiveness must improve, no one can address the underlying cultural problems from behind a desk. Changing culture is a hand's on venture that requires engaging people directly and inspiring them to move the organization forward.

After reviewing the Office of Complex Investigations report, some other thoughts come to mind regarding the way ahead. The critical first step is for the Adjutant General to build a new leadership team and to restore faith with the force. This may involve bringing in some talent from out of State, and absolutely requires identifying, developing and growing internal talent. The human capital, sexual harassment and rape prevention, and legal domains must be the first priority. Additionally, there must be a formal coordination mechanism with law enforcement in order to ensure accountability within the force. It goes without saying that your Adjutant General must keep you informed and minimize surprises.

To address longer term issues, I also recommend that the new Adjutant General work with your office and the Alaska Legislature to review and strengthen the Military Code of Alaska (Chapter 26.05).

Below are some aspects of my personality and experience that are central to what I bring to the table. The first of these is my leadership style, which emphasizes collaboration, mentoring, and sustaining a healthy team. The pressure on National Guard structure and budgets will continue to grow, and will also require your Adjutant General to engage at the national level to ensure Alaska retains the critical Army and Air National Guard capabilities it needs to continue supporting the Citizens of Alaska at home, and the nation abroad.

I am fortunate to have served in a wide range of assignments. In addition to tactical and operational assignments, I have served in the Congress, the joint community, the Army, and the National Guard. As the Aide de Camp to the Adjutant General of Florida, I gained a rich perspective of State-level National Guard issues early in my career. Service on the personal staffs of a senior U.S. Senator; the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; the Commander, NATO International Stabilization Assistance Force – Afghanistan; and the Chief, National Guard Bureau, has refined my ability to think at the strategic level and to see problems contextually.

While serving in the Office of the Assistant Secretary of the Army (Manpower & Reserve Affairs), I led multiple cross-organizational efforts to resolve Total Force integration, training, costing, and readiness issues with team members from the Office of the Secretary of Defense, Joint Staff, Army Staff, Army Commands, Army Service Component Commands, Army Reserve, and National Guard.

One of my core strengths is the ability to frame problems and to identify the underlying issues. We have a moral responsibility to vigorously advocate for the State, and its Soldiers and Airmen, and we can do this by being an essential part of the Total Force. My personal view is that developing people is the greatest responsibility we have as leaders. We must make significant progress in maturing our human capital management, administrative, and legal processes, but we all must work together to continue improving the ways we develop our most valued asset – the Alaska National Guard's military and civilian workforce. You have my commitment, if selected, to invest my time and energy to this critical issue. Thank you for your consideration.

Most respectfully,

BOI

Colonel John K. Muller, U.S. Army

Colonel John Muller currently serves as the Division Chief for Strategic Plans and Policy in the Army National Guard G5.

He received his commission through an Army ROTC scholarship at Florida Southern College where he was a distinguished military graduate. He holds a Masters Degree in Public Administration from American University and a certificate in legislative affairs from Georgetown University.

Colonel Muller initially served as a platoon leader, company executive officer, and battalion adjutant in the 1st Battalion, 502nd Infantry Regiment, 101st Airborne Division (Air Assault). During this tour the battalion completed rotations at the Joint Readiness and Jungle Warfare Training Centers, and tested the Javelin anti-tank missile.

Colonel Muller transitioned to the Army National Guard in 1995, where he served as Aide-de-Camp to the Adjutant General of Florida and Director of the Multijurisdictional Counterdrug Task Force Training program. He commanded Company D, 2nd Battalion, 124th Infantry and the Headquarters Company, 53rd Infantry Brigade, and completed multiple staff assignments. Colonel Muller also served as an assistant brigade operations officer during the response to Hurricane Opal in 1995.

In 2004, Colonel Muller became the deployment officer and Army National Guard liaison for the Training and Doctrine Command System Manager for Ground-based Midcourse Defense at U.S. Army Space and Missile Defense Command. He deployed in 2005 as an advisor to the Afghan National Army where he was a battalion senior advisor and later a brigade operations officer. His unit conducted counterinsurgency operations and provided security for Afghanistan's 2005 parliamentary election.

In 2007, Colonel Muller served as a defense legislative fellow in the U.S. Senate. He then served as a deputy legislative assistant to the Chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff. In 2010 he deployed as the Commander's Legislative Assistant and Deputy Political Advisor, NATO International Security Assistance Force. He then served as the Congressional Activities Branch Chief, in the Office of the Chief, National Guard Bureau.

From 2012 – 2014, Colonel Muller served as a Military Assistant for Readiness and Integration in the Office of the Assistant Secretary of the Army, Manpower and Reserve Affairs.

Colonel Muller completed a Secretary of Defense Corporate War College Fellowship and is a graduate of the Air War College (non-resident), the Joint and Combined Warfighting School, and the Army Command and General Staff College. His decorations include the Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal, Defense Meritorious Service Medal, Meritorious Service Medal, Joint Commendation Medal, Army Commendation Medal, Joint Staff Badge, Army Staff Badge, Combat Infantry Badge, Expert Infantry Badge, Ranger Tab, Parachutist Badge, and Air Assault Badge.

John and his wife Carolyn currently reside with their three children in Fairfax, VA.

Hi Ben … please proof the attached letter and then Tara can print for Governor's review in the morning. I'm hoping to get this out early this week; however, I need to know if we can personalize the letters in any way and how we think is going to be the best way to send it out.

Once the Governor has provided edits/approval on the letter, we'll need to work to get them printed (I believe roughly 4,000) and then also a pdf emailed out to Guard members. Let me know what the plan is on getting this sent out.

Also, once we have a final letter (and we'll need to make sure the correct date is on it depending on when we'll send it out) – please make sure Sharon and Heather have a pdf copy of the letter via email.

Thank you! ☺

Attn: Cindy Sims

Dear Governor Parnell,

This letter is in response to your October 3, 2014 inquiry into the issues BOI/PR/FPA BOI/PR/FPA raised to your office regarding his non-selection for a commissioning opportunity in the BOI/PR/FPA and his concerns about an on duty sexual relationship between the selectee and a supervisor. The second concern is very serious, I directed the 176th Wing to conduct a Command Directed Investigation (CDI) into the matter, and if substantiated take appropriate action. That matter does not have any bearing on the fact that, unfortunately BOI/PR/FPA exceeds the maximum waiver age of 35 up to 40 years for commissioning under Air Force Policy.

Commissioning in the Air National Guard is governed by Air Force Instruction 36-2005 which states that line officers commissioned in the grade of Second Lieutenant must be commissioned by their 35th Birthday. The Air National Guard (ANG) recruiting services issued a program guidance memorandum, PGM-21-A1YO, on 13 Jan 2012 which outlined a new nationwide program to inform and prequalify potential officer candidates. They followed up with, "Air Force Enlisted Guide to Become an Officer in the Air National Guard," on 12 April 2012. The guide states that, "Initial non-rated (non flying) line applicants must be commissioned prior to their 35th Birthday. Exception to Policy (ETP) for nonrated personnel can be requested for applicants with prior service if the applicant is commissioned prior to his 40th hirthday."

I am sorry that BOI/PR/FPA is unable to receive a commission as a line officer, and I know that he is an asset to the Non-Commissioned Officer corps. I expect a report from the 176th WG's CDI when complete as described in the enclosed memorandum, and will provide you with additional detail then. Please contact me at (907)428-6075, if you need further assistance on this matter.

Subject: RE: release

Mr Kaplan,

There is a waiver process available to me. My recent commander had an age waiver, and BOI/PR received a waiver. They call it an exception to policy, and it would have to be filled out by the 176th BOI/... After words, I was told later by BOI/PR that I need to have been commissioned by age 40, where I saw on the Air National Guard Officer website says, "Those interested in joining the Air Guard who have previously served are required to be able to complete 20 years service time (combined, Active and participating Guard or Reserve) before the age of 60. For example, a person serving 4 years active duty and serving in a reserve component for 3 years is eligible to join up to their 47th birthday." I was 8 years active duty Air Force and around 8 years Air National Guard. I should have been told, ahead of time, that I was not eligible to become an officer due to my age. I was not, and that was not in the posting requirements.

I attached my privacy release and I really hope Lisa Murkowski's office could help me. This was a dream of mine to become an officer, and it was shattered.

I received the message you sent to Senator Murkowski's web site regarding the age issue you are running up against with your attempt to be an commissioned officer in the Alaska Air National Guard.

Is there a waiver process available to you? Why were you not told of the age requirement before you went through the whole testing process? How did you find out about the age requirement?

I have attached our privacy release form you would need to complete if we are able to assist you with the National Guard Bureau.

I will be standing by to help.

MEMORANDUM FOR The Adjutant General Alaska (TAG-AK)
Alaska National Guard, PO Box 5800, Building 49000

FROM: 176 WG/CV

SUBJECT: TAG Inquiry - BOI/PR/FPA

1. Sir, attached is our first response and research into BOI/PR/FPA 's age waiver, along with a copy of the initial congressional inquiry. The Air Force Instructions and guidance have not changed. On the initial inquiry, National Guard Bureau stated in the past ten years they have only seen three cases approved for personnel going to commissioning school after their 40th birthday. Those three individuals were exceptional cases with extenuating circumstances, which required Secretary of the Air Force approval, all other requests were disapproved. BOI/PR/FPA 's situation did not appear to be an exceptional case with extenuating circumstances. What is different in this inquiry is BOI/PR/FPA alleges the person who was put into the position "was having sex on duty with a supervisor." This information was not provided to us in the congressional inquiry from Senator Murkowski's office on September 19, 2013. This is a separate issue and does not change the results of BOI/PR/FPA 's age waiver request.

2. On October 5, 2014, BOI/PR/FPA was asked to provide details of the allegation of the person having sex on duty with her supervisor. BOI/PR/FPA gave a written statement stating he does not know if the allegation is true. BOI/PR/FPA stated he heard it from an unnamed First Sergeant, whom he feels is a reliable source within the wing. During the interview, BOI/PR/FPA refused to say who had the alleged sexual relationship and declined to name the First Sergeant in the wing who told him this information. BOI/PR/FPA stated this unnamed First Sergeant did not tell him a name of the person having a sexual relationship, but told him the person having an alleged sexual relationship with her supervisor was the number two pick on the order of merit list for the position he applied for. BOI/... BOI/PR/FPA stated he submitted information to Mr. Kaplan in Senator Murkowski's office in his congressional inquiry. During this interview, BOI/PR/FPA stated he was not making an allegation of (sexual) misconduct, but merely passing on what he was told by this unnamed First Sergeant, because he felt officers or officer candidates should be held to a high moral standard.

3. We take allegations of sexual misconduct and/or unprofessional relationships very seriously; someone having sex with their supervisor while on duty is a very serious allegation. BOI/PR/... BOI/PR/FPA s statements indicates he has no direct knowledge of whether these allegations occurred, will not disclose who the First Sergeant or the person he believes is reliable source told him this information and further states he is not making an allegation of misconduct. Even with this limited information, due to the seriousness of the allegation, we plan on conducting a command directed investigation into the matter. This investigation may take at least two months, due to the some of the alleged parties may be Drill Status Guardsmen and normally drill a weekend a month. If this allegation is substantiated, we will inform you.

4. Please let us know if we can be of further assistance on this matter.

Dear Major General Katkus:

Enclosed is a letter from my constituent BOI/PR/FPA who serves in the Alaska Air National Guard. BOI/PR/FPA wrote that he expressed interest in becoming an officer, but was aware that he exceeded the age requirement. BOI/PR/FPA was told to go through the process and if he finishes high enough, command would fight for his age waiver. BOI/PR/FPA stated he had the highest score, but the command could not do a waiver for his age. BOI/PR/FPA is requesting reconsideration for a waiver with the Secretary of the Air Force.

I would appreciate it if your office could review and respond to BOI/PR/FPA's letter and request. Please send your response to my Anchorage office attention: Greg Kaplan.

Thank you for your attention on this matter.

Sincerely,

Lisa Murkowski

MEMORANDUM FOR The Adjutant General Alaska (TAG-AK)
Alaska National Guard, PO Box 5800, Building 49000

FROM: 176 WG/CV

SUBJECT: TAG Inquiry - BOI/PR/FPA

1. Sir, in response to your inquiry regarding BOI/PR/FPA research has been conducted to reconsider submitting an age waiver package for a prior service member who is over 40 years old to the Secretary of the Air Force. However, after doing the preliminary ground work, which included researching the Air Force Instructions (AFIs), reviewing the hiring process, reviewing historical age waivers and contacting the National Guard Bureau (NGB); at this time, the wing does not support endorsing an age waiver package for a prior service member for a line officer commissioning opportunity who is over 40 years old for the below reasons.

2. After contacting NGB, NGB stated since 2003 only three packages for members over 40 have been sent to the Secretary of the Air Force for approval and those were exceptional cases with extenuating circumstances. Extenuating circumstances are inferred to as circumstances beyond the member's control, such as an unforeseen family emergency or medical condition which interfered or prevented attendance to the commissioning school. NGB further stated it was a 'high possibility' that an age waiver for someone over 40 'would be disapproved.' BOI/PR/FPA does not appear to fit into the extenuating circumstances category.

3. After further research, NGB has a policy, still in effect, for Air National Guard commissioning for line officers. The policy states: "Prior service applicants will be considered and must be commissioned prior to their 40th birthday. For each year the applicant exceeds age 35, the applicant must have equivalent years of prior enlist service. Age waivers beyond age 40 will not be considered."

4. The wing has been following AFI 36-2005, Appointment in Commissioned Grades and Designation and Assignment in Professional Categories – Reserve of the Air Force and United States Air Force, with regards to age waivers for commissioning officers. In regards to commissioning a prior service member for a line officer position the AFI states: "The agencies below may not grant age waivers for appointment in the grade of second lieutenant beyond age 35. In the most unusual cases or the extraordinary qualifications of the individual, they may grant an age waiver for appointment in the grade of first lieutenant or higher. Waivers will not exceed the maximum age limit by more than 3 years." In the past four years, the 176th Wing has submitted and received approval on three age waivers for initial commissioning of line officers; all three candidates were under 38 years old, including the one BOI/FPA mentions in his letter, which all met the AFI guidance of waivers will not exceed the maximum age limit by more than 3 years. In the past four years, there was a top scoring candidate who was over 40 years old, and the wing did not support an age waiver for that applicant.

With Governor's edits.

Today is a federal holiday, so DMVA says they can't give me answers on a list to use for personalization until tomorrow. Regardless of whether we can or not, I recommend a paper letter with e-sig. For 4,000, it might be better and faster to have color art do it on our letterhead than to try to print them in house. I don't know how much letterhead Tara has on hand, but we can have procurement ship some up. We can also give DMVA a pdf so they can go ahead and email it out in advance of paper copies getting delivered if you want.

Merging for personalization would be nice, considering the circumstances, but is going to significantly complicate delivery and probably slow it down, since we don't have the addresses and would be counting on DMVA to track 4,000 pieces of paper for us.

My Turn/Letter to the Editor
From
Richard Irwin, Chair, Donna Erickson and Rachel Gernat
Public Members of the Council on Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault

As public members of the Council on Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault, we felt it was important to voice our support for the work that has been done to combat the scourge of domestic violence and sexual assault in Alaska.

While some have been quick to criticize Governor Sean Parnell for not taking quicker or more decisive action relative to issues raised recently in our National Guard, we can attest throughout his long public service as a State Representative, State Senator and Governor, Governor Parnell has never waivered in his commitment to create safety for victims, hold offenders accountable and work toward solutions to prevent domestic and sexual violence throughout Alaska.

Governor Sean Parnell has been a strong voice throughout his tenure as governor for bringing awareness and attention to the scourge of violence in our state. His Choose Respect Initiative goes beyond the marches that may garner media attention. He has provided more funding for prevention efforts than at any time in Alaska's history. He has raised support for shelters and intervention programs. He has supported creative and innovative approaches to changing norms around violence such as the "Green Dot Alaska" campaign, "Girls on the Run," and "Coaching Boys Into Men." His administration and the Council we represent have worked hand-in-hand to support statewide youth initiatives and to bring Alaska's men into the conversation about how to create change. And for the first time ever, the Council and the University of Alaska have worked together to complete statewide and regional surveys to get real, statistically valid numbers on the extent of the problems we face so that we can better design and evaluate solutions.

Perhaps as important, Governor Parnell has been willing to face up to and address problems when and where they arise – moving the issue of domestic and sexual violence from a secret shame, to the forefront of public discourse.

Alaska and our nation have a long way to go when it comes to creating a society where our homes, streets, institutions and communities are safe and free from violence for all people. But it is also important to realize that we have made progress under Governor Parnell's leadership.

As members of the Council we are in a position to witness the impact of the shelter programs, victim support services, prevention efforts and legal advocacy provided throughout Alaska all year long. October is Domestic Violence Awareness Month and we wanted to express our gratitude to all those working to end domestic violence and sexual assault and to Governor Parnell for his leadership.

Today, Brigadier General Thomas Katkus visited with me, expressing his interest in serving as Commissioner of DMVA and Adjutant General of the ANG. He submitted a letter of interest as well as his resume, and I spoke with him briefly about his personal and professional history. I committed that someone from our office will follow up with him as necessary as this process continues. I will get this packet of information to Mike right away, for your consideration.

Colonel Catherine F. Jorgensen is currently serving as both Director of the Joint Staff, Alaska National Guard and as Chief of Staff for the Alaska Army National Guard. She is responsible for providing command and control of National Guard forces in executing homeland defense, defense support of civil authorities and other domestic emergency missions within the State of Alaska. She is also responsible to provide Army National Guard Soldiers that are fully prepared to protect Alaska from any threat, disaster, or emergency.

Colonel Catherine F. Jorgensen received her commission in 1985 after graduating from the Reserve Officer Training Program at the University of Alabama, where she earned a Bachelor of Science degree. Upon completion of the Adjutant General Basic Course, she was assigned to the 2nd Support Command at Nellingen, Germany. There she managed the Enlisted Assignments branch, followed by the Administrative Services Division. She finished her Germany tour as the Officer/Warrant Officer Assignment Branch Chief followed by the Adjutant General Advanced Course at Fort Harrison, Indiana. Colonel Jorgensen was then assigned to the Fort Bragg, North Carolina where she was the Chief of Officer Management for the 1st Corps Support Command. Following that assignment, she served as Commander of the 19th Replacement Detachment. Following Fort Bragg, she was assigned to Dugway Proving Ground, Utah where she served as the Post Protocol Officer, Assistant Operations Officer and culminating as the Installation Executive Officer. She arrived in Anchorage in June 1993 for her final active duty assignment as the Operations Officer for the Anchorage Military Entrance Processing Station (MEPS). She left active duty and served in the Army Reserves with units based in Maryland and Heidelberg, Germany. She joined the Alaska Army National Guard in September 2000 as a Military Personnel Officer. Other assignments with the Alaska National Guard include Assistant Chief of Staff, Deputy Human Resource Officer, Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, J1/Human Resource Officer, and Brigade Commander. She is married to COL

Mr Nizich,
I hope you recall our meeting in August. Although I lamented that such a meeting was needed, I came away optimistic that the environment for the Alaska National Guard could be and would be improved. Since that time however, I believe that the command climate has deteriorated even further, and unless the course is altered it will not improve.
In a few short days, I will be eliminated from service in the Alaska National Guard due to lack of an assignment following my departure from the 176th Wing command position. For this reason, timing is again important to me. I ask for one final meeting to pass along my concerns and those of the Airmen and Soldiers who serve. Unless MG Katkus reverses course, I will lose my membership in the AKNG on or about 16 October. If we could meet prior to that date I would be grateful. If needed, I will come to Juneau.

Respectfully,
Chuck Foster

Subject: Request to Meet

Mr Nizich,

I am Chuck Foster, commander of the 176th Wing of the Alaska Air National Guard at Joint Base Elmendorf-Richardson. While my military position informs what I would like to discuss with you, I stress that my request is made as an individual, as opposed to a function of my office.

I trust you are aware of some of the challenges that face the Alaska National Guard, and perhaps those challenges specific to the 176th Wing. As a departing commander (a change of command is scheduled for September 18th) I have become aware of a rising number of concerns in the wing which I am unable to address with Major General Katkus. I am at a very uncomfortable quandary, yet I would like to have some of your time to relay these concerns. I will be truthful: some of these concerns I share personally, so if you are able to meet with me I will give you both my first-hand account, and speak for others in my command who believe I am their only recourse.

As I mentioned, I leave my command position on 18 September, so timeliness is a concern if not only due to the weight of the topic. I am currently scheduled to depart on a trip 25 Aug-3 Sep. If we are not able to meet prior to the 24th, I am willing to cancel the trip. I am currently waiting for a meeting with Gen Katkus but given the time constraints I thought it might be best to get on your calendar sooner rather than later.

I have presumed to contact you directly and if this is not appropriate I ask that you help redirect my request.

Thank you for your attention and assistance; I look forward to our meeting.

AKNG-AAG

30 September 2011

MEMORANDUM FOR INFORMATION

FROM: BG Banez, AAG-Army

SUBJECT: After action report for AKTAG Command Climate Survey (CCS) results.

Purpose: This report is intended to provide an update on the AKTAG Command Climate Survey results and articulate the way ahead for our organization.

Scope: The CCS targeted the E7/O4 grades and above and resulted in an overall response rate of approximately 36%. The statistical norm for a survey of this kind is approximately 19% indicating that the information gathered is considered a good data set from which to draw conclusions. Additionally, considering the relatively large response rate, we can conclude that there is a significant desire from the field to be heard. The data presented could be broken down between officer/enlisted, male/female and ANG/ARNG. For the purpose of this after action report, I chose to look at the data corporately as my intention is to enact solutions that will address and correct significant problems for all parties regardless of the demographic.

Scoring: All of the data received was normalized to ensure a relative scale. With the exception of the "True-False" and "Yes-No" questions, the scaling criteria for the remaining data was assigned a value ranging from one to five, with one being the lowest (worst) possible score for a particular category and five being the highest. I have based my assessment on the following delineation between the problem areas;

a. Score: 1 to 2.9: RED
b. Score: 3.0 to 3.5: YELLOW
c. Score: 3.6 +: GREEN

Analysis: A category score of 3.6 or above, although not ignored, will not be addressed in this after action report. A category score of YELLOW indicates a problem area which requires addressing to get back on the right track. A category score of RED is an area which will get immediate aggressive attention to alleviate any corrosion due to inaction. Upon study of the data and comments, I have concluded that the following three categories require action from our senior leaders:

1. Dissimilar standards application: RED
2. Strategic Communication from top to bottom: RED
3. Leadership Integrity: RED

Request the results of the 5 April 2011 ASMB be thrown out. This request is based on the allegation the board was in violation of paragraph 6 (b) of the NGB-ARH Policy Memo #10-002. "Selection objectives that would narrow the board population to the point it targets individual Soldiers will not be developed." It is apparent the

21 March 2012

An open letter to the Alaska State Legislature,

Leaders must be held to a higher standard given they set the conditions for how an organization runs. A dynamic leader inspires their followers; a corrupt leader destroys the team from within. This is the unfortunate history of two leaders who have been party to the undoing of a proud organization. One leader is guilty by acts of commission, the other by acts of omission.

Major General Tom Katkus has been the Adjutant General of the Alaska National Guard for the past two years and the Assistant Adjutant General-Army for three years previous to that. During his time as a general in the Guard, the following events have taken place:

1. Sexual assaults of female members in the organization that were brought to the command's attention and were not investigated.
2. Discipline and integrity lapses at the highest levels of the organization to include the forced retirement for corruption of MG Katkus's selection for brigadier general of the Army National Guard.
3. Inappropriate conduct by MG Katkus's selection for wing commander in the Air National Guard which prevented the officer's promotion to brigadier general.
4. Three major aircraft crashes in three years (two UH-60s and one C-17) which cost the U.S. government more than $200M and the lives of four airmen.
5. Waste and abuse of federal funds by MG Katkus to include the expenditure of more than $1,000,000 for his opulent executive conference room.
6. Illegal use of military aircraft by senior leaders of the Guard which included the transportation of game animal trophies across state lines.
7. The promotion of officers to the rank of colonel by MG Katkus who have misconduct documented on their records, to include one officer with multiple DWIs and another who had sexual relations with the wife of a Soldier who was deployed to a combat zone.
7. Abject disregard of the command climate of the organization which has resulted in a toxic leadership environment in the colonel and brigadier general ranks.

The aforementioned issues are documented and easily substantiated via Freedom of Information requests queried from the Inspector General or other public sources. These activities reflect only the most severe offenses in the organization, and are indicators of the dereliction of duty by MG Tom Katkus as he failed in his performance as a general in the Alaska National Guard.

While it is unfortunate what MG Katkus has done, it is even more regrettable that another senior leader in the State of Alaska has overlooked the misconduct. Governor Sean Parnell and his staff were notified of these issues on multiple occasions by more than a dozen mid- to high ranking officers in the Alaska National Guard. While the governor has listened to the concerns of the leaders in the organization, he has failed to investigate the facts surrounding MG Katkus and the corruption within the Alaska National Guard. For example, the following issues were presented to Governor Parnell or his staff:

1. Four females who were sexually assaulted within the Alaska National Guard met with the governor's sexual assault coordinator. These females discussed the National Guard leadership's failure to exercise any initiative to assist them in dealing with their issues. Subsequently no action was taken by the sexual assault coordinator to address the systematic problems in the organization.
2. Senior leaders in the Alaska National Guard informed the governor and his staff of the graft, corruption and malfeasance by MG Katkus. No action was taken by the governor or his staff. These senior leaders have offered to give additional testimony, but the Parnell administration has failed to follow up with these leaders.
3. A number of mid level officers have informed the governor and his staff of particular circumstances involving MG Katkus and his cronies who have violated both federal and state laws while serving in the Alaska National Guard. Again, while the staff have been receptive to the receipt of information, there has been no follow through from the administration to address these issues.

Since the Parnell administration has opted not to address these problems, the Alaska State Legislature has the opportunity to support the Soldiers and Airmen who have dedicated their lives to Alaska and our nation. We ask that there be an investigation into the corruption and toxic command climate surrounding the commission of offenses by MG Tom Katkus. Additionally, we ask that there be an investigation into the omission of action by Governor Parnell and his administration as he has failed to perform due diligence to safeguard the 4,000 members of the once proud Alaska National Guard.

Chief, National Guard Bureau

The Honorable Mark Begich
United States Senate
Washington, DC 20510

Dear Senator Begich:

Thank you for bringing your concerns regarding the Alaska National Guard to my attention. The National Guard appreciates the seriousness of the issues raised in your inquiry and I assure you they will be thoroughly investigated. I have forwarded a copy of the material to the Department of the Army and the Department of the Air Force. All allegations involving senior officials will be investigated by the appropriate service Inspector General.

I have directed the National Guard Bureau Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) Office to contact the Alaska National Guard Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Coordinator to verify that all reported cases have been handled or are being handled appropriately. Additionally, I have directed my SAPR Office to make Alaska a top priority for their Staff Assistance Visit program.

Finally, I have asked the Director of the Air National Guard to send a team to Alaska to conduct a thorough assessment of the 176th Wing and the 168th Wing.

As more information becomes available, I will keep you updated. In the meantime, should you have any questions about this matter please contact the Director of the National Guard Bureau's Legislative Liaison, Brigadier General Wilton S. Gorkse at (571) 256-7339.

Sir,

The SA reviewed your products and understands that all of the cases involve Soldiers under Title 32. As you know, the SECARMY's #1 priority is to prevent sexual assault. Accordingly, you should continue to support the victims with all available assets at your disposal and thoroughly investigate the cases as appropriate.

Thank you for your assistance throughout this process.

LTC Pratt

Here is the Excel spreadsheet of the 29 cases that we are tracking since 2009. It prints out best on 11 X 17 paper.

Of the 19 unrestricted cases that details are available to me, only Case #2 is egregious enough for consideration fitting felony sexual assault under Alaska law. Law enforcement declined to take the case forward for grand jury consideration as it lacked the supporting evidence. NGB provided us with resources from the Office of Complex Investigations to investigate further. We are awaiting their final report to see if they gather enough additional testimonial evidence for criminal prosecution; If not we will be moving forward with appropriate civil disciplinary action.

No cases involved Title 10 members.

I don't know we track specific resources we provided to each victim, however the Alaska National Guard has resources available that include a Joint Service Support staff of approximately 50 individuals who support 17 programs, including a sexual assault prevention and response coordinator, a military and family life consultant, director of psychological health, Military OneSource consultant, and family assistance centers. Beyond the Joint Service staff, we have an additional 40 fully trained and accredited victim advocates.

If I can be of any further assistance, please do not hesitate to call. My mobile is best for getting directly to me.

From Brig. Gen. Catherine Jorgensen, the Alaska Army National Guard chief of staff:

"Sexual harassment and assault are not acceptable in our workplace. And sexual misconduct, even in the area of inappropriate consensual relationships, contradicts of our Army core values.

"I want the Alaska National Guard to be a workplace that fosters trust, integrity, loyalty, respect and honor. There is no room here for intimidation, manipulation, harassment or assault of any kind.

"The Alaska Army National Guard takes all allegations seriously. Although the process may seem long, it is imperative that we exercise diligence, respecting due process, privacy, and the rights of the individuals involved. As we become aware of misconduct of any kind, we address it appropriately. The key is to model and maintain a culture of respect, empowering all members of our organization to address misconduct issues properly at their level. All leaders within the Alaska Army National Guard will continue to focus on the prevention of misconduct and responding swiftly to care for victims and seek justice.

"In the Alaska National Guard, we are a team of more than four thousand citizen Airmen and Soldiers. We serve, protect and defend our country, our state, and each other. We understand that we have a responsibility—and a moral obligation—to ensure that our brothers- and sisters-in-arms are safe, and we are committed to do all we can to ensure their safety."

Good afternoon everyone!
Thank you for your quick turnaround on the last set of questions from Sean Cockerham, the McClatchy reporter who is working on a story about the Alaska National Guard.
He asked some follow up questions about the investigations we have and some of the discipline hearings that will be taking place.
We have cleared the answers through our national guard legal team to make sure we do not jeopardize any discipline effort.
Before we send these answers to the reporter, we would like your approval.
Will you please give these a look and let us know if you have any feedback?
Thank you very much for your support!

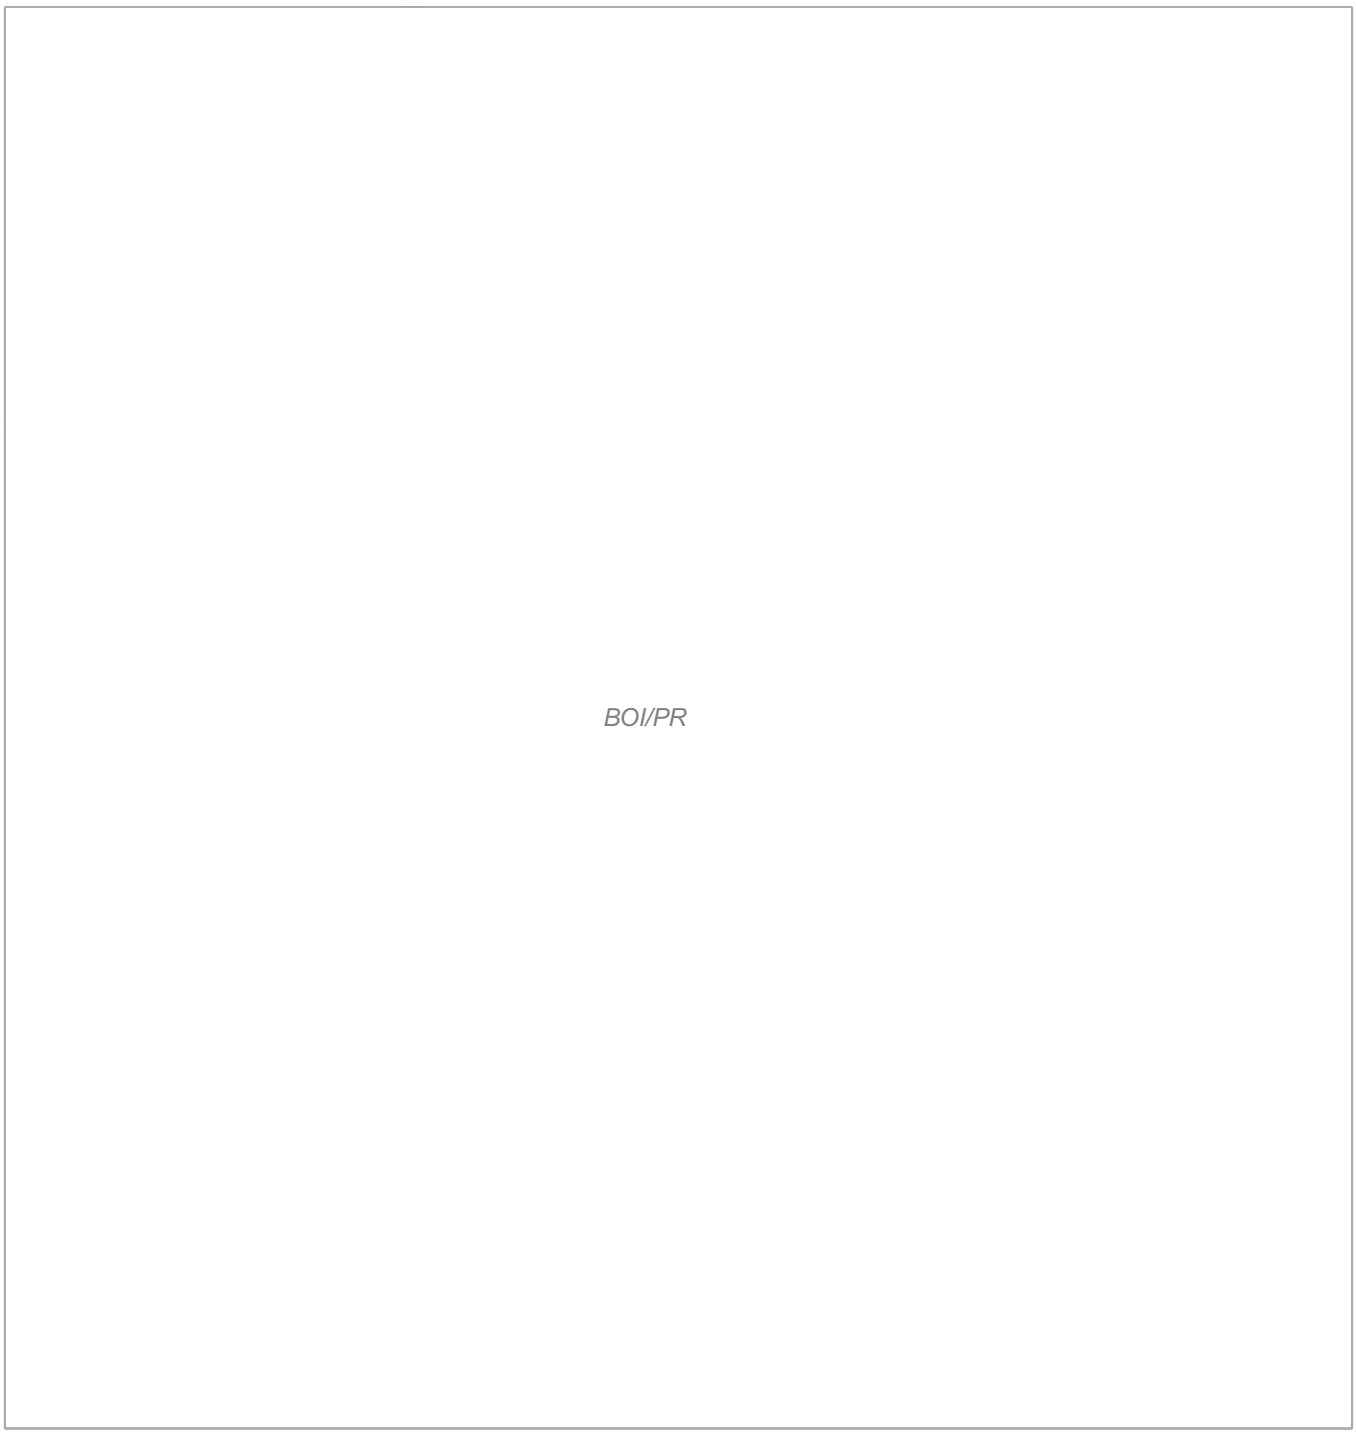
Bridges and Chief of Staff, BG Catherine Jorgensen. The basis for this issue and corresponding complaint is based upon the auspices of Article 138 (Complaints of Wrongs by a Senior Official) and the overall command climate created by the two senior leaders of the AKARNG. The Article 138 Complaint is indicative of the command climate established by these personnel, as the established climate is one of fear, intimidation, retribution and coercion. There is also significant inequality in the application of standards they apply to individuals. This inequality is varies depending upon their personal relationship with the affected soldier.

I have been serving in the military with honor and distinction both on active duty in the US Army and with the National Guard since my initial enlistment into the Massachusetts Army National Guard in 1985 and accession to the US Army as a Lieutenant in 1991. I have received outstanding ratings and commendations in every position I've held. I have never in my entire military career been witness to, nor been accused of, anything remotely like what is unfolding before me now. The amount of personal attacks, personal agenda driven actions and personal conduct of senior officers is astounding.

I took command of the AKARNG Recruiting and Retention Battalion in December of 2007. The AKARNG Commander at the time, BG Thomas Katkus, assigned me there with the directive to "fix it". The unit was dysfunctional and had many issues exacerbated by poor leadership over multiple years. I spent a majority of the first year and a half of my command removing soldiers for poor performance or ethical type issues. I was promoted to Lieutenant Colonel in June of 2008. Following that period of rebuilding, the unit started performing well and during the next three years of my command; we exceeded our recruiting mission each year. I received Above Center Mass ratings on each Officer Evaluation Reports during my four and a half year tenure as the commander.



In December 2011 BG Bridges (then COL Bridges) called me into his office prior to taking command of the Alaska Army National Guard. During the conversation he reached into one of his bags in the office, pulled out a set of Colonel pin-on rank insignia, put it on the table in his office and said, "Here, you are going to need this". Also in the conversation he informed me that I would be changing command in May of 2012 and taking an assignment as the Deputy Chief of Staff, Operations (G3) for the AKARNG. In February of 2012, I arrived at work to find a promotion packet on my desk. Recalling the recent conversation in his office and knowing that the G3 position was an O6 position and that I had the required time in service and time in grade for promotion I expected that I was going to be promoted under the Unit Vacancy Promotion program. I completed the packet and brought it to MG Katkus (now The Adjutant General) for signature, which he signed. I turned the packet in for processing [redacted]

BG Jorgenson only complies with Army regulations when it suits her, and likewise ignores it if it does not suit her end goal. There have been significant violations and inconsistencies with hiring practices, re-assignments and even promotions; CW3 Curtis Cain, CW3 Katherine Sanders, CW4 Tammy Kostoff and MSG John Phlegar can attest to these. These inconsistencies have had a negative effect on soldiers who were treated unfairly and unequally due to having a relationship with me. Two of note is CPT Scott Lathrop and MAJ Jeffrey Lunsford. Everyone I have listed has documented proof or personal events highlighting the inconsistent application of the regulation or outright malfeasance conducted by or directed by BG Jorgenson and by extension BG Bridges, but due the fear of reprisal have chosen to remain silent.

An example of these questionable practices involves the employment of BOI/PR BOI/PR. In the summer of 2013, BOI/PR was interviewed and apparently provided testimony in the investigation of BOI/PR/LE/FPA. After BOI/PR provided her testimony, she was placed on an BOI/PR set of orders (which she is still on today through the end of this fiscal year) and assigned to work in the BOI/PR . There are two significant issues with this hire. First, BOI/PR has three felony charges on her record (two of them resulted in convictions). All three charges occurred after she enlisted in the National Guard. One of the felony convictions was for theft and another was for possession of a controlled substance. To assign a soldier with this record, who in reality should have had their security clearance revoked, is evidence of the quid pro quo conduct and vindictive nature in the current command climate. Second, BOI/PR/LE/FPA was reassigned from BOI/PR during the ongoing investigation and was assigned temporarily to the same office as BOI/PR. To assign a soldier to work along side the one they accused of misconduct is not conducive to a positive work environment. BG Jorgenson was the final authority in regards to placing any soldier BOI/PR orders. While she retained this authority, she prevented many quality soldiers from obtaining BOI/PR

BOI/PR (to include CPT Scott Lathrop) yet provided these opportunities to others (BOI/PR).

ALASKA STATE LEGISLATURE

SENATOR HOLLIS FRENCH

February 25, 2014

Governor Sean Parnell
P.O. Box 110001
Juneau, Alaska 99811

Dear Governor Parnell:

In November, I wrote to you regarding my strong concern with how sexual assault cases have been handled by the Alaska National Guard. National Guard chaplains had been quoted in news articles as saying they had been reporting sexual assaults to the leadership of the Guard and to your office since 2010 with little or no response.

On Monday, February 24th, another news article appeared in the Anchorage Daily News discussing the status of those cases, and I was deeply troubled to see that they are being disposed of via administrative proceedings, even though at least some of those cases were reported to be sexual assaults.

Please advise me if any sexual assault charge from the Alaska Guard investigation has been referred to the Alaska Department of Law for prosecution, and if so, what disposition those charges received. Included in this request would be any criminal charges related to that investigation such as violating the terms of a protective order or hindering prosecution. I know that you and I agree that swift and certain justice should fall upon anyone committing a sexual assault in Alaska.

Sincerely,

Senator Hollis French

I talked to McHugh this morning and he indicated that you would like a copy of a sexual assault report from NGB.

Senator Dyson had a similar request and we shared this information with him in December. This is a Staff Assistance Visit report after Senator Begich requested NGB look at Alaska's Sexual Assault program and Air National Guard Flight Safety Program in April 2012.

Re: 2012 National Guard Bureau's Site Assistance Visit Report, Alaska National Guard

Senator Dyson,

I would like to personally thank you for your concern and your desire to address sexual assault within the Alaska National Guard. As you know, reducing sexual assault in our state is one of the top priorities of Governor Parnell's administration. As the Commissioner of the Department of Military and Veterans Affairs, ensuring the safety of all of our citizen Soldiers, Airmen, and state work force is my number one focus. Every one of us has a role in bringing about awareness and combating this horrible crime in our work environment.

In April 2012, at the inquiry of Senator Mark Begich to General Craig McKinley, the Chief of the National Guard Bureau, the NGB Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) Program Manager, Ms. Jane Lux, accompanied by the Air National Guard and Army National Guard program managers, conducted a SAPR Staff Assistance Visit (SAV) on June 11th and 12th, 2012. The SAV specifically had these objectives:

- Meet with State Joint, Army National Guard and Air National Guard leadership to provide an overview of SAPR/SHARP program policy requirements and answer questions.
- Assist the new Joint Forces Headquarters and Wing Sexual Assault Response Coordinators (SARCS), Ms. Octavia Thompson and Major Keolani Bailey, on steps to set up programs and review checklists for program development.
- Define sexual assault reporting standard operating procedures and ensure SARCs have access to all data management systems for documenting reports.
- Present an understanding and update on NGB and DoD SAPR goals and initiatives.

It is important to know the SAV was not intended to serve as an inspection of the Alaska National Guard program. The team did not review case files of reported sexual assaults, nor did they speak with Soldiers or Airmen in sensing sessions to research command climate, as an inspection team would have done. A copy of Ms. Lux's trip report and Out-brief presentation is attached for your reference. It is meant for documentation of team activity and not formal report to the state leadership. The areas in the trip report mirrored the out brief with AK NG leadership:

- Leadership can only investigate what comes to their attention.
- The previous SARC did not adequately document sexual assaults in the data system of record. This was immediately rectified by the current SARC.
- The Air National Guard SAPR Program Manager concerns were noted that is AF Office of Special Investigations has jurisdiction for investigation of a sexual assault on JBER and should be referred to OSI rather than local law enforcement.
- At the time of the SAV, there were anonymous reports of ANG sexual assault victims not coming forward. This needed to be addressed through Wing SARC training opportunities in an effort to build confidence in the system. The Wing SARCS noted to the ANG SAPR PM that they continued to encourage airmen to come forward at follow up trainings.

Since the June 2012 SAV, changes and improvements have been made within the Alaska National Guard and DoD SAPR program. One of these improvements involves the requirement of national certification through the National Organization of Victim Advocates for SARCs and victim advocates. Ms. Thompson, JFHQ SARC, is one of only four National Guard SARCs, nationwide, who qualified at the highest level of experience and training (Level IV). All SARCs and victim advocates must now go through extensive training and background checks before working with victims, thus ensuring the highest quality possible for support of our members. Recruitment of new victim advocates to serve at the company and brigade levels, as well as the squadron and group levels, has increased with additional advocates to provide a wide range of availability.

Ms. Thompson has reached out statewide to programs such as the Alaska Network of Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault, Alaska Council on Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault, and to the Governor's Choose Respect initiative. Locally, she coordinates closely with other programs such as STAR, AWAIC, Forensic Nursing Services of Providence and the active duty programs on JBER. Educating others about the process of our response is one of her main tasks when meeting with those outside the Alaska National Guard.

Two changes of note include the new National Guard Bureau's Office of Complex Investigations (OCI) which now investigates all sexual assault allegations not investigated or prosecuted by local authorities. When a case is referred to NGB for an OCI investigation, NGB will assign trained investigators from different states to conduct the investigation to ensure complete and unbiased input.

Lastly, since spring of 2012, more victims have come forward to report unrestricted reports. All but three have been unrestricted, a complete reversal from previous reports, where most were restricted. I believe this is due to the confidence in leadership and the quality of support being provided to our members. Our goal of strengthening the culture against sexual violence and misconduct is at the forefront of this organization.

I am available at anytime to provide additional information or clarification if you need further assistance.

MG Thomas H. Katkus
Commissioner, DMVA

NGB J1-SAPR 6 July 2012

MEMORANDUM FOR Director, J1, National Guard Bureau, 111 South George Mason Drive, Arlington, VA 22204

SUBJECT: Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) Staff Assistance Visit (SAV), Alaska National Guard

1. A SAPR Staff Assistance Visit (SAV) was conducted on11-12 June 2012 to the Alaska Joint Force Headquarters in Anchorage, Alaska. NGB staff members participating in the SAV were Jane Lux, NGB J1 SAPR Program Chief, MAJ Tela McFadden, ARNG Sexual Harassment and Assault Response and Prevention (SHARP) Branch Chief, and 1stLt Lori Alix, NGB/A1S SAPR Program Manager.

2. The objectives of the SAV were to:
   a. Meet with state Joint, ARNG, and ANG leadership to provide an overview of SAPR/SHARP program policy requirements and answer questions
   b. Assist new JFHQ and Wing Sexual Assault Response Coordinators (SARCs) on steps to set up program and review checklists for program development
   c. Define sexual assault reporting standard operating procedures and ensure SARCs have access to all data management systems for documenting reports
   d. Present an understanding and update on NGB and DoD SAPR goals and initiatives

3. State leadership and employees present for the initial in brief:
1) MG Katkas – AK Adjutant General; 2) BG Bridges - ATAG; 3) Col O'Brian168th Wing Commander; Col Wenke, 176th Wing Commander, 4) COL Williams – USPFO; 5) Col Bailar, AK – NG JAG; 6) Octavia Thompson-JFHQ SARC; 7) Maj Bailey, 176th Wing SARC; 8) Maj Hunstein, 168th SARC 9) Col Grunwald – HRO & J1 Director 9) Col Lincoln, AKANG CoS; 10) LTC Schell, ARNG Asst COS; 11) Lt Col McPhetres, ANG DoS 12) LTC Koch, Chaplain. 13) CMSgt Calvin-WG/Command Chief- 176th; 14) CCSM Gordon Choate, CSM Pamela Harrington, CW2 Nicholas Forbes, CMSgt Timothy Delph, COL Hunt Kerrigan, COL Michael Thompson; 15) Lt Col Kay Spear-Budd, Family Program Chief and Alt JFHQ SARC

4. Background on reasons Alaska was selected for a Staff Assistance Visit:

a. The previous full-time JFHQ SARC was initially hired as a temporary technician. When the temporary position expired, the state created a contract for her to continue in the role. During the time she served as JFHQ SARC, she did not report state ARNG sexual assaults into the Army's system of records, SADMS. Additionally, she was often late or did not input required metrics into the GKO SAPR site. When this issue was brought to her and her immediate leadership, she regularly stated that she had site accessibility problems with her computer. That prevented her from uploading the data into the system. There was no problem with access from the NGB side and it was recommended that she work with her state Help Desk to resolve the problem.

b. The NGB J1 SAPR Program Chief, met with Brig Gen McManus, AK CoS, when she visited NGB late in 2011. At that time, documentation was provided to Brig Gen McManus about some of the problems with the contract JFHQ SARC. Although the SARC was a skilled trainer and victim advocate, she did not regularly meet program management requirements to document cases in systems of record.

c. The state advertised the JFHQ SARC position for hire as a technician and a new JFHQ SARC was hired in February 2012. Additionally, the two Wing SARCs were new to the positions and were trained by NGB SAPR in December 2011. It was important to provide support and program guidance to help create a positive climate where the new SARCs could be successful and meet program requirements.

d. The SAV to Alaska was moved up in the SAPR team's priority to respond to an IG report and congressional inquiry to the CNGB from Senator Mark Begich. There was a concern within the inquiry that not all sexual assaults were being reported. It was not clear in the IG report whether reports in Alaska were not being reported to NGB, or whether sexual assault victims did not have confidence in coming forward to report to SARCs or VAs.

5. SAV Process:

a. The SAV included an initial SAPR 101 briefing for AK leadership on day one of the visit. The briefing began at 0800 at the AK National Guard JFHQ with good attendance from state leadership. The initial briefing slide details the SAPR program elements. The initial elements fall to the SARC and Victim Advocates to provide training, victim advocacy, and prevention awareness. The last element is accountability, which falls to leadership. MG Katkas expressed the opinion that accountability is dependent on whether or not leadership is aware of a sexual assault report and leadership cannot be held accountable for offenders if there is no knowledge of the sexual assault.

b. There were questions from those in attendance that addressed the SAPR processes and roles of commanders and specific questions about restricted and unrestricted reports are handled.

c. The TAG stated that all sexual assault reports are investigated by local law enforcement through a Memorandum of Agreement. The ANG SAPR Program Manager expressed concerns that AFOSI may not be called if an assault of an ANG member occurred while in an active service status or on Joint Base Richardson/Elmendorf. Her concern was based on the AFI 36-6001 guidance that requires any sexual assault an active duty installation involving an ANG member who was in a duty status, must be investigated and reported to AFOSI. MG Katkas stated that all AK National Guard reports go to the local civilian law enforcement based on their memorandum of agreement.

d. After the SAPR 101 briefing, MG Katkas requested a separate meeting with the NGB SAPR team and the JFHQ and Wing SARCs. During the private meeting, MG Katkas stated that he believed his SAPR program was solid. He brought up the IG and Congressional Inquiry as being the reason for the NGB visit. The NGB J1 SAPR Program Chief reiterated that although the SAV's priority was elevated due to the IG complaint, the team's function was to provide a staff assistance visit and the team was not acting as an inspection team.

e. The ARNG SHARP branch chief, J1 SAPR Program Chief then broke to meet separately with the JFHQ SARC. The ANG SAPR Program Manager met with the two Wing SARCs.

f. Program managers discussed SAPR and SHARP program implementation. There were no major program concerns or misunderstandings from the SARCs about program policy or procedures that were evident. However, the Wing SARCs, who are co-located with active duty AF bases, were not aware of and had not seen the Memorandum of Agreement with local law enforcement for jurisdiction authority that was discussed by the TAG during the in-brief. It was recommended that all MOAs be included in continuity books for the program by the SARCs.

g. The program managers discussed with the SARCs whether or not they perceived any command climate issues that may prevent victims of sexual assault from coming forward with a report to a SARC or victim advocate. The 176th WG SARC reported that they recently had received an anonymous statement in as AFCAST (Safety Survey-SAF) that statement "I can think of three women who have been assaulted in our Wing and are afraid to report it." The ANG SAPR program manager provided guidance and various options as the best way to handle and response to an anonymous survey. The Wing SARC outlined steps he has already put in place since he was trained in December 2011. He and the new JFHQ SARC are working jointly to better market the program, ensure all Bystander Intervention Training is completed for airmen, execute all meetings as required, ensure Victim Advocates receive annual refresher training, and display prevention materials with information about the DoD Safe Helpline resource.

h. The joint base environment for the active component and the National Guard appear to be working well and the JFHQ and Wing SARCs collaborate for training and response support.

i. The meetings with the JFHQ SARC and Wing SARCs concluded at approximately 1700. The NGB program managers provided suggestions for improvement. Those areas centered on ensuring proper documentation. Recommendations included: input of prior ARNG sexual assault reports in SADMS by the JFHQ SARC; validation and identification of all trained SAPR VAs in the state; completion of all SAPR VA background checks in preparation for VA credentialing requirements; appropriate waiver requests on file; training of ARNG SARC/SHARP personnel in the required T10 80-hour training; and documentation of all MOAs and MOUs in continuity books.

6. After SAV:

a. The NGB SAPR Team joined the SARCs and many of the state leaders for dinner that evening at a local restaurant. The evening offered the opportunity to emphasis the positive efforts being put forward by the new SARCs at the JFHQ and the 176th and 168th Wings. It also offered the opportunity for the team to meet Governor Parnell, who happened to be at the same restaurant that evening for a political event. MG Katkas introduced the governor to the NGB Team.

b. The NGB SAPR team provided an out brief the following morning, 12 June, for the TAG and some of the leadership who had been present at the in brief. The briefing focused on the state's SAPR program history, areas they should sustain, improve, and plan for in the future. The out brief slides are included with this trip report.

7. Lessons learned:

a. State leadership initially perceived the SAV to be an inspection. The SAPR team's purpose is to provide support and guidance and that can be misinterpreted if a SAV is conducted prior to an IG team's visit.

b. The SAV was productive and all new SARCs appear to have a clear understanding of tasks and actions that are needed to move the program implementation ahead.

Program History

- Trained capable personnel selected and in place at JFHQ
- 176th WG SAPR program exhibits stability with trained SARCs and VAs over implementation history
- 168th ARW SAPR program currently exhibits transition and displays movement toward stability
- Trends indicate that Alaska may have more sexual assault incidents occurring than are reported

Sustain

ARNG:

- Continue to emphasize SHARP Three Tier Training

JOINT:

- Continue effective integration with joint partners, active duty component, and local civilian coalitions
- Continued leadership emphasis to support TAG's SAPR policy
- Maintain positive relationship with SEEM to ensure appropriate reporting and confidentiality procedures for SH and SA

ANG:

- Sustain BIT emphasis until completed – 30 Jun 12
- Do not combine SH and SA training for ANG
- Collaborate with JFHQ for SAPR VA use/training/tracking

ARNG:

- Input FY 10-12 ARNG case data into SADMS
- Identify and train ARNG Soldiers in 80 hour SHARP

JOINT:

- Identify and validate all SAPR VAs with appropriate documentation
- Establish SOP on handling NG LODs for both Services
- Include all current MOUs and MOAs in JFHQ Continuity Files

ANG:

- Complete VA background checks/formalize documentation
- Accomplish VA SEI updates and confirm with BETM
- Ensure necessary waiver documentation for WESO PD

Way Ahead

ARNG:

- Finalize plans for 80 hr SHARP training and personnel
- Critical G3 and Training NCOs are inputting SHARP training data into DTMS

JOINT:

- JFHQ SARC career develop in budget/financial management
- Develop detailed SOP for full SAPR implementation
- Utilize existing tools to assess command climate
- SAPR inclusion in pre-command course per JCS Strategic Direction on SAPR
- Utilize SMEs in training lower level SMs to enhance SAPR message

ANG:

- Refresher training for SAPR VAs in August
- New ANG SAPR training plan in place for FY 13
- Selection of 168th ARW SARC

1636 DEFENSE PENTAGON
WASHINGTON DC 20301-1636

APR 10 2012

Chief, National Guard Bureau

The Honorable Mark Begich
United States Senate
Washington, DC 20510

Dear Senator Begich:

Thank you for bringing your concerns regarding the Alaska National Guard to my attention. The National Guard appreciates the seriousness of the issues raised in your inquiry and I assure you they will be thoroughly investigated. I have forwarded a copy of the material to the Department of the Army and the Department of the Air Force. All allegations involving senior officials will be investigated by the appropriate service Inspector General.

I have directed the National Guard Bureau Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) Office to contact the Alaska National Guard Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Coordinator to verify that all reported cases have been handled or are being handled appropriately. Additionally, I have directed my SAPR Office to make Alaska a top priority for their Staff Assistance Visit program.

Finally, I have asked the Director of the Air National Guard to send a team to Alaska to conduct a thorough assessment of the 176th Wing and the 168th Wing.

As more information becomes available, I will keep you updated. In the meantime, should you have any questions about this matter please contact the Director of the National Guard Bureau's Legislative Liaison, Brigadier General Wilton S. Gorkse at (571) 256-7339.

Sincerely,

Craig R. McKinley
General, US Air Force

I must disagree with you on this. It's unfortunate that you feel this way. Heather went down and pulled you off the floor to let you know as a courtesy. It's true we have no obligation to tell you what we are doing but in this case we wanted to make sure you were aware ahead of time as well as members of the leadership, especially as it relates to the military and National Guard is why we made sure you were aware. Reports of sexual assault, rape and fraud among members of the Alaska National Guard prompted the governor to ask the Office of Complex Administrative Investigations for a detailed assessment and report of the state ANG. We made sure in our internal discussions before rolling this out to include you specifically in the notification in advance of the Governor's announcement.
If you would like to discuss further I am happy to do that.

Dear Mike –

I have to let you know - and through you the governor - that I was disappointed to get such short notice from your office (Heather) about the governor's request for a to reports of sexual assault, rape and fraud among members of the Alaska National Guard. The governor has asked for a detailed report from the Office of Complex Administrative Investigations investigation of National Guard sexual assault allegations.

Certainly there is no obligation for the governor to let me or any legislator know of his intentions or actions, and I suppose I could look at the situation and be grateful to get notice before the release was actually distributed. But as someone who considers himself an ally and supporter of the governor, especially when it comes to matters relating to the military and National Guard, I would have appreciated a heads-up a lot earlier in the process.

The governor had sent his request to Gen. Grass nearly a month ago. Since then, I have told members of the public expressing concerns on this issue that I had been in consultation with Gen. Katkus and had no information to indicate that there was continuing cause for concern that the Guard was not properly managing sexual assault prevention and response issues. Yesterday's announcement of the National Guard Bureau investigation was therefore unfortunate timing, at least from my perspective.

While I am glad that an external investigation will be conducted -- and look forward to a positive outcome -- I would have appreciated some indication from the administration that such a request was in the offing.

Sincerely,

Representative Dan Saddler

I am an Alaskan resident and former member of the Alaska Army National Guard. I provided a sworn statement for the ongoing sexual assault investigation by LTC Wawersik. I, too, am a sexual assault victim from a now retired member of the AKARNG.
My case did not end favorably for me and I feel I have pertinent insight that could help your current investigation of the Command. My Commander at the time of the assault decided to wait to meet with me until after a TDY trip that he was taking with the soldier who assaulted me. I had to obtain a civilian restraining order to induce the Command to remove the assaulter as my first line supervisor.

CHIEF NATIONAL GUARD BUREAU NOTICE

DISTRIBUTION: A

CNGBN 0400
16 April 2014

INTERIM REVISION TO CNGB SERIES 0400.01

References: See Enclosure A.

1. Purpose. This notice provides the following interim changes to references a and b:

a. Implements Department of Defense (DoD) Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) policy and procedures for National Guard members on duty pursuant to Title 32 U.S. Code, reference c, and in accordance with references d and e.

b. Directs commanders to refer all Unrestricted Reports of sexual assault to the appropriate Military Criminal Investigative Organization (MCIO), civilian law enforcement, or to the National Guard Bureau Office of Complex Administrative Investigation (NGB-JA/OCI), in accordance with references d and e.

c. Clarifies the appropriate definition for "sexual assault" in determining which reports must be referred.

2. Cancellation. None.

3. Applicability. This notice applies to all elements of the National Guard, the Office of the Chief of the National Guard Bureau, the National Guard Joint Staff, the Army National Guard, and the Air National Guard , all field activities of National Guard Bureau, the National Guard of the States, Territories, and the District of Columbia.

4. Background.

a. Reference d states, "A unit commander who receives an Unrestricted Report of an incident of sexual assault shall immediately refer the matter to the appropriate MCIO. A unit commander shall not conduct internal command directed investigations on sexual assault (i.e., no referrals to appointed command investigators or inquiry officers) or delay immediately contacting the MCIOs while attempting to assess the credibility of the report." However, MCIOs often lack jurisdiction to conduct criminal investigations into National Guard matters when an assault occurred while members were in a Title 32 status. Under relevant law or policies, civilian law enforcement may also decline to investigate certain cases while members were in a Title 32 status.

b. NGB-JA/OCI was established, in part, to offer a resource for conducting administrative investigations of sexual assaults within the National Guard when law enforcement declines to investigate such reports or the law enforcement investigation is unavailable or insufficient for use in military administrative actions.

5. Action or Procedure.

a. Commanders.

(1) Commanders who receive an Unrestricted Report of sexual assault that occurred while the reported perpetrator was in a Title 10 status must refer the matter to the appropriate MCIO (for example, the Army Criminal Investigation Division or the Air Force Office of Special Investigations).

(2) Commanders who receive an Unrestricted Report of sexual assault that occurred while the reported perpetrator was in a Title 32 status must refer the matter to a civilian law enforcement entity with jurisdiction over the crime (for example, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, sheriff's office or local police).

(3) Commanders will not make a credibility assessment of a sexual assault report prior to referring it to law enforcement or NGB-JA/OCI for investigation.

(4) Commanders are strongly encouraged to consult with their Judge Advocates when seeking to comply with any aspect of this notice, including when determining whether or not the facts and circumstances of a report potentially constitute a sexual assault.

(a) IAW reference c, "sexual assault" means "Intentional sexual contact characterized by use of force, threats, intimidation, or abuse of authority or when the victim does not or cannot consent. The term includes a broad category of sexual offenses consisting of the following specific [Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ)] offenses: rape, sexual assault, aggravated sexual contact, abusive sexual contact, forcible sodomy (forced oral or anal sex), or attempts to commit these acts.

(b) For the purposes of this policy, "sexual contact" is defined as:

1 Touching, or causing another person to touch, either directly or through the clothing, the genitalia, anus, groin, breast, inner thigh, or buttocks of any person, with an intent to abuse, humiliate, or degrade any person; or

2 Any touching, or causing another person to touch, either directly or through the clothing, any body part of any person, if done with an intent to arouse or gratify the sexual desire of any person. Touching may be accomplished by any part of the body.

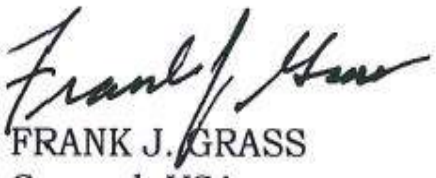
(c) Although specific UCMJ offenses identified above may not ultimately constitute a "sexual assault" or other sexual crime in some jurisdictions (including under certain state codes of military justice), if the alleged act meets the definition herein, it must still be referred to law enforcement.

(5) Commanders will not conduct internal command directed investigations into a sexual assault report (for example, no referrals to appointed command investigators or inquiry officers).

(6) Commanders may direct investigations into Command Climate, reporting procedures, relevant training deficiencies, or other related issues so long as these investigations do not interfere with local law enforcement or NGB-JA/OCI's investigation.

(7) Commanders have discretion to defer action on alleged collateral misconduct by the sexual assault victims (and will not be penalized for such a deferral decision), until final disposition of the sexual assault case, taking into account the trauma to the victim and responding appropriately so as to encourage reporting of sexual assault and continued victim care, in accordance with reference d.

b. NGB-JA/OCI Referrals.



(1) If a relevant law enforcement entity declines to investigate a sexual assault report, regardless of reason, The Adjutants General (TAG) or their designees will refer the matter to NGB-JA/OCI for consideration following the referral process below.

(2) If a relevant law enforcement entity investigates a sexual assault report, TAGs may, at their discretion, refer reports involving National Guard members to NGB-JA/OCI for consideration. However, NGB-JA/OCI investigators will not interfere with law enforcement investigations.

(3) Referrals to NGB-JA/OCI will follow the same procedures as TAG requests in accordance with reference b. Prior to submitting a signed TAG request for an NGB-JA/OCI investigation, reports of sexual assault must be coordinated between the State Staff Judge Advocate (SJA) or designee, and NGB-JA/OCI to ensure a requisite National Guard nexus exists or to identify a more appropriate investigative channel. If NGB-JA/OCI declines to investigate a report for any reason, including for example, due to lack of a sufficient National Guard nexus or the report does not rise to a sexual assault as defined herein, then the referral requirement in this notice will be satisfied as long as the matter was discussed between the State SJA or designee, and NGB-JA/OCI.

6. Releasability. This notice is approved for public release; distribution is unlimited. National Guard Bureau directorates, TAGs, the Commanding General of the District of Columbia, and Joint Force Headquarters-State may obtain copies of this notice through <http://www.ngbpdc.ngb.army.mil>.

7. Effective Date. This notice is effective on the date signed and will expire one year from the date of signature unless cancelled earlier.

Dear Ms Tepas -

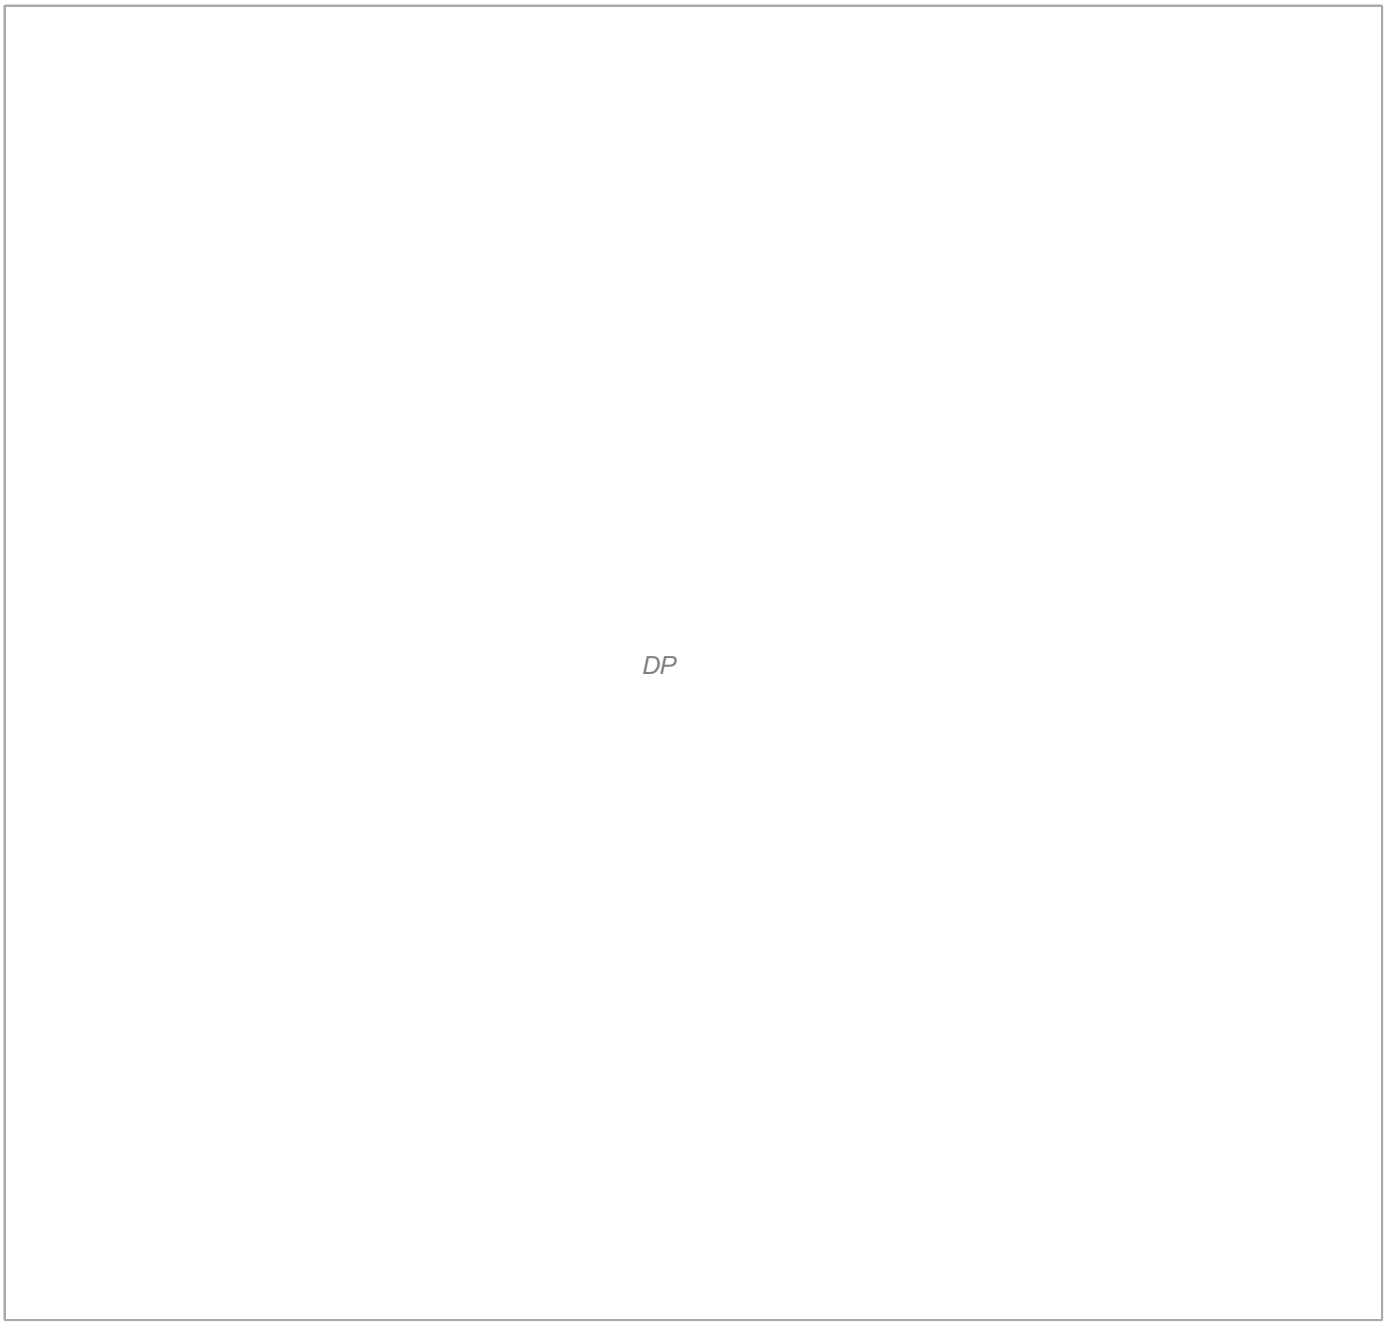
I read Shannyn Moore's piece in the ADN yesterday, and it begs the question, is there now a litmus test for reporting rape and sexual assault within the Alaska National Guard ?

Does one's allegiance to Sean Parnell or Tom Katkus now dictate whether a victim is credible, or whether the case gets investigated or not ?

If Ms. Moore's writing is accurate, then both you and McHugh Pierre have some serious egg on your faces, and a lot of explaining to do.

Unfortunately you'll probably never have to explain publicly, your actions, which is too bad.

Who is it that you work for again ? Is it Sean Parnell, or the people of Alaska ?



Shameful is about the best way that I can describe your actions.

Truly shameful.

Sincerely,

Chris Bydalek

Candis--

I am sorry to be the bearer of more bad tidings, but here goes: This morning I received copies of AR 15-6 reports submitted by BOI/PR over a six-month span last year, detailing her findings of a wide range of serious misconduct by three NCOs in the R&R battalion: BOI/PR, BOI/PR, and BOI/PR.

I'm planning in publishing a story based on these reports in this week's paper. I'm not looking to beat up on the guard as a whole. The story is relevant because some of the more serious instances of misconduct, according to these reports, took place well after state officials were made aware of alleged misconduct, specifically by recruiters.

My understanding is that BOI/PR and BOI/PR were other than honorable discharged, and that BOI/PR's separation is still pending. If that's correct, it would seem the appropriate action was taken.

In any case, I wanted to forewarn you that the story is coming, and offer the opportunity to comment. I think the story would benefit from a comment as to whether the conduct described in these AR 15-6 reports is representative of the Alaska National Guard. (I personally realize it's not.)

Thanks.
DH

Candis--

I am sorry to be the bearer of more bad tidings, but here goes: This morning I received copies of AR 15-6 reports submitted by BOI/PR over a six-month span last year, detailing her findings of a wide range of serious misconduct by three NCOs in the R&R battalion: BOI/PR, BOI/PR, and BOI/PR.

I'm planning in publishing a story based on these reports in this week's paper. I'm not looking to beat up on the guard as a whole. The story is relevant because some of the more serious instances of misconduct, according to these reports, took place well after state officials were made aware of alleged misconduct, specifically by recruiters.

My understanding is that BOI/PR and BOI/PR were other than honorable discharged, and that BOI/PR s separation is still pending. If that's correct, it would seem the appropriate action was taken.

In any case, I wanted to forewarn you that the story is coming, and offer the opportunity to comment. I think the story would benefit from a comment as to whether the conduct described in these AR 15-6 reports is representative of the Alaska National Guard. (I personally realize it's not.)

Thanks.

Dear Governor's Office Staff;

Last Sunday, a newspaper columnist made some false accusations about me related to sexual assault cases and their handling by the Alaska National Guard. I attempted to set the record straight by sending a column of my own into the Anchorage Daily News the next day (Monday), but the ADN did not print it. I want to be sure you have that rebuttal column I sent to the ADN because letting you know the facts and the immediate actions I took (both four years ago and last February) is important to me as well.

The National Guard Bureau team from Washington, D.C., that I called in to review each Alaska National Guard sexual assault and fraud case is expected to complete their work by mid to late summer. When I have that report, I can make it public and take further action if required.

With thanks for your service,

> Begich to National Guard Brass: "Get it Right this Time"

> Demands Investigators Get to the Bottom of Alaska Allegations
>
> During a face-to-face meeting today with General Frank Grass, chief of the National Guard Bureau (NGB), U.S. Senator Mark Begich said he is closely following the most recent investigation into allegations of sexual assault and misconduct in the Alaska Guard, and wants them resolved once and for all.
>
> General Grass agreed it was crucial to resolve these issues in a transparent process so the Alaska National Guard can focus on its important missions.
>
> "At today's meeting I let General Grass know in no uncertain terms that I expect the National Guard Bureau to get to the bottom of these allegations once and for all," said Begich. "I'm frustrated these issues were not resolved two years ago when I asked the NGB team to travel to Alaska to investigate these very same concerns. We've seen the allegations surface again and again. If left unresolved they make for a toxic environment that degrades morale and hurts the focus of Guard missions. This is a state jurisdiction issue but I will continue working to ensure this investigation is thorough and transparent."
> Begich first called for an investigation of and action on allegations of sexual assault in the Alaska National Guard in 2012. The subsequent investigation did not substantiate any criminal wrongdoing. When allegations continued, Begich urged the NGB to revisit the issue. Copies of Begich's letters requesting the initial investigation and his April 4 letter on the most recent investigation and ongoing concerns are attached.
>
> General Grass told Begich today he visited Alaska earlier this year partly in response to Begich's previous questions and concerns about ongoing misconduct allegations. That visit was followed by the governor's request for a NGB investigation.
> "Our National Guard members should serve in an environment free of suspicion and mistrust," said Begich. "There needs to be careful and transparent investigations to resolve these allegations once and for all so the Alaska National Guard can focus on its important role. That's why I've made it clear, very clear, that I want to be briefed often as the investigation moves forward along with the rest of the Alaska delegation. I'm frustrated that I asked the NGB to investigate the reports of sexual assault two years ago but the conclusions of that investigation failed to eliminate the allegations that continue to this day. I will continue to champion the concerns of Guardsmen, who have done so much for this state and this nation."

Sirs and Ma'am,

In reviewing the sexual assault data from Octavia, it occurred to me that Sean Cockerham started us on a path where we've been focusing on total number of reports instead of total number of reports where the perpetrator is a member of the AKNG.

I assume the "29 reported sexual assaults in the Alaska National Guard" statement that was in Sean Cockerham's first article back in October was a response to a question from him about how many reports of sexual assault have we had.

I think the real question is "how many members of the Alaska National Guard have assaulted other members of the Alaska National Guard?"

Because the point that the politicians, naysayers and media seem to be trying to make is that there are a lot of sexual assaults within our organization.

The fact that we provide services to victims as a resource that most organizations don't offer in-house has been lost in the mix.

FACT: In 2013 and 2014 combined, there has been ONE report of sexual assault committed by a member of the Alaska National Guard. (Where the assault took place in 2013 or 2014.)

That's a key message that I'm going to keep in my back pocket.

Ms. Sims,
We're up and running. We've compiled a lot of information and are sorting through it now.
Also, I have noticed media reports over the past year that have pointed to complaints received by the Governor's Office. Is there any additional information that has been passed to the Governor's Office that would assist us in our effort? I realize that most of it will have already been included in the information we have gathered from the National Guard, but I would like to be sure that we don't leave anything unaddressed.
Thanks,

Did you know that there have been numerous instances of retaliation against Ken Blaylock ?

Are you aware that in at least two separate instances that his home has been vandalized ?

BOI/PR sought protection from Ken Blaylock, and when he went to General Katkus, he was told to stand down.

Why was Ken Blaylock dismissed from the National Guard ?

Why did she have photos of high speed weapons on her cell phone ?

Why did BOI/PR , her Commanding Officer, file a trust registration with the State of Alaska the day after her obituary was published ?

Why did a BOI/PR another person who'd she sought help from, commit suicide last year ?

You can no longer keep a lid on this stuff, it's out there in the public, you need to address this.

BOI/PR was a soldier who was proud of her career in the National Guard, I knew her personally, and I don't believe for a minute that her death was a suicide, nor was it an accident.

There were people in BOI/PR s life, fellow Guard members, who were threatening her.

What did Tom Katkus do ?

He fired and gaslamped Ken Blaylock and has since been working overtime to cover up this hideous crime.

Her family deserves better than the answers you've provided thus far.

Dear Governor Parnell.

Since I'm a currently-serving member of the Alaska Army National Guard I'll refrain from attaching my name to this letter.

Brigadier General Bridges conducted a Town Hall meeting on April 24th with the topic as Sexual Assault, recognizing April as Sexual Assault Awareness Month. It was very different than the last Town Hall meeting the Guard had in the fall. This one had a safe environment; we weren't yelled at; chaplains weren't belittled; and an atmosphere of faith and trust that at least General Bridges is doing something to clean up our Guard prevailed.

Many of us appreciate General Bridges' sincerity and trust his "anger" at those who abused their position to prey on fellow Soldiers. General Bridges doesn't have to put "dignity and respect" in the concrete in front of the armory to make people thinks that's what he believes. He truly practices those attributes.

We are fortunate to have him as a general in our organization and hope the other generals will strive to be more like him for actually living dignity, integrity, and respect.

Mike and Cindy,

The Assessment team will be headed back to Washington DC early on Monday, 19 May. We have conducted numberous interviews across the state and those, combined with the data we received from the AKNG, give a good understanding in order to draft findings and recommendations.

Are you available for a preliminary outbrief Friday afternoon, or perhaps sometime during the weekend?

Respectfully,

Ma'am,

I'm back in the office from my appointment. If you have time to stop by and talk, I'm more than happy to meet with you. I can print the slides that we provided at the out brief.

I think it's important that any investigation being done and prior Staff Assistance Visit that I and the ARNG and ANG team member made be separated in findings and in intent. The SAV specifically had these objectives:

a. Meet with state Joint, ARNG, and ANG leadership to provide an overview of SAPR/SHARP program policy requirements and answer questions
b. Assist new JFHQ and Wing Sexual Assault Response Coordinators (SARCs) on steps to set up program and review checklists for program development
c. Define sexual assault reporting standard operating procedures and ensure SARCs have access to all data management systems for documenting reports
d. Present an understanding and update on NGB and DoD SAPR goals and initiatives

When we conducted the SAV, we did not review case files of reported sexual assaults, nor did we talk with soldiers or airmen in sensing sessions to research command climate, as an inspection team would have done. However, State leadership initially perceived the SAV to be an inspection. I stated in "lessons learned" to NGB leadership that the team's purpose can be misinterpreted if a SAV is conducted prior to an IG team's visit. About a month after I returned to DC, ANG requested that I provide a trip report of the SAV, which I did. That trip report is attached for your reference. The areas noted in the trip report were the same as what had been provided in the out brief:

1 - Leadership can only investigate what comes to their attention.
2 - Previous SARC did not adequately document sexual assaults in the data system of record - now corrected.
3 - ANG SAPR PM concerns were noted that if AFOSI has jurisdiction for investigation of a sexual assault, it should be referred to OSI rather than local law enforcement.
4 - At the time of the SAV, there were anonymous reports of ANG sexual assault victims not coming forward. This needed to be addressed through Wing SARC training opportunities in an effort to build confidence in the system. The Wing SARCs noted to the ANG SAPR PM that they continued to encourage airmen to come forward at follow up trainings.

Also - just for your reference, our office has grown! I've included our new SAPR Program Chief on this email - Col Whitmire. I think you already know Mr. Crowley :)

Please let me know if you have any questions.

NGB J1-SAPR 6 July 2012

MEMORANDUM FOR Director, J1, National Guard Bureau, 111 South George Mason Drive, Arlington, VA 22204

SUBJECT: Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) Staff Assistance Visit (SAV), Alaska National Guard

1. A SAPR Staff Assistance Visit (SAV) was conducted on11-12 June 2012 to the Alaska Joint Force Headquarters in Anchorage, Alaska. NGB staff members participating in the SAV were Jane Lux, NGB J1 SAPR Program Chief, MAJ Tela McFadden, ARNG Sexual Harassment and Assault Response and Prevention (SHARP) Branch Chief, and 1stLt Lori Alix, NGB/A1S SAPR Program Manager.

2. The objectives of the SAV were to:
   a. Meet with state Joint, ARNG, and ANG leadership to provide an overview of SAPR/SHARP program policy requirements and answer questions
   b. Assist new JFHQ and Wing Sexual Assault Response Coordinators (SARCs) on steps to set up program and review checklists for program development
   c. Define sexual assault reporting standard operating procedures and ensure SARCs have access to all data management systems for documenting reports
   d. Present an understanding and update on NGB and DoD SAPR goals and initiatives

3. State leadership and employees present for the initial in brief:
1) MG Katkas – AK Adjutant General; 2) BG Bridges - ATAG; 3) Col O'Brian168th Wing Commander; Col Wenke, 176th Wing Commander, 4) COL Williams – USPFO; 5) Col Bailar, AK – NG JAG; 6) Octavia Thompson-JFHQ SARC; 7) Maj Bailey, 176th Wing SARC; 8) Maj Hunstein, 168th SARC 9) Col Grunwald – HRO & J1 Director 9) Col Lincoln, AKANG CoS; 10) LTC Schell, ARNG Asst COS; 11) Lt Col McPhetres, ANG DoS 12) LTC Koch, Chaplain. 13) CMSgt Calvin-WG/Command Chief- 176th; 14) CCSM Gordon Choate, CSM Pamela Harrington, CW2 Nicholas Forbes, CMSgt Timothy Delph, COL Hunt Kerrigan, COL Michael Thompson; 15) Lt Col Kay Spear-Budd, Family Program Chief and Alt JFHQ SARC

4. Background on reasons Alaska was selected for a Staff Assistance Visit:

a. The previous full-time JFHQ SARC was initially hired as a temporary technician. When the temporary position expired, the state created a contract for her to continue in the role. During the time she served as JFHQ SARC, she did not report state ARNG sexual assaults into the Army's system of records, SADMS. Additionally, she was often late or did not input required metrics into the GKO SAPR site. When this issue was brought to her and her immediate leadership, she regularly stated that she had site accessibility problems with her computer. That prevented her from uploading the data into the system. There was no problem with access from the NGB side and it was recommended that she work with her state Help Desk to resolve the problem.

b. The NGB J1 SAPR Program Chief, met with Brig Gen McManus, AK CoS, when she visited NGB late in 2011. At that time, documentation was provided to Brig Gen McManus about some of the problems with the contract JFHQ SARC. Although the SARC was a skilled trainer and victim advocate, she did not regularly meet program management requirements to document cases in systems of record.

c. The state advertised the JFHQ SARC position for hire as a technician and a new JFHQ SARC was hired in February 2012. Additionally, the two Wing SARCs were new to the positions and were trained by NGB SAPR in December 2011. It was important to provide support and program guidance to help create a positive climate where the new SARCs could be successful and meet program requirements.

d. The SAV to Alaska was moved up in the SAPR team's priority to respond to an IG report and congressional inquiry to the CNGB from Senator Mark Begich. There was a concern within the inquiry that not all sexual assaults were being reported. It was not clear in the IG report whether reports in Alaska were not being reported to NGB, or whether sexual assault victims did not have confidence in coming forward to report to SARCs or VAs.

5. SAV Process:

a. The SAV included an initial SAPR 101 briefing for AK leadership on day one of the visit. The briefing began at 0800 at the AK National Guard JFHQ with good attendance from state leadership. The initial briefing slide details the SAPR program elements. The initial elements fall to the SARC and Victim Advocates to provide training, victim advocacy, and prevention awareness. The last element is accountability, which falls to leadership. MG Katkas expressed the opinion that accountability is dependent on whether or not leadership is aware of a sexual assault report and leadership cannot be held accountable for offenders if there is no knowledge of the sexual assault.

b. There were questions from those in attendance that addressed the SAPR processes and roles of commanders and specific questions about restricted and unrestricted reports are handled.

c. The TAG stated that all sexual assault reports are investigated by local law enforcement through a Memorandum of Agreement. The ANG SAPR Program Manager expressed concerns that AFOSI may not be called if an assault of an ANG member occurred while in an active service status or on Joint Base Richardson/Elmendorf. Her concern was based on the AFI 36-6001 guidance that requires any sexual assault an active duty installation involving an ANG member who was in a duty status, must be investigated and reported to AFOSI. MG Katkas stated that all AK National Guard reports go to the local civilian law enforcement based on their memorandum of agreement.

d. After the SAPR 101 briefing, MG Katkas requested a separate meeting with the NGB SAPR team and the JFHQ and Wing SARCs. During the private meeting, MG Katkas stated that he believed his SAPR program was solid. He brought up the IG and Congressional Inquiry as being the reason for the NGB visit. The NGB J1 SAPR Program Chief reiterated that although the SAV's priority was elevated due to the IG complaint, the team's function was to provide a staff assistance visit and the team was not acting as an inspection team.

e. The ARNG SHARP branch chief, J1 SAPR Program Chief then broke to meet separately with the JFHQ SARC. The ANG SAPR Program Manager met with the two Wing SARCs.

f. Program managers discussed SAPR and SHARP program implementation. There were no major program concerns or misunderstandings from the SARCs about program policy or procedures that were evident. However, the Wing SARCs, who are co-located with active duty AF bases, were not aware of and had not seen the Memorandum of Agreement with local law enforcement for jurisdiction authority that was discussed by the TAG during the in-brief. It was recommended that all MOAs be included in continuity books for the program by the SARCs.

g. The program managers discussed with the SARCs whether or not they perceived any command climate issues that may prevent victims of sexual assault from coming forward with a report to a SARC or victim advocate. The 176th WG SARC reported that they recently had received an anonymous statement in as AFCAST (Safety Survey-SAF) that statement "I can think of three women who have been assaulted in our Wing and are afraid to report it." The ANG SAPR program manager provided guidance and various options as the best way to handle and response to an anonymous survey. The Wing SARC outlined steps he has already put in place since he was trained in December 2011. He and the new JFHQ SARC are working jointly to better market the program, ensure all Bystander Intervention Training is completed for airmen, execute all meetings as required, ensure Victim Advocates receive annual refresher training, and display prevention materials with information about the DoD Safe Helpline resource.

h. The joint base environment for the active component and the National Guard appear to be working well and the JFHQ and Wing SARCs collaborate for training and response support.

i. The meetings with the JFHQ SARC and Wing SARCs concluded at approximately 1700. The NGB program managers provided suggestions for improvement. Those areas centered on ensuring proper documentation. Recommendations included: input of prior ARNG sexual assault reports in SADMS by the JFHQ SARC; validation and identification of all trained SAPR VAs in the state; completion of all SAPR VA background checks in preparation for VA credentialing requirements; appropriate waiver requests on file; training of ARNG SARC/SHARP personnel in the required T10 80-hour training; and documentation of all MOAs and MOUs in continuity books.

6. After SAV:

a. The NGB SAPR Team joined the SARCs and many of the state leaders for dinner that evening at a local restaurant. The evening offered the opportunity to emphasis the positive efforts being put forward by the new SARCs at the JFHQ and the 176th and 168th Wings. It also offered the opportunity for the team to meet Governor Parnell, who happened to be at the same restaurant that evening for a political event. MG Katkas introduced the governor to the NGB Team.

b. The NGB SAPR team provided an out brief the following morning, 12 June, for the TAG and some of the leadership who had been present at the in brief. The briefing focused on the state's SAPR program history, areas they should sustain, improve, and plan for in the future. The out brief slides are included with this trip report.

7. Lessons learned:

a. State leadership initially perceived the SAV to be an inspection. The SAPR team's purpose is to provide support and guidance and that can be misinterpreted if a SAV is conducted prior to an IG team's visit.

b. The SAV was productive and all new SARCs appear to have a clear understanding of tasks and actions that are needed to move the program implementation ahead.

The Honorable Lisa Murkowski
United States Senate

Washington, D.C. 20510-0203

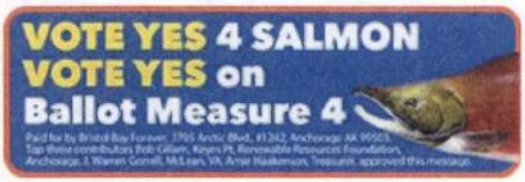
Dear Senator Murkowski:

This is in response to your letter dated June 19, 2013, regarding allegations that the command climate within the Alaska National Guard (AKNG) is not conducive to reporting and investigating sexual assaults and that, in some instances, officials may have taken steps to cover up incidents of sexual assault.

Our letter of July 18, 2013, indicated that the DoD Hotline referred the allegations to the Department of the Army Inspector General (Army IG) for action (case number 20130620-014429). Our letter of March 6, 2014, indicated that officials within the Directorate for Investigations of Senior Officials (ISO) opened case number 20130715-014791-CASE-01 to monitor the senior official investigation by the Army IG.

On April 15, 2014, the Army IG completed the investigation and forwarded the Report of Investigation to ISO officials for review. The Army IG investigation found AKNG command climate sensing sessions did not identify concerns regarding sexual assault or sexual harassment reporting, and that The Adjutant General (TAG), AKNG, and other AKNG officials did not cover up any reported sexual assault incidents.



The Army IG report noted the Sexual Assault Response Coordinator, AKNG, received reports of 11 alleged sexual assault incidents (since February 2012) and promptly coordinated referrals of all incidents to Alaska law enforcement authorities. Alaska State Statute, "Military Code of Alaska," Section 26.05, dictates that Alaska state civilian law enforcement authorities investigate, and the Alaska civilian criminal system prosecute, cases involving AKNG member suspects. The TAG took adverse administrative action on the only two cases upon which he could act; those which substantiated sexual assault allegations against AKNG members. In one case, the TAG discharged the subject from the AKNG, and in the other, he initiated the subject's separation.

On May 6, 2014, ISO Oversight Branch officials completed a review of the Army IG investigation and concurred with the findings and conclusions.

Inspector General says no cover up in Alaska National Guard sex abuse allegations

The Inspector General of the Army sent a letter to U.S. Sen. Lisa Murkowski on Wednesday concluding that Alaska's National Guard Adjutant General Tom Katkus and other Alaska National Guard officials followed protocol in dealing with allegations of sexual assault in the Guard.

The IG "did not identify concerns regarding sexual assault or sexual harassment reporting," and Guard officials "did not cover up any reported sexual assault incidents." The Department of Defense concurred. (Read the letter here.)

The letter said that the Guard had received reports of 11 alleged assaults and that it "promptly coordinated referrals of all incidents to Alaska law enforcement officials," as protocol dictates. The letter says that Katkus took action in "only two cases upon which he could act." One person was discharged as a result. Katkus "initiated the subject's separation," in the other.

Last June, Sen. Lisa Murkowski asked the Department of Defense inspector general to investigate after Guard chaplains had asked her to look into sexual harassment and assault in

As a Republican woman, I have been very troubled by the allegations concerning the sexual abuse and misconduct in our National Guard unit. I am very pleased to learn that protocol was followed and that there were no appearances of any attempts to cover up the infractions. Those who rushed to judgement that was critical of the Parnell administration owe the governor and apology. Governor Parnell isn't a show horse, rather I think of him more as a quiet work horse. He may not be flashy but he does a good and deliberative job as our governor.
Once again, the liberal and boiased media and their liberal Democratic friends cast dispersions and wrongfully judged the governor. Shame on the media.
Thank you amandacoyne.com for covering and reporting on this new development. If it were up to Shannon Moore, we would never hear about this.

The point of all this is to insure a timely just treatment of the soldiers involved and to also restore trust in the command structure of the Alaska Army National Guard. Perhaps more information is needed to do that.
The Inspector General Letter addresses the disposition of 11 cases using this language: "The Army IG Report noted the Army Sexual Response Coordinator, AKNG (Alaska National Guard) received reports of 11 alleged sexual assault incidents (since February 2012) and

4. National Guard:
A. If you haven't already, pls have Gen Katkus give direction that McCugh should have absolutely nothing to do with cases where Guard members are under investigation or subject to review--especially as they relate to two people he is personally connected to. No viewing of files, no conversations, etc.

B. Pls work with Cindy to ascertain what options are available for independent review of the Guard investigator's cases (after my letter goes out to General Gorske). Pls see if we can get that in place on the next week or so in coordination with the Guard Bureau. Cindy has an edited copy of my letter to get in final for tomorrow so that hasn't gone out yet.

Major General Scott Gorske
Assistant to the Chairman for National Guard Matters
Office of the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff
United States Department of Defense
9999 Joint Chiefs of Staff Pentagon
Washington, DC 20318

Dear General Gorske,

I learned last Friday that results of the National Guard Bureau's Command Climate Survey of the Alaska National Guard were released to Alaska Guard leadership. The release of this information by the Guard Bureau, however it happened, is totally contrary to my understanding from the Guard Bureau about how the assessment would be conducted and how information would be communicated with me.

Where I had asked for a review of the entire sexual assault reporting system of the Alaska National Guard, and other areas, and where that review was to include a review of the command structure, this premature release of information to the Alaska Guard command structure is deeply troubling and raises several important issues. Namely, I want to ensure the privacy of Guard members who responded to the survey. I also want to assure continuation of an objective, credible review of the sexual assault (and other) reporting, investigation, and adjudication system. This includes a review of the command structure's role in that system. The goal is to assure cases will be investigated and adjudicated fairly and impartially and that appropriate sanctions will be carried out.

Premature release of the Command Climate Survey has raised concern for potential retaliation, because some Guard members perceive their comments in the survey can be traced back to them. Where I had already asked for a review of the command structure and the part it regularly plays in reviewing cases and proposed sanctions, and where the early release of the Command Climate Survey to Guard leadership may have chilled some claimants' or victims' willingness to report and be interviewed, I make a new request of the Guard Bureau.

I ask you to authorize a National Guard Bureau panel to hear, review, and adjudicate cases from the Alaska National Guard's investigation team and existing reporting system. Our Guard leadership should not be subjected to the cloud it has been put under by the early release of the survey, and our Guard members need to have every confidence in a full, fair, and impartial hearing, including sanctions, if warranted. At minimum, the panel should be authorized to hear all cases pending until the review is complete.

I strongly believe that under the circumstances, we must have an independent review of cases once the investigator and the team bring them forward, at least until your assessment is complete and any remedial action, if required, is fulfilled. Please feel free to call me with any questions.

Sincerely,

Sean Parnell

Chief Counsel, National Guard Bureau

STATE CAPITOL
P.O. Box 110001
Juneau, AK 99811-0001

Dear Governor Parnell,

This letter responds to yours of June 9, 2014, to Major General Scott Gorske wherein you communicated your disappointment with the release of the climate assessment results pertaining to the Alaska National Guard and you requested additional support from the National Guard Bureau to adjudicate pending administrative cases. General Gorske forwarded your letter to me for response, and I am responding on behalf of the National Guard Bureau as General Gorske's mission is strictly limited to the ongoing Alaska National Guard assessment. This letter will address each of your concerns and provide a brief update on the status of the assessment.

My entire team shares your frustration with the release of the command climate survey results. As I am sure you are aware, we highly value the confidentiality and impartiality of the entire assessment process, of which the command climate survey was one component. We have learned that the survey was released by the Defense Equal Opportunity Management Institute through a computer-generated process. They are an independent entity of the Department of Defense with extraordinary expertise in developing and implementing command climate surveys. The National Guard Bureau assessment team worked with the Defense Equal Opportunity Management Institute to not only craft the survey questions, but also to initiate the survey and process the survey results. These results became available on the closing of the survey through email links and passwords provided to our office. Unfortunately and unbeknownst to us, the Defense Equal Opportunity Management Institute technology systems automatically sent a link and password to Major General Thomas Katkus as the senior Alaska National Guard commander. This should not have occurred, and we are currently reviewing the narrative portions of the survey to determine whether it may be possible to identify any of the respondents. We will keep your staff informed in this regard.

The second part of your letter requests that the National Guard Bureau provide a panel to review or adjudicate open files. Your staff has made it clear that your primary concern is the fair and impartial treatment of all concerned; that is our primary concern as well. Briefly, we are aware that there are several pending enlisted separation actions. These cases are initiated by lower level commanders with the recommendation to a convening authority, such as Brigadier General Bridges, and the Adjutant General as the separation authority. Separation panel members are typically selected from the membership of the Alaska National Guard and make findings and recommendations to both the convening authority and the separation authority. The National Guard Bureau could provide panel members. That said, we have no indication that Alaska National Guard separation panels have failed in any way in the execution of their responsibilities. After discussions with your staff, we believe that you are asking the National Guard Bureau to provide temporary general officer command leadership to resolve open cases. Adjudicating cases requires state command authority, however, and it appears Alaska law prescribes that officers must be a member of the Alaska National Guard for a period of five (5) years before they may be appointed as general officers/ commanders. Accordingly, Alaska law precludes the National Guard Bureau from supporting your request in that manner.

We do believe that there are other mechanisms which may be employed to ensure the fair and impartial administration of Alaska National Guard separation actions. We recommend that you direct the Alaska National Guard to provide you or a member of your staff with a weekly/biweekly summary update on certain administrative/disciplinary actions before final action is taken. More specifically, we recommend that your staff receive and review summary information pertaining to the separation board documentation, to include the chain of command's and board's recommendations, and the leadership's rationale in cases where the board's recommendations for separation are not followed. Summary information will ensure compliance with federal record requirements.

Should you so desire, I am willing to provide a senior Judge Advocate to assist your office in answering any process questions that you may have. Additionally, I recommend that you establish written "Critical Information Requirements" similar to that which a military commander uses to ensure they have situational awareness over certain high visibility issues which must be immediately reported. These are referred to as "Commander's Critical Information Requirements."

With the exception of the release of the survey information noted above, the assessment is proceeding well and on schedule. Our team did identify procedural issues on several pending separation actions and assisted in rectifying these issues. Additionally, we are providing a senior level attorney along with a Judge Advocate captain to assist the Alaska Army National Guard Judge Advocate assigned to the separation panels in the performance of his duties. Currently these separation panels are scheduled for late July/August.

The National Guard Bureau stands ready to assist you any way we can. Should you have any questions or comments, please do not hesitate to contact me at anytime.

Sincerely,

Christian A. Rofrano

Importance: High

Executive Summary: This email puts the Governor's office on notice of allegations of unlawful access by the Alaska National Guard to confidential police rape reports that contain intimate details about civilians with no military affiliation. This secret National Guard program used federal funds to help state official's access confidential police files that they normally would have been unable to access without a Court order or statutory authority. It has been in place for years and apparently to me with the consent and/or knowledge of Major General Katkus and other senior leaders. This program likely violates the constitutional rights of civilian sex crime victims and other civilians who gave statements in criminal matters who had no clue their confidential police reports/statements were being widely distributed within the National Guard.

Your and the Governor's immediate attention to this matter is requested.

Mike,

I am an Attorney in Washington DC who has been retained by a member of the Alaska National Guard who wishes to disclose gross misconduct to the Governor (via you) and likely commence a lawsuit against numerous officials who have engaged in constitutional rights violations. MG Katkus is fully aware of this situation and has been for some time but apparently has failed to take action so that is why I am escalating this to you (and the Governor). This email will likely be introduced as evidence of notification of the Governor of these serious allegations as such I am requesting a return email confirming receipt of this email.

My client loves the National Guard and doesn't want to bring it shame but feels he is being victimized in retaliation for his prior unwillingness to perjure himself during the National Guard Sex Scandal witch-hunts (those allegations will be saved for another day). My client is eager to quickly settle his dispute with the National Guard for a mutual confidentiality agreement & no money just assurances he will be left alone till he can retire; a settlement that should be a no brainer for the State given the breadth and depth of corruption we are aware of.

Please consider this email a formal report of misconduct by members of the Alaska National Guard to the Governor/Commander in Chief.

On or about 10 June 2014, I received from an Alaska National Guard Official a confidential police report that as I understand Alaska Law (I am not an Alaskan attorney) should not have been in the hands of anybody who was not a sworn law enforcement officer or otherwise entitled by State Statute to possess it (See AS 12.62.160 and Alaska Code 13 AAC 68.320). This report was contained in a federal administrative file of all places, available for thousands of federal employees to access and read without restrictions. The Anchorage Police Department report # PR shocked the conscience of my law firm employees who read it. It named the alleged rape victim (PR), provided her age (PR when the report was written), address and employer (PR), amongst a plethora of other personal/confidential information. In sickening and shocking detail it talked about PR and contained such graphic quotes as PR

PR

PR Even more shocking is this report was widely distributed amongst the highest levels of the Alaska National Guard in addition to countless others at low and mid-levels within the Alaska National Guard who saw nothing wrong with it being attached to federal administrative records without PR 's consent or knowledge. This report should have been safeguarded from public records and Alaska National Guard possession because #1 it contained the most confidential/private of details about an alleged civilian rape victim, #2 it contained information on police policy and procedures for investigating sex assault crimes and #3 the allegations were later deemed by the police department to be "unprovable" after an extensive criminal investigation involving numerous civilian police officials; thus the alleged suspect should not be subject to vigilantism by others (in this case vigilantism by the Alaska National Guard), the very reasons for the laws that keep these records secret (See Alaska Statute 12.62.005 which states the intent of the law to limit access to police records that did not result in an arrest is to "protects victims of crime, allows the proper administration of justice, and avoids vigilantism")

As you can see from the attached documents, the National Guard has secretly been able to access confidential police files on civilians with no military affiliation without being a "criminal justice agency" as defined by AS 12.62.900 or engaging in "criminal justice activities" as defined by AS 12.62.900. Nor does any law specifically allow the two named Alaska National Guard officials to have access to civilian rape reports that did not result in an arrest (interestingly to me these people claim a right to police files because they are "responsible for coordinating with and providing advice to Commanders regarding disciplinary actions" – guess what? How many other government entities have people who provide "advice" to decision makers about administrative disciplinary actions? This is a slippery slope - why aren't the people who work in the Department of Transportation and Public Facilities who advise low level managers on administrative disciplinary actions given access to these confidential police reports? (probably because such conduct is illegal? But again what do I know? I am not an Alaska Attorney). The attached documents are shocking in their sheer boldness, while the National Guard concedes they can have access to public records (i.e. Court documents etc); they want exactly what the law doesn't allow them, "police reports provide us with essential elements of offenses to determine the severity of those offenses, as well as witness statements" (quoting from the attached).

The attached documents show that the Anchorage Police in apparent contradiction of early statements from your administration about the original Alaska National Guard sex scandal and how hard it was to obtain evidence has given the National Guard unrestricted access to its records and has been far from uncooperative – if anything they are complicit in the Constitutional rights deprivations of civilians. Furthermore, the attached documents show that the Alaska National Guard did not hide the reason for wanting to obtain these confidential records – they wanted them to engage in vigilantism (i.e. administrative disciplinary action even when the Police didn't make an arrest)!!

Based on these allegations, I would like to know when the Governor first got briefed on the secret National Guard program to access confidential police rape reports on civilians without the victim's consent? Why didn't he object to this outrageous invasion of privacy for the civilian victim and other civilians who provided "witness statements" thinking these records would be confidential?

Why wasn't the Governor not shocked that hundreds of National Guard folks were able to read obscene/graphic confidential police civilian rape reports without MG Katkus and other key leaders putting any type of internal controls on their distribution?

Why has the Governor not demanded the resignation of MG Katkus, BOI/PR , and the State Judge Advocate (amongst many other senior National Guard officials) who knew or should have known about this program for months if not years but did nothing to stop/end it? Is it because the Governor ultimately approved of this secret plan? Does the Governor, given these allegations, still have trust and confidence in the judgment, integrity, and wisdom of MG Katkus and BOI/PR ?

Does the Governor believe that the Alaska National Guard Staff Judge Advocate's Office (i.e. Alaska lawyers who work for your National Guard) acted appropriately in requesting, possessing, and then unrestricted distributing confidential police reports that it apparently had no lawful authority to obtain, possess, or distribute? Has the Governor referred any allegations to the Alaska Bar Association or other Attorney Licensing Agency for investigation?

How many police reports did the National Guard obtain under this secret program? Will the Governor order new investigations into every case that obtained evidence from the "fruits of the poisonous tree" (i.e. from this secret program)? Will the Governor punish those within the Alaska National Guard who improperly used these confidential police reports?

I am totally stunned by the conduct of your senior National Guard leaders, their lack of respect to civilian rape victims, to allow confidential police reports about civilian rape victims to be so freely distributed is sickening to every female who I tell this fact pattern too…when this matter hits the media, it will undermine the trust that sex crime victims and civilian witnesses to crime have with civilian law enforcement as these victims/witnesses will worry if their most intimate secrets will be laughed at in the local National Guard Armory. It will also bring great discredit upon the National Guard and its Commander in Chief for either allowing it to happen or being asleep at the wheel when it was happening. Right now all fingers appear to point to the Governor and his lack of leadership for keeping Katkus (a former APD official – was Katkus personally involved in setting up this program using his relationship with his former subordinates to do an end run around the law?) and his team in place for years while this secret obtaining of confidential police reports on rape victims occurred. Why? What changes do you plan to make to fix this problem? Are you going to immediately end this program? If not, you are approving of this program – in either case it is a political issue for September/October/November to be sure!

I eagerly await your responses.

RE: Request Authorization to Receive Police Reports

Dear Ms. Cain:

Per our conversation this morning, I am requesting authorization to receive police reports from the Anchorage Police Department, as our office is responsible for coordinating with and providing advice to Commanders regarding disciplinary actions against soldiers and airmen who become involved with civilian criminal issues. Though we are able to obtain court documents including complaints and judgments; police reports provide us with essential elements of offenses to determine the severity of those offenses, as well as witness statements.

If you have any questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to contact me at this email, alan.s.hutchison.mil@mail.mil, or call me at 428-6021. Thank you for your assistance.

RE: Request Authorization to Receive Police Reports

Dear Ms. Cain:

I am requesting that another paralegal within the Alaska National Guard receive authorization to receive police reports from the Anchorage Police Department. Her information is as follows:

SSG Lina M. Wood
lina.m.wood3.mil@mail.mil
SSN BOI/PR
DOB BOI/PR

SSG Wood's office is correlated with a command section which directly oversees disciplinary actions against soldiers within their unit who become involved with civilian criminal matters, and it would be more efficient for her to be able to obtain police reports directly. And again, though we are able to obtain court documents including complaints and judgments, police reports provide us with essential elements of offenses to determine the severity of those offenses, as well as witness statements. If you approve of SSG Wood's access, I can pass on the email address to her for submission of requests.

Subject: Unlawful activity report to the Governor
Importance: High

Executive Summary: This email puts the Governor's office on notice of allegations of unlawful access by the Alaska National Guard to confidential police rape reports that contain intimate details about civilians with no military affiliation. This secret National Guard program used federal funds to help state official's access confidential police files that they normally would have been unable to access without a Court order or statutory authority. It has been in place for years and apparently to me with the consent and/or knowledge of Major General Katkus and other senior leaders. This program likely violates the constitutional rights of civilian sex crime victims and other civilians who gave statements in criminal matters who had no clue their confidential police reports/statements were being widely distributed within the National Guard.

Your and the Governor's immediate attention to this matter is requested.

Mike,

I am an Attorney in Washington DC who has been retained by a member of the Alaska National Guard who wishes to disclose gross misconduct to the Governor (via you) and likely commence a lawsuit against numerous officials who have engaged in constitutional rights violations. MG Katkus is fully aware of this situation and has been for some time but apparently has failed to take action so that is why I am escalating this to you (and the Governor). This email will likely be introduced as evidence of notification of the Governor of these serious allegations as such I am requesting a return email confirming receipt of this email.

My client loves the National Guard and doesn't want to bring it shame but feels he is being victimized in retaliation for his prior unwillingness to perjure himself during the National Guard Sex Scandal witch-hunts (those allegations will be saved for another day). My client is eager to quickly settle his dispute with the National Guard for a mutual confidentiality agreement & no money just assurances he will be left alone till he can retire; a settlement that should be a no brainer for the State given the breadth and depth of corruption we are aware of.

Please consider this email a formal report of misconduct by members of the Alaska National Guard to the Governor/Commander in Chief.

On or about 10 June 2014, I received from an Alaska National Guard Official a confidential police report that as I understand Alaska Law (I am not an Alaskan attorney) should not have been in the hands of anybody who was not a sworn law enforcement officer or otherwise entitled by State Statute to possess it (See AS 12.62.160 and Alaska Code 13 AAC 68.320). This report was contained in a federal administrative file of all places, available for thousands of federal employees to access and read without restrictions. The Anchorage Police Department report # PR shocked the conscience of my law firm employees who read it. It named the alleged rape victim (PR), provided her age (PR when the report was written), address and employer PR amongst a plethora of other personal/confidential information. In sickening and shocking detail it talked about PR and contained such graphic quotes as ' PR PR PR . Even more shocking is this report was widely distributed amongst the highest levels of the Alaska National Guard in addition to countless others at low and mid-levels within the Alaska National Guard who saw nothing wrong with it being attached to federal administrative records without PR consent or knowledge. This report should have been safeguarded from public records and Alaska National Guard possession because #1 it contained the most confidential/private of details about an alleged civilian rape victim, #2 it contained information on police policy and procedures for investigating sex assault crimes and #3 the allegations were later deemed by the police department to be "unprovable" after an extensive criminal investigation involving numerous civilian police officials; thus the alleged suspect should not be subject to vigilantism by others (in this case vigilantism by the Alaska National Guard), the very reasons for the laws that keep these records secret (See Alaska Statute 12.62.005 which states the intent of the law to limit access to police records that did not result in an arrest is to "protects victims of crime, allows the proper administration of justice, and avoids vigilantism")

As you can see from the attached documents, the National Guard has secretly been able to access confidential police files on civilians with no military affiliation without being a "criminal justice agency" as defined by AS 12.62.900 or engaging in "criminal justice activities" as defined by AS 12.62.900. Nor does any law specifically allow the two named Alaska National Guard officials to have access to civilian rape reports that did not result in an arrest (interestingly to me these people claim a right to police files because they are "responsible for coordinating with and providing advice to Commanders regarding disciplinary actions" – guess what? How many other government entities have people who provide "advice" to decision makers about administrative disciplinary actions? This is a slippery slope - why aren't the people who work in the Department of Transportation and Public Facilities who advise low level managers on administrative disciplinary actions given access to these confidential police reports? (probably because such conduct is illegal? But again what do I know? I am not an Alaska Attorney). The attached documents are shocking in their sheer boldness, while the National Guard concedes they can have access to public records (i.e. Court documents etc); they want exactly what the law doesn't allow them, "police reports provide us with essential elements of offenses to determine the severity of those offenses, as well as witness statements" (quoting from the attached).

The attached documents show that the Anchorage Police in apparent contradiction of early statements from your administration about the original Alaska National Guard sex scandal and how hard it was to obtain evidence has given the National Guard unrestricted access to its records and has been far from uncooperative – if anything they are complicit in the Constitutional rights deprivations of civilians. Furthermore, the attached documents show that the Alaska National Guard did not hide the reason for wanting to obtain these confidential records – they wanted them to engage in vigilantism (i.e. administrative disciplinary action even when the Police didn't make an arrest)!!

Based on these allegations, I would like to know when the Governor first got briefed on the secret National Guard program to access confidential police rape reports on civilians without the victim's consent? Why didn't he object to this outrageous invasion of privacy for the civilian victim and other civilians who provided "witness statements" thinking these records would be confidential?

Why wasn't the Governor not shocked that hundreds of National Guard folks were able to read obscene/graphic confidential police civilian rape reports without MG Katkus and other key leaders putting any type of internal controls on their distribution?

Why has the Governor not demanded the resignation of MG Katkus, BOI/PR, and the State Judge Advocate (amongst many other senior National Guard officials) who knew or should have known about this program for months if not years but did nothing to stop/end it? Is it because the Governor ultimately approved of this secret plan? Does the Governor, given these allegations, still have trust and confidence in the judgment, integrity, and wisdom of MG Katkus and BOI/PR?

Does the Governor believe that the Alaska National Guard Staff Judge Advocate's Office (i.e. Alaska lawyers who work for your National Guard) acted appropriately in requesting, possessing, and then unrestricted distributing confidential police reports that it apparently had no lawful authority to obtain, possess, or distribute? Has the Governor referred any allegations to the Alaska Bar Association or other Attorney Licensing Agency for investigation?

How many police reports did the National Guard obtain under this secret program? Will the Governor order new investigations into every case that obtained evidence from the "fruits of the poisonous tree" (i.e. from this secret program)? Will the Governor punish those within the Alaska National Guard who improperly used these confidential police reports?

I am totally stunned by the conduct of your senior National Guard leaders, their lack of respect to civilian rape victims, to allow confidential police reports about civilian rape victims to be so freely distributed is sickening to every female who I tell this fact pattern too…when this matter hits the media, it will undermine the trust that sex crime victims and civilian witnesses to crime have with civilian law enforcement as these victims/witnesses will worry if their most intimate secrets will be laughed at in the local National Guard Armory. It will also bring great discredit upon the National Guard and its Commander in Chief for either allowing it to happen or being asleep at the wheel when it was happening. Right now all fingers appear to point to the Governor and his lack of leadership for keeping Katkus (a former APD official – was Katkus personally involved in setting up this program using his relationship with his former subordinates to do an end run around the law?) and his team in place for years while this secret obtaining of confidential police reports on rape victims occurred. Why? What changes do you plan to make to fix this problem? Are you going to immediately end this program? If not, you are approving of this program – in either case it is a political issue for September/October/November to be sure!

I eagerly await your responses.

For your SA,
Apparently Mr. Tully (Esq.) did not care for my response, and plans to contact Senator Grassley and drag the IG through the mud.
In the message to him below, I provided a 1559 (IG action request) and the Whistleblower Questionnaire, so I did not refuse the whistleblower aspect. The two inflammatory e-mails he has sent need clarification and specifics which have not been provided, nor has a privacy act release from his client been provided.

I intended to reach out to [redacted], as I normally would with a 3rd party complaint, but this attorney's approach is making me extra cautious.
I've alerted DAIG and NGB IG.

I vehemently disagree with your decision not to investigate allegations of misconduct, misuse of federal funds and equipment, and abuse of authority pertaining to a program that has little correlation to [redacted] AR 15-6 investigation. I believe your position is unsupported by AR 20-1 Para 6.3(g) as the program in question isn't within the scope or bounds of [redacted] AR 15-6 thus he has no redress for his allegations of corruption and misconduct in that forum.

Furthermore, I believe it is clear that AR 20-1 Par 7.1 makes your decision not to investigate improper. I will inform you that I plan to communicate with the media, Senator Chuck Grassley and other members of Congress in Washington DC about the allegations that I sent to you and your refusal to accept those allegations for investigation. I believe your decision will bring discredit to the Inspector General community at the end of the day.

Mr. Tully,

It appears your client ([redacted]) is involved in an administrative action regarding the results of an AR 15-6 investigation. This administrative action has embedded regulatory due process, which your client should act on. In accordance with (IAW) AR 20-1, IG Activities and Procedures, it is inappropriate for the IG to intervene until the regulatory redress process is completed. IAW AR 15-6, Procedures for Investigating Officers and Boards of Officers, matters pertaining to the conduct of an AR 15-6 investigation are to be presented to the appointing authority for the investigation for consideration.

I recommend you coordinate with CPT Jennifer King (cc'd above jennifer.l.king184.mil@mail.mil) who is representing [redacted] during the administrative board process.

If your client desires to submit a whistleblower reprisal complaint, he may do so by completing the attached DA Form 1559, Inspector General Action Request, and returning it to my office or by contacting the DOD Hotline via 800-424-9098 or their website http://www.dodig.mil/hotline/reprisalcomplaint.html. In addition, I've attached a Questionnaire to help clarify specific details of such a complaint.

If your client believes that senior Army officials are involved in his complaint, he may also submit his complaint to the DAIG website at usarmy.pentagon.hqda-otig.mbx.saig-in-office@mail.mil. IAW AR 20-1, alleged wrong doing by a General officer needs addressed to the site above.

If your client has any other matters that he would like to bring to the IG for consideration, he is welcome to contact me or my assistant MSG Terry Severin directly. Otherwise I am unable to further respond to the matters pertaining to BOI/FPA/PR without documented privacy act release from him.

Senator,

(sorry for the early email but its business time here in Washington DC)

Are you aware that the Alaska National Guard has a 'covert surveillance team' who accesses, possesses, and freely distributes confidential law enforcement documents involving civilians with no military affiliation? This team appears to me (I am not an attorney licensed in Alaska) to be operating in violation of the Alaska Constitution (Article I sec 7, 14, 22, and 24 amongst others) and Alaska Statute as well as federal law/military regulations.

As you can see from my email below, I have reported this team's existence and it's operations to Major General Katkus and the Governor but the National Guard officials involved and/or who had knowledge of this 'covert surveillance team' remain on duty without any apparent change in duties and this covert civilian surveillance apparently has not been shut down.

Do you support military surveillance of Alaska citizens who have no military affiliation? Do you find such actions to be improper if not illegal?

Thanks,
Mat

RE: Request Authorization to Receive Police Reports

Dear Ms. Cain:

Per our conversation this morning, I am requesting authorization to receive police reports from the Anchorage Police Department, as our office is responsible for coordinating with and providing advice to Commanders regarding disciplinary actions against soldiers and airmen who become involved with civilian criminal issues. Though we are able to obtain court documents including complaints and judgments; police reports provide us with essential elements of offenses to determine the severity of those offenses, as well as witness statements.

If you have any questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to contact me at this email, alan.s.hutchison.mil@mail.mil, or call me at 428-6021. Thank you for your assistance.

Sincerely,

ALAN S. HUTCHISON, MSgt, AKANG

RE: Request Authorization to Receive Police Reports

Dear Ms. Cain:

I am requesting that another paralegal within the Alaska National Guard receive authorization to receive police reports from the Anchorage Police Department. Her information is as follows:

SSG Lina M. Wood
lina.m.wood3.mil@mail.mil
SSN: BOI/PR
DOB: BOI/PR

SSG Wood's office is correlated with a command section which directly oversees disciplinary actions against soldiers within their unit who become involved with civilian criminal matters, and it would be more efficient for her to be able to obtain police reports directly. And again, though we are able to obtain court documents including complaints and judgments, police reports provide us with essential elements of offenses to determine the severity of those offenses, as well as witness statements. If you approve of SSG Wood's access, I can pass on the email address to her for submission of requests.

If you have any questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to contact me at this email, alan.s.hutchison.mil@mail.mil, or call me at 428-6021. Thank you for your assistance.

Sincerely,

ALAN S. HUTCHISON, MSgt, AKANG

Looks like we should be getting the draft report soon from the Assessment Team, and then they'll plan to brief the Governor in early to mid August. Once I get a response on the location (my message to him below) - I'll look at the calendar with Janice and give you two some options to look at for the briefing.

I'll let you know when I hear more.

will forward the draft report to you for comment as you deem appropriate. Thereafter, those comments, if any, will be addressed and the team leadership will be ready to travel to AK to brief the governor in early to mid Aug. Accordingly if you would provide possible briefing dates it would be greatly appreciated. Likewise, if the governor will be in this area sometime in Aug we could, if he prefers, meet here. We are available to discuss at your convenience.

Thanks!

Cindy, as you know the assessment team reviewed the results of the survey to determine whether or not individuals could be identified through the comments submitted. We spoke with the NG State IG, who was aware of the survey release to the leadership but stated that he was not aware of any complaints from individuals regarding their participation.

In all there were 1011 respondents to the survey each responded to five questions resulting in 5055 written comments. Of these comments we distilled the following:

The Assessment Team could identify the person writing the comment in 3 instances. The Assessment Team could identify who the person writing the comment was talking about in 15 instances.
The Assessment Team believes that in 22 instances an individual making a comment could be identified with some level of forensic analysis by the AKNG, however the Assessment Team could not identify the individual. Additionally, the leadership was specifically identified in a negative manner in 58 instances and positively identified in 16 instances.

Governor Parnell,

I just got done reading the ADN article regarding you looking into sexual assaults in the Alaska Army National Guard, and I felt compelled to write you.

I was In the Guard from 2005 until 2013. I had one deployment to [BOI/PR]. I respectfully ask that you to take a look at cases from farther back than 2010.

While I was deployed, A person named [BOI/PR] was our XO. Before we even left for the deployment, this man was non stop making sexual unwanted comments to me. (I was an [B...] at the time, and the [BOI/PR] on the deployment.

It got worse and worse, and I was straightforward with him telling him that I was not interested, besides being uncomfortable because of the difference in rank. He persisted in making extremely inappropriate comments to me. When I had to work in the same building as him, he would come up to me and say "You know [BOI/PR], I can make promotions happen, you know all you would need to do..." I had made it clear to the Col., the SGM and the convoy commander that I wanted to get outside the wire and go on missions. The last thing I wanted to do was just sit on Base the whole year. Apparently [BOI/PR] found this out, because he came up to me in the command center room and said "you know I can get you outside the wire, right? He showed up at my barracks several times, and told my roommates he was going to "borrow" something from me which was a complete lie. When I was home one time, he was making comments on the cement block outside, and then he [BOI/PR] I quickly went inside and began crying. This was something that I felt very strongly about and this comment made me the angriest. I avoided him as much as I possibly could. My supervisor who was [BOI/PR] asked me what was wrong because I had been acting different.

I finally after months broke down and told him. I couldn't take it anymore. He immediately had me go talk to the SGM ([BOI/PR]). I then had to have a sit down talk with First Sgt's, two SGM's and the Commander ([BOI/PR])

Within TWO DAYS [BOI/PR] was sent to another base and I did not see him until his Court Martial. I wasn't going to make this so long but I want to explain. After word got out, MANY more women came forward with allegations. He was court martialed on base, I had to write a sworn statement and testify against this man. Other females testified as well. He got a year or two sentence, kicked out of the Military, and loss of all benefits. The reason I am writing this is because the whole time before the trial I kept hearing, "oh he's done this his whole military career, they just swept it under the rug" I heard this from SO MANY PEOPLE. I was disgusted. So if it hadn't been covered up, he wouldn't CONTINUE to be able to do this to people? I didn't understand.

I was fairly new to the military, and was beginning to think this was just the way it was. After the trial, someone told me that they contacted approximately forty women who either had relations with the [BOI/PR] or were harassed/assaulted by him.
This makes me sick. My chain of command did EXACTLY the right thing and immediately took care of this situation.

I was supposed to be notified when he got released from Prison. I wasn't. In fact, he called MY PARENTS house looking for me a few months ago. I can't stand that I have to still think about this person. It makes me feel really bad for all of those people he did this to and were to scared to come forward.

I realize this was a while ago. I realize he got punished. But what he did is not ok, and if he would have gotten more than a "talking to" or slap on the wrist YEARS ago, how many of these incidents could have been avoided?

Things of this nature should not be swept under the rug. I had a female Major come up to me and thank me for coming forward because he had been doing it to her as well, but she said she never had the guts to say anything. This issue is obviously not just [BOI/PR]. Just take this email into consideration if you will. Feel free to contact me if you would like, but I don't want this email to go anwhere else. I have already wasted to much time on this person. I just felt in my gut I needed to write you and tell you my story. Thank you for reading.

Hey Mike

Sorry I didn't get right back to you on this but I need to provide some extensive clarification.

The ANG Sexual Assault Coordinator is a non-dual status technician that I hired in 2012 to replace our failing contractor. Her name is Octavia Thompson. She is still gainfully employed and doing a fantastic job.

JANE HAS NEVER BEEN A SEXUAL ASSAULT COORDINATOR. She was an MP officer who left active duty, moved to Alaska to accept an APD position. Simultaneously, she joined the Alaska National Guard. After several years working at APD and serving as a tradition National Guardsman, I made contact with then Chief Huen who allowed her to take a leave of absence from APD and fill the AKNG Counterdrug Coordinator I vacated after I was promoted to General Officer.

She served in this role for several years and returned to APD where she found a husband, resigned both her military commission and her police commission, left APD and the AKNG, and moved to Florida. Within a year, she left her husband and returned to Alaska requesting the AK ARNG reinstatement her commission and accept her back. We did so.

Shortly after this, NGB offered an @ 4 week course to train military investigators in sexual assault. Initially, NGB wanted attorneys, but I argued successfully for LTC Wawersik to attend due to her law enforcement back ground. The AKNG hired her as a temporary technician and assigned as the assistant Chief of Staff. She was given an additional duty to

BOI/PR/FPA

We had hoped to assign her to the Joint Forces Headquarter's PROVOST MARSHALL position. NGB, however, declined authorization to fill that position until at least 2017!!!! (Possibly with OCI's innovative recommendation of an idea we've been actively trying to implement for some time, maybe we can get it funded sooner).

We already have identified a BOI/FPA in the Alaska National Guard currently deployed to BOI/FPA. He is also BOI/FPA His name is BOI/FPA and I had planned to send him to the next available NGB sexual assault investigation school when NGB gets through its current funding crisis.

Anyway, long story short: we don't have a new SA coordinator, we have the same one that has been instrumental for turning the program around in 2012 and making it the tremendous success that it is today. Jane had one additional school and an additional duty. We have been trying to establish the PROVOST MARSHALL position for quite some time, we have a qualified warm body for it ready to go. (jokingly I think OCI may have proposed a recommendation they knew we were already very engaged in)

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE No. 14-149

Governor Releases National Guard Report, Adjutant General Out
Calls for Special Team to Restore Respect and Responsibility

September 4, 2014, Anchorage, Alaska – Following the conclusion of a six-month independent review and assessment of open and closed investigations related to reports of sexual assault, rape and fraud among members of the Alaska National Guard, Governor Sean Parnell released the findings today, and took the resignation of the adjutant general, Major General Thomas H. Katkus. The governor originally requested the assessment from the National Guard Bureau Office of Complex Investigations (OCI) in February.

The report found Guard members have a lack of trust and confidence in the Alaska National Guard leadership's ability to handle sexual assault cases and other misconduct. Further, the report found that favoritism, ethical misconduct and fear of reprisal have eroded trust and confidence in Guard leadership.

"The dedicated men and women who serve in the Alaska National Guard deserve better and I am committed to restoring the trust they are entitled to," Governor Parnell said. "While the report's findings are deeply troubling, I know that the overwhelming majority of Alaska National Guard personnel serve admirably and honorably. We will take all necessary steps to ensure respect, responsibility and trust are restored."

Governor Parnell requested and received the resignation of Major General Thomas H. Katkus, adjutant general, and commissioner of Alaska Department of Military and Veterans Affairs. Brigadier General Mike Bridges will serve as acting commissioner on an interim basis until a new adjutant general is named. The governor will also closely examine the command structure within the Alaska National Guard, which will include further staffing changes.

Governor Parnell requested the National Guard Bureau's help in assembling a team to implement the recommendations in the report to restore a healthy and safe working environment for the men and women of the Guard. The governor has requested the OCI provide personnel to assist with implementing the recommendations outlined in the report. The team will include a representative from the Office of the Governor.

The governor has requested a further investigation into allegations of fraud pertaining to the misuse of Guard assets.

A copy of the report from the Office of Complex Investigations is available at:

Reporters who have follow up questions for the Guard Bureau may contact Rick Breitenfeldt at (703) 601 6767 or (703) 627 7273.

The corruption does not stop at MG Katkus. As an Army Guard Soldier I believe you should appoint an Air Guard TAG with the mission of cleaning up the corruption in the Army. The worst possible thing you can do to restore trust in the Alaska Guard is to appoint BG Jorgenson as the next TAG. She is part of the problem. She isn't part of the sexual assault problem but she wields power to reward her friends and punish her enemies. To give you specifics would reveal my unit, but I hope her name has already come up in Command Climate surveys.

Subject: DMVA Trenches

Dear Governor Parnell,
I have to send this from an email account other than my official State of Alaska account because all of the problems at DMVA are not yet remedied on both the green suit and civilian side. Possible repercussions could arise if I did not write this with some anonymity. For some of us we have been wondering "what took you so long." The environment and culture for the past several years is has been troublesome for many of us "in the trenches."
I have talked to Mike Bridges a couple of times to help him understand what we have felt to be problems with management. Each time I was left with the impression that there were only minimal things he could do because of the chain of command.
As a civilian I have had to work with him since well before his star. He is one of only a few who I actually respect, in terms of dedication to his job and his personnel, willingness to lead by example, and ability to get the job done. I have related to him that I personally was troubled by some of the atmosphere at the Guard, but had decided to stay on as an employee partly because he was now in the slot he is, and because of my desire to help support green suiters who have been deployed.
That has been a big issue for the military side and for some of us on the civilian side- the TAG was really just an Anchorage cop, who through longevity, made it to commissioner. Bridges on the other hand, many of us feel, really got where he is because of who he is and what he has done. When I first had to interact with him as a colonel, I quietly asked some of the people with whom he had spent time "in the sand" about his leadership and capabilities. He is respected as a no-nonsense good leader. I am sort of a maverick and can be irreverent when it comes to chain of command. I have let him know that he is one of a very few that I actually respect and do not merely follow the doctrine of "choose respect" promulgated by your office. He really has earned it. Your inclination mighjt be to sweep "all of the old out" in the search for a new DMVA commissioner. Assuming you continue in office, you will be hard pressed to find a better permanent TAG for as long as he would like to serve. And while we are on that subject, he is infinitely better than the opportunist at the head of DAS. I have written this only because I feel Bridges can really help change the working environment of the DMVA and restore some respect to the department. There has been a perception by other state agencies' employees, that the DMVA is messed up, and "what the hell is going on over there" is a question that pops up occasionally in conversation.
I won't sign this with my real name, because I really do want to keep my job and help make the department better at a trench level.
Thank you for clearing out some of the problems at our department.
Respectfully,
"Avogadro"

BOI/PR

August 6, 2014

National Guard Bureau, NGB-IG
Jefferson Plaza 1, Suite 11600
1411 Jefferson Davis Highway
Arlington, VA 22202

SEP - 2 2014

Dear Sir or Ma'am:

I write to you out of frustration over the lack of information provided to the victims involved in the "investigations" regarding the misconduct of the Alaska National Guard. I am a victim of the Alaska National Guard sexual assault "cover ups". I was sexually assaulted in my BOI/PR while a member of the Alaska National Guard. I don't know who my perpetrator is due to a combination of BOI/PR. I do, however, know that my experience in the aftermath of my assault from members of the Alaska National Guard caused further traumatizing thought processes and resulted in extremely delayed mental health treatment for me, BOI/PR to be precise.

I've been privy to many "unofficial" updates regarding the status of various "investigations" wherein the current status being that NGB opened investigations from both the Office of the IG as well as Complex Investigations. To my knowledge, or lack thereof, both cases have been closed. I was never contacted by either office.

I was, however, contacted by LTC Jane Wawersik of the Alaska National Guard after my last interview B... BOI/PR when I voiced that I had yet to be contacted by anyone involved in the investigations or in any official capacity. She listened to a majority of "my story" as well as my concerns. She then issued me an "unofficial" apology on behalf of the Alaska National Guard for the way I was treated. Although I am sure her intentions were pure, an apology from anyone other than those involved or the TAG himself is of little comfort and holds no weight. LTC Wawersik also provided me with the contact information for the investigators that were currently occupying space at the FT Richardson USPFO building. I did not contact them as I felt it should be their duty to contact me directly in the capacity of a proper investigation. No contact was made from those investigators.

In this instance, what investigation can be truly complete without contacting any and all potential witnesses? To my knowledge subsequent investigations have been opened by vertical echelons that I am not able to confirm that I was part of. Information that I've been provided, from anonymous sources, causes me great concern, however. Apparently comments were made by investigators, from these higher echelons, regarding the criminal background of some of the victims. To me, these comments imply that the investigators are attempting to discredit the accusations made by victims of the Alaska National Guard sexual assault "cover ups". Discrediting a witness is usually a tactic used by the opposing side in litigation. Should I take from this that these investigators are against the victims instead of trying to help?

If these comments were in fact made I ask why? Does the fact that someone BOI/PR make them more deserving of being assaulted or less deserving of being treated with dignity and respect from their chain of command when seeking assistance for sexual assault? I have BOI/PR, which I disclosed during initial entry and again during my secret security application. Does this mean I am less credible as a victim?

I hold an exemplary military record. I was BOI/PR, which my drill sergeants can attest to. I was the BOI/PR. I've received multiple awards for my service both stateside and during my BOI/PR. I've also been directly involved, as a result of my BOI/PR What does it take to be regarded as credible in the eyes of investigators?

I have been asked recently by the Secretary of the Army IG Assistance Office, which did not inform me that I was bound by confidentiality, whether or not I "wanted" an investigation into the mistreatment by the Alaska National Guard regarding my sexual assault. My response was "yes". I was informed that there would not be an investigation into my actual assault as I was BOI/PR at the time. To this I respond that I've never asked for an investigation into my assault. I know I don't have any information that would result in a conviction. I was drugged, raped and sought medical care for the purpose of peace of mind that I was not infected with an STD. My records of ever being at the BOI/PR Hospital where I was treated have not been located to this day. Aside from my discharge paperwork that I kept and the counseling statement from my commander at the time, there is no evidence of me being there. If there was a rape kit done there is no documentation of it ever existing either as both myself and several others have thoroughly inquired after. There is also no file from the AKARNG SARC Office regarding my sexual assault. Testimony has been made on my behalf from a SARC liaison that can validate the lack of evidence and report from BOI/PR and confirm that one should have been created. Sometimes lack of evidence is evidence in itself.

To this date the only form of closure that I've received is from my LOD investigation that was initiated by the BOI/PR on my behalf as a result of my BOI/PR. My initial LOD was denied for lack of evidence which instigated an appeal from me that included counseling statements during the time period immediately following my assault, the BOI/PR Hospital discharge form, and testimony offered by BOI/PR. My LOD appeal was approved within days after submission.

My question in this instance is "How can a United States government office admit, in an official capacity, that what happened to me was incurred or aggravated in the LOD but the same organization fail to contact me as a witness in related Investigations?"

Aside from the questions that I've posed in this letter I am asking for closure and justice on this matter. I would like a full acknowledgement and apology from the Alaska National Guard, in writing, to each victim relating to these investigations. I would also like a proper and full investigation into the claims made by myself and fellow sexual assault victims into the handling of sexual assault reports made from BOI/PR to present to ensure policy and procedures were followed. I ask that if actions taken, by the then chain of command, did not comply with policy and procedure that punitive action, up and to include

UCMJ action, be taken against those involved. I ask that future policies, procedures, and training are implemented, and enforced, to prevent any further psychological damage to present and any future victims. I ask that a final full disclosure report is issued to each victim in regards to the outcome of such investigations so that closure and healing can commence for all victims involved.

Respectfully,

BOI/PR

Cindy and Mike:

I read the news today reporting on Governor Parnell's action on the issues surrounding the Alaska National Guard. I applaud his efforts by acting in the best interests of the men and women currently serving. The Alaska National Guard provides an invaluable service to all Alaskans, and ensuring the confidence of those dedicated to helping Alaskans in need is of vital importance.

On that note, I wanted to pass along to the Governor a message regarding Brig. Gen. Tim O'Brien. The Foundation had an opportunity to work with General O'Brien while preparing for Ted Stevens Day at the Alaska Air Show this year. In keeping with the Senator's firm belief that every Alaska child should have the opportunity to participate in all Alaska had to offer, the Foundation partnered with the Anchorage Community Land Trust, the Boys & Girls Club of Mountain View, and New Hope Baptist Church to provide transportation to and from the air show, funds for lunch, and fun activities for the children.

At every turn, we were faced with barriers and denials from JBER-- most specifically our plan to provide a charter bus for the children and their chaperones. As many of these children are from families with no means of transportation, and with the air show not providing buses this year, we were faced with having to cancel our plans. After contacting General O'Brien, he was able to secure not only entrance for our bus, but a special parking pass as well. General O'Brien's wife, Catherine O'Brien, also helped to ensure the the children were able to meet with the Thunderbirds.

This was an experience many of the children are still talking about, and some have expressed their commitment towards working hard to someday become pilots themselves.

General O'Brien's efforts helped the Foundation ensure that these children had a once in a lifetime opportunity to participate in the air show. In our interactions with General O'Brien, he was committed to the mission of the Guard, to the men and women serving in the Guard, and to Alaska.

I understand that Governor Parnell has many difficult choices to make in the days ahead, and I wanted to take this opportunity to inform him of our experience with someone we feel can help the Guard move in a new and healthy direction.

Please give me a call if you have any questions.

My warmest regards,

Karina

Governor reviews award of medal to guardsman implicated in scandal

Alex DeMarban | October 8, 2014

Like 39 Tweet 7 8+1 0

Gov. Sean Parnell is reviewing the awarding of a high-level Alaska National Guard honor to a guardsman embroiled in the toxic culture of harassment and misconduct that has plagued the guard for years.

Col. Tim DeHaas is a former Army Guard chief of staff and served under Gen. Thomas Katkus, who would later rise to the state's top guard position, adjutant general.

Katkus departed amid allegations made public in September of favoritism and other leadership failings in the Alaska National Guard. DeHaas received the Alaska National Guard Legion of Merit award with Parnell's approval in 2011 upon his retirement.

Prompted by the outcry of a trio of veterans calling themselves Veterans for Accountability, Parnell said Wednesday he is closely reviewing the matter surrounding DeHaas' award.

The group, which met with reporters earlier Wednesday, demanded Parnell admit that he erred by signing off on the award for DeHaas.

They say the governor should have known DeHaas did not deserve the Legion of Merit medal in 2011, as military investigators had previously substantiated that he violated federal ethical standards for several years, including by misusing helicopters and other vehicles.

And at least one whistle-blower – Lt. Col. Ken Blaylock – has said he sent a letter to the governor in 2010 detailing growing concerns about DeHaas.

Veterans for Accountability, Blaylock and others have said DeHaas was the subject of numerous complaints of misconduct by other officers before his retirement, which was announced in the guard's Warriors fall 2011 publication.

Numerous efforts to reach DeHaas by phone and email on Wednesday were unsuccessful. DeHaas apparently spoke with an APRN reporter, according to a report from Alaska Public Media saying DeHaas denied all the allegations.

Asked how the governor now feels about the award going to DeHaas, Parnell's press secretary, Sharon Leighow, said in an email that the governor's office "agrees with the group's concerns" and "is reviewing the matter carefully."

The request for the Legion of Merit medal was made by Katkus in 2011 "before the governor called for the Office of Complex Investigations to conduct an assessment into allegations of misconduct in the Alaska National Guard," Leighow said.

Parnell made that request this past February, more than three years after it appears reports of DeHaas' alleged misconduct starting coming into Parnell's office and the offices of military investigators.

The adjutant general's office routinely drafts and asks the governor to sign Legion of Merit awards for the retirement of senior officers, said Leighow.

The award is not routinely given to retiring staff, said Lt. Col. Bruce Dougherty with Veterans for Accountability. Dougherty said he retired from the Alaska Air National Guard four years ago and did not receive it.

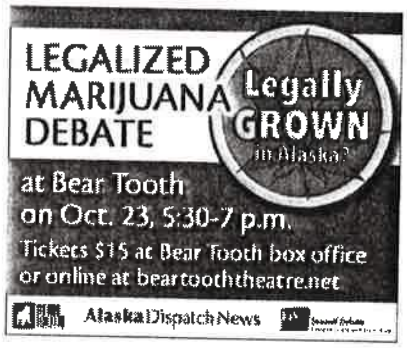
"It only passes muster with the highest-ranking of people, generally speaking, such as colonel and above," Dougherty said.

Dougherty recently formed the group with Shaina Kilcoyne, a former member of the National Guard in Wisconsin who did not serve in the Alaska National Guard, and Sgt. Kevin McGee, a Vietnam-era U.S. Army veteran who said he was also a member of the Alaska Army National Guard until about 15 years ago. McGee is first vice president for the NAACP in Anchorage.

Members of the group said none of them worked with DeHaas or experienced the misconduct detailed in the report issued last month by the National Guard Bureau's Office of Complex Investigations. The report brought new weight to years of allegations about sexual and other misconduct, alleged fraud and favoritism in the Alaska National Guard.

Since the report's release, two officials have resigned at the request of the governor, including Katkus and McHugh Pierre, civilian deputy commissioner for the Alaska Department of Military and Veterans Affairs. Parnell has promised more guard officials will be fired.

At the press conference with reporters Wednesday, the veterans said they believe they have a duty to call attention to the issue and demand the governor release details about the complaints his office received. They said they have no political motivation and no connection to Democrats, gubernatorial candidate Bill Walker or other groups that might try to tar a Republican governor up for re-election early next month.



Parnell has denied requests for those details filed under the Alaska's public records law, citing, among other things, that victims have a right to privacy. The veterans group said it also submitted an open-records request and is waiting for a response from the governor's office.

Dougherty said the veterans want an admission from the governor that it was an error to award the Legion of Merit to DeHaas because DeHaas "perpetrated a culture of fraud and sexual assault" and "defrauded taxpayers with impunity."

"It's clear the governor's staff and other guard members were intimately involved and aware of the scandal and they too should too be held accountable," Dougherty said.

The veterans noted some of the allegations made against DeHaas before his retirement, which are also contained in two letters crafted by anonymous authors that were said to have been sent to the National Guard's inspector general in 2010 and 2011:

> In early 2011, a senior officer wrote to the Army inspector general alleging that DeHaas abused travel numerous times and defrauded taxpayers of about $60,000, including having the government pay for hunting trips and trips to visit family in Idaho.
> In October 2010, a separate group of National Guard members filed an IG complaint alleging that DeHaas, among other wrongdoings, was involved in nepotism, personnel intimidation and illegal use of aircraft, including using government aircraft to deliver antlers to Idaho and using government helicopters to go bear hunting. The whistle-blowers ended their letter saying, "As someone who is now being nominated for general officer, it is important that these allegations be resolved before he is promoted."

The lengthy OCI report does not specifically name DeHaas. But amid the numerous guard problems laid out in the report, in a section dedicated to ethical misconduct, it refers to an officer who was awarded the Legion of Merit at his retirement. Investigators noted that the award came after the Department of the Army Inspector General had substantiated that the officer had been involved in "violations of federal ethical standards" for several years.

The OCI report notes the officer "inappropriately" used "government vehicles for personal use, including helicopters."

The report also says:

> Substantiated complaints made against the officer resulted in an administrative action; the officer retired at his current rank and, upon retirement, was awarded the Legion of Merit.
> The OCI team was informed the officer had "improperly interrogated a victim of sexual assault and exercised bias in the administration of personnel matters."
> Many individuals interviewed by the team blamed Katkus "for failing to take administrative action against the officer after learning" the Department of the Army Inspector General had issued its findings against the officer.

Members of the veterans group also referred to a memorandum that Lt. Col. Ken Blaylock, who retired from the National Guard in 2012, said he sent to the governor almost four years ago, in December 2010.

By then, Blaylock said on Wednesday, he'd already visited the governor's office and staff multiple times to notify the governor about sexual assaults and victims' fear of reporting in the chain of command. The visits included bringing victims and National Guard chaplains to the governor's office, he said.

Former Union President Sentenced To 18 Months Probation For Making A False Representaiton In A Federal Form

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

June 24, 2010

Anchorage, Alaska – Acting United States Attorney Kevin Feldis announced that on June 23, 2010, Kevin McGee of Anchorage, Alaska, was sentenced in federal court in Anchorage to eighteen months probation with thirty days of home confinement, and a $2,400 fine in addition to paying restitution, for his conviction of making a false representation in a federal form to cover his receipt of double reimbursement of travel funds.

United States District Court Judge Timothy M. Burgess imposed the sentence on McGee, age 55.

Paragraph Three.

According to documents filed in the case, Kevin McGee was President of the American Federation of Government Employees, Local Union 3028, when he filed a report with the Department of Labor, falsely representing that there had been no financial loss to the organization when, in fact, he did cause a loss to the Union when he fraudulently sought and received double reimbursement for travel expenses.

Prior to imposing the sentence, Judge Burgess stated that it was an abuse of trust for McGee, the union president, to take the unauthorized funds and then cover up the conduct by falsely filing the form with the Department of Labor.

Mr. Feldis commended the Department of Labor, Office of Labor Management Standards, working with the Veterans Affairs Office of Inspector General, for the investigation that led to the successful prosecution of McGee.

Attorneys for Plaintiff

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF ALASKA

SUPERSEDING INFORMATION

The United States Attorney charges that:

General Allegations

1. At all times relevant to this Information, the defendant, KEVIN MCGEE, was a Department of Veteran Affairs (VA) employee and the president of the American Federation of Government Employees Local Union 3028 (Local 3028), which represents VA employees in Anchorage, Alaska.

2. In his capacity as president of the Local 3028, MCGEE traveled on business. While on travel MCGEE had a debit card for the Local 3028's bank account that he used to pay for travel-related expenses. On at least two occasions once in 2005 and once in 2006, MCGEE paid for a hotel room with the union debit card and then he submitted travel vouchers to the VA for reimbursement for the same hotel room.

3. As president of the Local 3028, MCGEE was authorized by law and responsible for filing an annual LM-3 financial disclosure form with the United States Department of Labor. This form requires, among other things, that the Local 3028 report the total disbursements paid to all union officers, including the president. The LM-3 also requires disclosure of any loss or shortage of the Local 3028's funds. In 2007, MCGEE under reported the amount of disbursements he received on the LM-3. MCGEE also reported there was no loss to the Local 3028 when in fact MCGEE had used the Local 3028 debit card to receive double reimbursement for travel expenses paid for by other organizations.

4. Paragraphs 1 through 3 are realleged and incorporated herein.

5. On or about May 6, 2005, within the District of Alaska, the defendant, KEVIN MCGEE, in his capacity as President of the American Federation of Government Employees Local Union 3028, and authorized by law to make and give a certificate and writing, did knowingly make and deliver as true to the Department of Veterans Affairs a travel voucher knowing that the form contained a false representation seeking reimbursement for costs that he had not incurred, to wit: MCGEE submitted a claim for payment for a hotel stay that he had previously paid for with the debit card for the Local 3028.

All of which is in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 1018.

6. Paragraphs 1 through 3 are realleged and incorporated herein.

7. On or about May 18, 2006, within the District of Alaska, the defendant, KEVIN MCGEE, in his capacity as President of the American Federation of Government Employees Local Union 3028, and authorized by law to make and give a certificate and writing, did knowingly make and deliver as true to the Department of Veterans Affairs a travel voucher, knowing that the form contained a false representation seeking reimbursement for costs that he had not incurred, to wit: MCGEE submitted a claim for payment for a hotel stay that he had previously paid for with the debit card for the Local 3028.

All of which is in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 1018.

8. Paragraphs 1 through 3 are realleged and incorporated herein.

9. On or about July 17, 2007, within the District of Alaska, the defendant, KEVIN MCGEE, in his capacity as president of American Federation of Government Employees Local Union 3028, and authorized by law to make and give a certificate and writing, did knowingly make and deliver as true to the United States Department of Labor, an LM-3 financial disclosure form for the fiscal year 2006, knowing that the form contained a false representation, to wit: MCGEE reported on the LM-3 for 2006 that he received total disbursements from the Local 3028 in the amount of $3,124 when MCGEE knew that he had cashed checks from the Local 3028 totaling $5,769.39.

All of which is in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 1018.

10. Paragraphs 1 through 3 are realleged and incorporated herein.

11. On or about July 17, 2007, within the District of Alaska, the defendant, KEVIN MCGEE, in his capacity as President of the American Federation of Government Employees Local Union 3028, and authorized by law to make and give a certificate and writing, did knowingly make and deliver as true to the United States Department of Labor, an LM-3 financial disclosure form for the fiscal year 2006, knowing that the form contained a false representation, to wit: MCGEE reported that the Local 3028 had not discovered any loss or shortage of funds when MCGEE knew that he had charged $2,379.37 in travel expenses to the Local 3028 debit card for expenses in 2006 that he also claimed and was personally reimbursed for by other organizations.

All of which is in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 1018.

FROM: President, AFGE Local 3028

SUBJECT: Victim Impact Statement

As the newly appointed president of AFGE Local 3028 in July 2008, I personally requested an audit of our financial records. Although the Department of Labor wasn't able to substantiate the full range of Mr. McGee's wrong doing, I can assure you that the charges before Kevin McGee today do not come close to the money and damages he has reaped over the last several years while in office.

Mr. McGee knows right from wrong and has been very quick to judge others and immediately report them. I have provided an email where he questions the amount of per diem being paid to a union official and states, "If this is approved I will personally bring charges up on all who approve this expense for misuse of union funds. It will either be done right or not at all. This is not a threat this is a promise." Yet Mr. McGee paid himself $100 per day per diem to go to Hawaii in 2007.

Mr. McGee boasts how he reported Hatch Act violations against a supervisor and he is always spouting the CFR and US Code yet he himself does not abide by those very laws. When original charges were dismissed Mr. McGee proudly flaunted this to National representatives and to date has shown no signs of remorse. He has yet to admit to any member what he did and even attended meetings continually questioning and badgering the Executive Board.

Mr. McGee left this organization in a financial mess. It took months to sort through receipts as there was no checking ledger, bank statements were not even opened and Mr. McGee did everything he could to prevent this organization from progressing. This includes constant requests for financial accountings, charges against the Executive Board, protests to the election and the list goes on.

Mr. McGee is nothing more than an opportunistic thief. After an audit by our National Representative charges were pursued on Mr. McGee from AFGE at the District level. Based on the nature of the charges, the President of AFGE suspended Mr. McGee from his union positions on February 2, 2010. Mr. McGee failed to inform VA management therefore he had no union position and performed no VA job. Essentially, he came to work, sat in his private office, had no job and was still paid his regular salary. Several months went by before the VA learned of his suspension and placed him in a job. Mr. McGee continued using his union titles and told people that he had resigned.

Due to Mr. McGee's termination, he is no longer a member of AFGE therefore; we cannot pursue our charges against him. This is a man who has stolen from the very people he was supposed to represent. He used his position to travel first class, stay at 5 star hotels, buy nice suits and live a life he otherwise could not afford. He still has a website listing himself as the AFGE District 11 Fair Practices Coordinator and President of Council 249. It is people like Mr. McGee that give unions a bad name. The extent of Mr. McGee's expenditures will never be repaid however; it is my sincere hope that you will see what kind of a man he is and enforce the most severe penalty possible. It is also my hope that others will see that even the slightest theft will not be tolerated.

Dear Mr. McGee:

Pursuant to my authority under Article IX, Section 5(d) and Article XXIII, Sections 1-3 of the AFGE National Constitution, I hereby suspend you from the office of President of the Eleventh Veterans Affairs District Council (C-249), effective immediately, and serve you with this notice of charges. National Vice President Gerald Swanke has preferred charges against you, for conduct detrimental and inimical to the best interests of the Federation and constituting offenses against the Federation, as set forth in Article XXIII, Section 2.

Specifically, in violation of Section 2(c) (violation of any provision of this Constitution or the constitution and bylaws of the local to which a member belongs), (e) (engaging in conduct unbecoming a union member), (f) (engaging in gross neglect of duty or conduct constituting misfeasance or malfeasance in office as an officer or representative of a local), (h) (committing any act of fraud, embezzlement, mismanagement, or appropriating to one's own use any money, property, or thing of value belonging to the Federation or any affiliate), it is alleged that while you were President of Local 3028, you submitted vouchers to both AFGE National and Local 3028 for expenses relating to travel for training and legislative events.

Further information regarding your trial will be forthcoming. I regret that this action is necessary.

Sincerely and in solidarity,

John Gage

Dear Mr. McGee:

This letter is in response to your email of February 25, 2010, in which you sought to withdraw your resignation as 11th District National Fair Practices Affirmative Action Coordinator.

I regret to inform you that 11th District National Vice President Gerald Swanke has accepted your resignation, and, in reliance thereupon, has begun the process to fill the vacancy in the office of 11th District NFPAAC, as prescribed by the AFGE National Constitution, Appendix A, Part II, Section 5(e). Therefore, it is too late for you to withdraw your resignation.

Kevin McGee
AFGE Eleventh District, NFPAAC
AFGE Council 249 President
Member of AFGE Local 3028

Dear Kevin:

By this letter, I am filing charges against you under Article 23 of the AFGE National Constitution.

As a result of the audit performed on the financial records of AFGE Local 3028 for fiscal years 2005, 2006, and 2007; the following charges are made against AFGE Local 3028 former Local President and current AFGE Local 3028 member Kevin McGee. Kevin McGee was the Local President during the entire period of the audit.
By a separate email and evidence packet sent to President Gage I have recommended the AFGE National President, under the authority granted in Article IX, Section 5(b) of the AFGE National Constitution immediately suspend Kevin McGee from the elected position of President AFGE VA Council 249 for serious misconduct, incompetence, negligence and violations of AFGE Constitution Article XXIII, Section 2 (c), (e), (f), (g), (h), (i), and (j). All of these charges are alleged as follows:

1) Kevin McGee committed violations of Article XXIII, Section 2(c), (e), (f), (g), and (h) when he defrauded AFGE and/or AFGE Local 3028 and committed acts of embezzlement, including but not limited to the following specifications:

a. submitted a voucher to AFGE Local 3028 and accepted a check (#1837 July 22, 2005) for per diem, hotel, and ground transportation, and used the AFGE Local 3028 Debit card to: pay Wyndham Hotel deposit; and pay for parking at Anchorage airport while attending the AFGE Human Rights Training Conference in Miami Beach, July 30 - August 6, 2005. On August 10, 2005 McGee submitted a (fraudulent) voucher to AFGE for the same expenses for attendance as the elected AFGE D11 NFPAAC. The acceptance of the payment from AFGE, and failure to inform and repay Local 3028 resulted in a double payment (embezzlement) to McGee of $1,459.80. (DOL)

b. used the AFGE Local 3028 Debit card on February 18, 2006 to purchase airfare ($588) to attend AFGE D11 Training; on April 5, 2006 when he submitted a voucher to the local and accepted a check (#1888) for per diem($368.50) while in attendance at same, and on April 15 when he paid for room and meals at the Hilton Hotel ($721.43, including meals of $62.03) using the AFGE Local 3028 Debit card. On April 18, 2006 McGee submitted a (fraudulent) voucher to AFGE for the same expenses for attendance at the AFGE D11 Training as the elected AFGE D11 NFPAAC. The acceptance of the payment from AFGE, and failure to inform and repay Local 3028 resulted in a double payment (embezzlement) to McGee of $1,677.93 (DOL)

c. when he used the AFGE Local 3028 Debit card to pay expenses on May 12, 2006 (Towncar $80); May 13, 2006 (Parking $55); and May 15, 2006 (Hilton $346.64) and submitted a request for and received an advance from AFGE for the same expenses as the elected AFGE D11 NFPAAC, on May 9, 2006. This resulted in an overpayment (embezzlement) to McGee in the amount of $481.64 (DOL)

d. used the AFGE Local 3028 Debit card on May 10, 2006 to pay expenses at Staybridge Suites in Portland, OR while on Annual Leave and en route to a mediation as the elected AFGE D11 NFPAAC. This resulted in an embezzlement of AFGE Local 3028 funds in the amount of $219.80.

e. submitted a voucher to and accepted payment from AFGE Local 3028 (check #1990 2/6/2007) claiming per diem for January 31, February 1, and February 2, 2007 for attendance at the Alaska AFL-CIO Legislative Conference in Juneau, Alaska after he had used the AFGE Local 3028 Debit card to pay for the same expenses, resulting in an overpayment (double payment/embezzlement) to Kevin McGee of $91.74. (DOL)

f. used the AFGE Local 3028 Debit card on 4/6/2007 and failed to provide a receipt to the Local for the transaction. The total misappropriated funds of AFGE Local 3028 are $83.72.

g. used the AFGE Local 3028 Debit card on 11/17/2007 to pay for a rental car from Budget Rent-A-Car while attending the NVAC Convention in Hawaii. Prior to traveling to Hawaii McGee submitted a voucher on 11/5/2007 to AFGE Local 3028 for an advance specifying 'Cab to Hotel + Rental Car in lieu of airfare' and received payment of $446.00 for the specified item on AFGE Local 3028 Check #2095 ($1226.50). This resulted in an overpayment (double payment/embezzlement) to Kevin McGee of $391.78. This was the amount both charged to the debit card AND submitted as an expense.

h. requested, authorized and received a check (#1868 1/20/2006) for 'Per Diem – Juneau Trip' in the amount of $250, not authorized by the membership, the per diem includes an overpayment (double payment/embezzlement) to McGee of $25 for meals also charged at the Goldbelt Hotel. This was the amount both charged to the debit card AND submitted as an expense.

i. used the AFGE Local 3028 Debit card to pay personal expenses at Anchorage Chrysler Dodge on February 20, 2006 in the amount of $16.

2) Kevin McGee committed violations of Article XXIII, Section 2(c), (e), (f), (g), and (h) when he engaged in gross neglect of duty constituting misfeasance or malfeasance as an officer of Local 3028 (Local President) committing acts of mismanagement by expending Local funds not authorized by the membership approved budget and/or without Executive Board approval and/or without specific membership approval wben, including but not limited to the following specifications, he:

a. requested and received a check to place an advertisement in the Louisville Chapter of the Asa Phillip Randolph Institute, there was no budget authorization for this expenditure and the expense was not reported to the membership at the next General Membership Meeting following placement of the advertisement. Total misappropriation of AFGE Local 3028 funds are $150.00.

b. requested, executed, and received a check (#1969 1/5/2007) for $250 for payment to KUDO Radio for Veteran's Day advertising (Nov. 10,11, and 12, 2006). The membership did not authorize this expenditure, the 2006 budget had a specific line item for "Public Relations" and the membership made no allocation for the purpose, and the expenses were not reported to the membership at the next General Membership Meeting following the placement of the add, or the payment therefor. Total misappropriation of AFGE Local 3028 funds are $250.00.

c. purchased air transportation from Alaska Airlines on 1/5/2007 using the Local 3028 Debit card in the amount of $324.80 for passage to Juneau, Alaska to attend the Alaska AFL-CIO Legislative Conference; requested and authorized payment of $150 for registration at the Alaska State AFL-CIO 2007 Legislative Conference (check #1986 1/29/2007); purchased hotel room and meals for himself at the Westmark Baranof Hotel with the Local 3028 Debit card in the amount of $497.80 (transaction date 2/4/2007); submitted a voucher after returning from the conference to AFGE Local 3028 for 'Travel Per Diem' and received a check (#1990 2/6/2007) for expenses for attending the Alaska State AFL-CIO 2007 Legislative Conference in the amount of $269. The membership did not authorize attendance at this conference, there was no budget authorization for this conference, and the expenses were not reported to the membership at the next General Membership Meeting following this conference. Total misappropriation of AFGE Local 3028 funds are $1149.86 (less the $91.74 identified as double payment in charge #1a.).

d. used the AFGE Local 3028 Debit card on January 4, 2007 to purchase airfare for roundtrip transportation from Anchorage, AK to Houston, TX to attend a Martin Luther King, Jr. Holiday Observance as the AFGE 11th District NFPAAC (See also AFGE Check #235612, issued 1/4/2007). The membership did not authorize attendance at this conference, there was no budget authorization for this conference, and the expenses were not reported to the membership at the next General Membership Meeting following this conference. Total misappropriation of AFGE Local 3028 funds are $682.60.

e. submitted vouchers to AFGE Local 3028 on February 20, 2007 and March 5, 2007, accepted checks #2000, and 2001 for expenses for the period of 2/23-3/3/2007 for attendance at the AFGE Legislative Conference. The voucher period exceeds the dates of the Legislative Conference and the local membership did not authorize additional time beyond the Legislative Conference, there was no budget authorization for attendance at the AFGE NEC meeting following the Legislative Conference, and the additional expenses were not reported to the membership at the next General Membership Meeting following this conference. Total misappropriation of AFGE Local 3028 funds are $150 in per diem.

f. used the AFGE Local 3028 Debit card on two occasions on December 19, 2007 to purchase groceries for a holiday party in the total amount of $302.17. This was directly in violation of an appropriate motion passed at the November General Membership Meeting removing the budget authorization of $2000.00 for a Holiday Party, voting for "No Holiday Party". In addition to the use of the Debit card, McGee also authorized a check of reimbursement to Elexandria Carr for 'party supplies' in the amount of $401.87. The total misappropriation of AFGE Local 3028 funds are $704.04.

g. used the AFGE Local 3028 Debit card on December 21, 2007 to purchase 'Logoed pocket calendars'. There was no budget authorization for such purchase, and the expenses were not reported to the membership at the next General Membership Meeting following the purchase. The total misappropriation of AFGE Local 3028 funds are $461.35

h. requested and authorized checks (#2104 and 2105 12/31/2007) to pre-register himself for the 2008 AFGE Legislative Conference without budget or membership authorization and the expenses were not reported at the next General Membership Meeting following the expenditures. The total misappropriation of AFGE Local 3028 funds are $350.00.

i. requested and authorized a check (#2106 12/31/2007) for registration at the 2008 Alaska AFL-CIO Legislative Conference without budget or membership authorization and the expenses were not reported at the next General Membership Meeting following the expenditures. Tbe total misappropriation of AFGE Local 3028 funds are $175.

j. failed repeatedly to seek membership anthorization for funds when no budget authorization existed. This gross misconduct, whether through incompetence or negligence resulted in misappropriation of AFGE Local 3028 funds in 2007 of $3144.22.

k. used the AFGE Local 3028 Debit card to pay expenses related to his travel to, attendance, and lodging at the Alaska AFL-CIO 2006 Legislative Conference. The four (4) purchases were to: 1) Alaska Airlines for roundtrip airfare between Anchorage and Juneau ($463.10 1/4/2006); 2) Goldbelt Hotel for room and meal ($399.84 +$25 1/26/2006); 3) Anchorage Airport Parking ($44 1/26/2006); 4) Prospector Hotel (unidentified purchase $106.40 1/25/2006); authorized and received a cbeck (#1868 1/20/2006) for 'Per Diem – Juneau Trip' in the amount of $250. The membership approved 2006 budget contained a specific line item for the AFL-CIO Convention/Conference which received no allocation. McGee did not seek, and did not receive membership authority for these charges, and the expenses were not reported at the General Membership Meeting following the expenditures. The total misappropriation of AFGE Local 3028 funds are $1288.34.

l. requested and received a check (#1961 10/26/2006) for materials (membership recognition) with no budget authorization and no membership authorization. McGee did not seek membership authorization, nor were the expenses reported at the next General Membership Meeting. This resulted in the misappropriation of AFGE Local 3028 funds in the amount of $385.00.

m. either directly purchased or authorized to be purchased 'lunches' for General Membership Meetings in 2006. General Membership Meeting Lunches is a specific line item in the 2006 budget, however it did not receive any allocation by the membership. In spite of this McGee purchased or authorized the purchase of lunches resulting in a misappropriation of AFGE Local 3028 funds in the amount of $1116.62.

3) Kevin McGee committed violations of Article XXIII, Sections (c), (e), (f), and (g) wben he engaged in gross neglect of duty constituting misfeasance or malfeasance as an officer of Local 3028 (Local President) committing acts of mismanagement whether by incompetence or negligence in the performance of his official duties by expending Local funds exceeding the amount authorized by the membership approved budget and/or without Executive Board approval and/or without specific membership approval when, including but not limited to the following specifications, he:

a. issued Check #1979 on 1/5/2007 to Lynn Prossick in the amount of $80 for membership recruitment, which caused the membership approved budget to be in a deficit of $20. All subsequent payments were unauthorized. McGee sought no additional authorization for this line item, and the expenses were not reported to the membership at the next General Membership Meeting following the payment. This resulted in a total misappropriation of AFGE Local 3028 funds in the amount of $2230.25

b. requested and received Check #1980 on 1/5/2007 in the amount of $360.00 for membership recruitment, when the budget line item was already exhausted. McGee sought no additional authorization for this line item, and the expenses were not reported to the membership at the next General Membership Meeting following the payment.

c. used the AFGE Local 3028 Debit card on March 28, 2007 to purchase airline transportation for himself, the Local Vice-President, and the Local Chief Steward to attend the District 11 VA Council annual business meeting; when he requested, received and authorized a check for registration (#2012 3/29/2007); used the AFGE Local 3028 Debit card on May 4, 2007 to charge rooms at the Doubletree Hotel in Seattle. These authorizations were not approved by the membership; McGee solicited the approval of the Local Executive Board on March 26, 2007; however the expenses exceeded the $500 limitation for Executive Board approval. The Local Budget authorization for Travel had already been exceeded. McGee neither sought, nor received approval from the membership, and there was no report at the following General Membership Meeting of the expenditures. Total misappropriation of AFGE Local 3028 funds are $1104.90 in airfare, $2765.66 in hotel and $270.00 in registration fees ($4140.56).

d. requested and received a check (#2003 3/14/2007) for reimbursement of purchase of 'office supplies'. The amount exceeded the membership authorized budget by $32.07. All subsequent purchases of office supplies were similarly without authorization or approval. McGee neither sought, nor received authorization to increase the budget line item, or authorization for individual purchases. The total misappropriation of AFGE Local 3028 funds are $569.79.

e. Submitted a voucher to AFGE Local 3028 on April 18, 2007 and received a check (#2015 4/26/2007) for 'travel advance' to attend the AFGE 11th District Regional Training Conference. With the issuance of check #2015, the membership authorized budget for 'per diem' was exceeded by $182.00. McGee neither sought additional appropriation to the budget line item, nor received approval from the membership, and there was no report at the following General Membership Meeting of the expenditures. Total misappropriation of AFGE Local 3028 funds are $182.00.

f. failed repeatedly to follow the membership authorized budget guidelines and failed to seek membership authorization for additional funds when budget category allocations were exhausted. This gross misconduct, whether through incompetence, negligence resulted in budget overruns and misappropriation of AFGE Local 3028 funds in 2007 of $11,000.24.

g. used the AFGE Local 3028 Debit card to purchase 'office supplies' on February 18, 2006 in the amount of $77.25 resulting in an exhaustion of the membership approved budget authorization and an over budget amount of $50.23. McGee did not seek approval for the over budget expenditure, and did not seek additional membership authorization for the budget category, resulting in an unauthorized expenditure of $379.58 for FY 2006.

h. accepted a check (#1914 9/7/2006) for $210 for membership recruitment which exhausted the budget allocation, resulting in a budget shortfall of $102. McGee did not seek additional funding authorization from the membership and the spending above the budget amount was not reported to the membership at the General Membership Meetings following the expenditures. All subsequent checks issued for membership recruitment were issued without budget authority. This resulted in a misappropriation of AFGE Local 3028 funds in the amount of $1604.

i. failed to request additional authorization for Lunch and Learn events following the exhaustion of the budget authorization on July 6, 2006. This resulted in the misappropriation of AFGE Local 3028 funds in the amount of $1303.38.

4) Kevin McGee committed a violation of Article XXIII, Sections (f) and (g) when he engaged in gross neglect of duty constituting misfeasance or malfeasance whether through incompetence or negligence in the performance of his official duties when, including but not limited to the following specifications, he.

a. failed to assure the AFGE Local 3028 IRS reports for tax year 2005 were timely submitted. This resulted in a penalty to the Local of $320.00 (Check #2005 3/16/2007).

b. failed to seek repayment to AFGE Local 3028 for airline ticket reimbursement paid to local delegate Victor Arnold (check #2056 7/16/2007) to attend the NVAC Convention, after Mr. Arnold left Local 3028 and subsequently did not attend the NVAC Convention. This resulted in a loss of AFGE Local 3028 funds in the amount of $1447.

Environment of Fear

- The Adjutant General (TAG), MG Thomas Katkus, has established a reign of fear throughout the Alaska National Guard
- Four women known to me and some others have been sexually assaulted and/or raped within this past year
  - None of these women will come forward due to mistrust and fear of reprisal
  - Three have agreed to write anonymous statements about their assaults
  - The culture of fear is so predominate throughout the entire organization that persons of influence and power have retreated in the shadows and feel helpless to assist these women
  - Some are finding other vehicles to get the message out; secret meetings, media, etc.
- TAG has instituted much of this fear through elevating one man, COL Timothy DeHaas
  - COL DeHaas is TAG's closest confidant and the multitude of other highly experienced officers and NCOs are largely ignored
  - COL DeHaas is given to fits of rage to kowtow subordinates and (as mentioned above) forced most, if not all of the Army staff and now some of the Air Guard staff to retreat into the shadows
  - Original and creative thinking is not encouraged
  - Many problems are staffed by a large group who put in lots of time and effort, yet it all means nothing when the "real" decisions are made behind closed doors between TAG and COL DeHaas
  - Teamwork is not encouraged, but being a "team player" (meaning to do exactly as the 2 bosses say) is encouraged under veiled threats
  - Morale is very, very poor among the full time soldiers and both the full time and part time senior staff and commanders and the negative feelings are being felt throughout the organization
  - People are just putting in the hours and going home as soon as they can
  - It is widely known that COL DeHaas is TAG's pick to be the next Army Guard commander to replace BG Randy Banez – the Army side will effectively be led by a bully
  - We follow because we have to, not because we want to

Culture of Corruption

- BOI/PR (picked by TAG and COL DeHaas) to be announced
  - BOI/PR, is a man who is militarily fairly competent, yet morally bankrupt
  - A few years ago he picked up a young woman at a bar and had a one night stand with her and got her pregnant
  - As it turned out (and he knew this), she was the wife of one of our deployed enlisted soldiers
  - TAG at that time, LTG Campbell, put out the word that BOI/PR is not to be promoted

- Now he will not only be promoted, but given a senior command over troops (all our soldiers know what he did)
- This is just one example among a plethora of problems that contribute to our culture of corruption (and our soldiers are following the example thinking they can get away with this type of behavior too)
- Women see this and wonder if they can effectively finish their careers while looking over their shoulder

- COL Don Wenke the 168th Commander
  - Last winter I reported a problem to Brig. Gen. Debora McManus, commander of the Air Guard, with one of our long time Air Guard Chaplains who was serving in COL Wenke's command
  - The chaplain had an ongoing alcohol problem (on and off the wagon) and a history of making inappropriate advances and in a few cases unwanted touching toward female service members in the Air National Guard
  - Knowledge of his transgressions was known throughout the 176th Wing and even Service Members outside of our state
  - I was surprised to discover that Brig. Gen. McManus was not aware of the problem
  - Brig. Gen. McManus talked with COL Wenke about the chaplain (the chaplain had transferred to BOI/PR and was not only doing drill weekends, but also serving full time at BOI/PR)
  - COL Wenke called me and exploded in rage telling me that I should be investigated for breaking confidences (which I had not) and at the same time, conversely, for not telling him and putting the women in his command in danger
    - He also exploded in rage to an Air Guard chaplain who has many times described him as a "bully"
  - I notified TAG (Katkus) of these events and he wanted to be kept in the loop and for us to move that chaplain to retirement, which over time we did – but his retirement would not be effective for about four months
  - In the meantime, COL Wenke, unbeknownst to me and others, rehired this chaplain to cover BOI/PR until his retirement
  - TAG recently told me that he is so impressed with COL Wenke he wants to transfer him to the 176th, promote him to Brig. Gen., and (I'm speculating here) eventually place him in the role of Air Guard commander someday, which means that each branch will be led by a bully type personality
  - Placing this man with that careless history in a position of authority will once again demonstrate our organization's lack of sensitivity toward the treatment of women
- Recruiting and Retention (R&R)
  - Three of the four sexual assaults mentioned earlier occurred in our R&R
  - Outside law enforcement is investigating R&R personnel for drug dealing
  - Our newest recruits, in my opinion, are at constant risk between the assaults and the drugs

- I have counseled one soldier whose marriage was ruined by personnel in R&R and their actions were swept under the rug
- I have recently counseled a second soldier who works in R&R and who has suffered a hard divorce and in the process of our discussion he recounted the problems with sexual improprieties, drugs, corruption, etc. within their organization

- Air craft accidents
  - There have been three class A aircraft accidents under TAG and COL DeHass' watch in the past 18 months
  - An expert in aviation has supplied me and will soon supply the Governor's office with information that connects those accidents with the culture of corruption created by TAG and DeHaas
- Investigations
  - Though he knows some of this, the DA Inspector General (IG) is investigating [redacted] [BOI/PR] on multiple charges to include
    - Misappropriation of funds
    - Illegal use of military aircraft (two incidences)
    - There are more...

Overview

- The culture of fear and corruption are smothering morale in our organization
- Officers and NCOs feel helpless to right wrongs and move our organization forward in a positive light
- Service Members with low moral standards see that certain behaviors are not disciplined and feel free to assault our women, abuse alcohol and drugs and get away with it
  - I see more and more victims of these behaviors every week and throughout the entire Guard
  - TAG has joked with me that soldiers will be soldiers as if to imply "let them have their fun"
- Many officers, including myself, have tried in the past to point out all the above deficiencies in our organization only to be put down
  - Many of us have been verbally abused by COL DeHaas as being considered "trouble makers" and not "team players"
  - We can no longer turn a blind eye and seek authoritative help before more happens
- This does not have to be investigated – take my word for it, or not, it is happening
  - We don't trust the State Troopers – COL ~~Malone~~(?) called up TAG recently to tip him off to another officer's complaint Holloway
- TAG tells us he likes to keep us "off balance"
  - We are out of balance
  - Fewer and fewer care
- We are a train wreck happening

Subject: FEEDBACK NEEDED letter to Guard members

Cindy and Sharon,

Got confirmation from Gen Bridges today that we cannot get a roster or conventional mail addresses for Guard members. This is a federal regulation and there apparently is not wiggle room. Army Guard has a drill this weekend, and leadership can hand distribute the letter to all members present if we can get letters to them on Thursday. Next Air Guard drill is 2 weeks out (Nov 1-2), and they could do the same there.

Also got confirmation that all Guard members have email address, though there is no guarantee they can check them regularly.

I recommend we do 3 versions – one addressed to Dear Air Guard Member, one to Dear Army Guard Member, and one to Dear DMVA employee (although we can get this info and personalize in house if you want.). Have Color Art Print them tomorrow in the correct numbers, without folding and stuffing, and get them to DMVA with a stack of our envelopes. They can also send advance email copy before they get the paper copies to them. Gen Bridges assured me they could deliver them all by email quickly. The delay and uncertainty that will be associated with asking folks at DMVA to personalize paper letters is not worth it, in my opinion. Tara should now have enough letterhead on hand for the print house.

In addition to whatever edit you were waiting to finalize, I suggest we consider [redacted]

Ms. Leighow,

The information was provided to Gov. Parnell via a conference call on the morning of Nov. 18, 2010. Those participating in the call and providing the information to the Gov. were Chaplain (Major) Matt Friese, Chaplain (Major) Ted McGovern, and Lt. Col. Rick Koch, the state command chaplain.

To whom it may concern, 14 Oct 2010

My first incident occurred somewhere around 2006 just before BOI / PR I had just returned from the BOI / PR . A soldier that has been in BOI / PR section had just returned from BOI / PR . I had known her for some time so we were talking and she mentioned she had not seen me the week before when she returned. I mentioned I had been in the BOI / PR and she immediately said that she needed to talk to me. I was shocked at the time that she even knew what a BOI / PR BOI / PR At this time no one knew anything about BOI / PR She stated at that time she needed to talk to me. An incident had occurred at another post while she was at school, and she had gotten help from a SARC. That worked well, but she had been BOI / PR . BOI / PR went ballistic that no one would tell him why she had been BOI / PR , he demanded that someone tell him. Her commander at the BOI / PR told BOI / PR that since she was working with a SARC that he could only guess what had happened. BOI / PR had soon told several people in the BOI / PR that something had happened to her. (I found this out through a friend that worked there, BOI / PR .) This is one of the reasons she wanted to talk to me. The other was much more important to her. The main reason she was upset is that the only person she did not want to know was her father. Her father was hounding her about why she was BOI / PR He was upset because she always had good grades in school, and never did anything wrong, so why was she being BOI / PR ?

Before she was able to return to AK, her father had found out. Constant hounding by her father was about all she could handle. Upon returning to AK and speaking to her father she was told how he found out. BOI / PR has groups of friends over on a regular basis to play Poker. During one of these Poker games BOI / PR tells a man by the name of BOI / PR what happened to this woman. BOI / PR works for the BOI... with her father. Soon after the Poker game BOI / PR tells her father what happened. This was the one person she did not want to know.

As per her request I brought this issue up to my SARC chain at the time witch was supposed to be Brigadier General Christianson. BG Christianson was out of town at the time so my next higher was Major General Craig Campbell. MG Campbell handled the situation very well and had some discussion with BG Christianson, and BOI / PR . Soon after BOI / PR called me in front of him and the words out of his mouth was " BOI / PR , who the Fuck do you think you are?" I told him at the time I was not a liberty to discuss the situation with him. This continued and I reported it to the Generals. Since then BOI / PR will not look at me walking down a hallway. On a few occasions will not shake my hand going to or returning from a Deployment. Even though he has stopped direct harassment, I have constantly had to watch my back around the people who are loyal to him. BOI / PR these are just a few) You can verify most of this by talking to LT Governor Craig Campbell, who I initially went to with this issue. This woman left the National Guard a week later because everyone knew something happened to her. After this, BOI / PR was going around the BOI / PR saying that he was not going to send anymore women to BOI / PR .

10-15-10 04:23pm From-Office of the Governor - Anchorage T-520 P 01/03 F-608

because they never come back. Recently I overheard BOI / PR badmouthing this woman and saying that she was BOI / PR Every word out of his mouth was something that B... BOI / PR was spreading about her before she left.

Next issue happened in early 07 when a woman was supposedly raped according to rumors spread around the BOI / PR by BOI / PR. This woman was in the process of going to BOI / ... at the time. (Also at this time BOI / PR told her that a woman's place in today's society was to stay at home and take care of the children.) The woman went to SFC Julie Small for help. SFC Small took the victim to the BOI / PR . This was BOI / PR , BOI / PR . The BOI / PR was located in BOI / PR at the time. As soon as the women left the BOI / PR office BOI / PR pressed the BOI / ... to give the names to him. The BOI / ... folded and gave the names to the B... . Soon it was common knowledge what had happened to her. BOI / PR began attacking the woman's credibility and destroying her reputation. She deployed and her BOI / PR Upon her return BOI / PR would not send her to BOI / ... . She soon B... . This can be verified by SFC Small. This was all swept under the carpet.

In Aug of 2009 learned of a Blackhawk flight out of Juneau that took 4 people on a Bear Hunting Trip. I went up my chain of command that were not involved, and that I thought I could trust. I then was advised to go to Army CID. They wanted nothing to do with the National Guard, so I went to the Alaska State Troopers. They found when, where, and what happened on that hunting trip, but were quickly shut down. Bill Connors was one of the main investigators and he was moved somewhere to the Bush, and I have never heard from him again. A new investigator was assigned and to my knowledge nothing has happened. The individuals that were dropped off at their hunting camp were, BOI / PR B... BOI / ... BOI /... , and BOI / PR BOI / PR , and an unidentified person who is believed to be BOI / PR 's Father. A little history BOI / PR BOI /... has a BOI / PR BOI / PR (there was a CID investigation) BOI / PR called them and tipped them off and it was believed that he received an AK-47 for doing so. LTC Seine was present when BOI / PR called BOI... BOI /... to tip him off, but was never questioned about it. BOI ... BOI / PR was the second person suspected of transporting the illegal weapons. Recently I have heard rumors that as many as 14 AK-47's made it back to AK. I have personally heard BOI / PR make comments about how they got them back, and where one was.

This investigation into hunting with the assistance of a UH-60 Blackhawk halted with no results. Since then they have found out I had something to do with it. How did they know? I have also been made aware that they have had people telling them my every move, and this was confirmed when I caught some one go straight from my office to theirs. BOI / PR has also driven by me and used his hand like a pistol pretending to shoot me. I believe this investigation was taken straight from the Troopers directly back to General Katkus and BOI / PR . Every move of mine has been monitored since.

Years ago I dealt with a soldier who beat up a female soldier in Fort Eustis VA. I have been told of him beating up another woman in late 05 or early 06. About a year ago he was an instructor in the Regional Training Institute, where he got into a fist fight with one of his students. He was kicked out of the Regional Training Institute, and should have been kicked out of the guard. If this would have been me, I would have been kicked out. This soldier became BOI / PR 's BOI / PR I can name over ten people who fall into this category. They get bailed out by BOI / PR , then they owe him. Some have been caught forging documents and signatures for full time employment. BOI / PR was caught forging LTC Streffs signature for his full time employment. BOI / PR kicked him out of that position. That soldier should have been kicked out of the guard. Thanks to BOI / PR he is employed full time now. He is one of many people in the same boat. BOI / PR bails you out, and now you owe him. If not, you are thrown to the wolves and you career is done.

There are many issues just like this; I hope that someone takes some interest into what is happening here. Carriers in the past few years have been ruined by these people, and I believe I am now being targeted, and set up. I have seen it happen before. I have seen people sneeze and then made to retire, and I have seen people get arrested for soliciting a prostitute and get a nice cushy job.

I could not get much time to write this, but I hope this sparks your interest. There are many more details that need to be addressed. There are many more people involved that what I just listed.

Thank you

MEMORANDUM FOR RECORD

15 October 2010

SUBJECT: Illegal Activities in the Alaska Army National Guard

My name and rank is Lieutenant Colonel Kenneth T. Blaylock. I am a member of the Alaska Army National Guard.

In the April/May timeframe of 2010 I contacted Anchorage Police Department to report Sexual Assaults. On 4 June the police officer I spoke with, Seth McMillan, was ordered by his supervisor, Lieutenant Tony Henry, to stop all activities relating to myself and to not speak with me anymore. At the same time I was ordered by General Thomas Katkus, my Adjutant General, and Colonel Timothy DeHaas, my Chief of Staff, to not discuss the issue and to pursue it no further. The victims never got the chance to be interviewed or to report the assaults themselves to the police.

Several women that came to me said they tried going through the chain of command but were re-victimized by doing so. General Katkus and Colonel DeHaas were both named as part of the problem. I had COL DeHaas tell me in front of another person that I was to not take any knowledge of criminal activity to law enforcement in the future, but rather to always bring it to him and let him decide what to do with it. This was in regards primarily to Sexual assault complaints and secondarily to reports of illegal Drug use.

In 2008, when I tried to arrange for victims of reprisal and sexual assault to speak directly with then Major General Craig Campbell, MG Campbell told Katkus and DeHaas that I could give him the names and he would contact them himself. COL DeHaas then put out to senior personnel, including one of the victims, that it would be insubordination for them to go forward without going through DeHaas and telling him the information first. The victim never told Campbell the information because she was afraid, as were other personnel wishing to report illegal activity from senior personnel.

I had been illegally removed from my command position as the Recruiting and retention commander when false information was given to National Guard Bureau that I wanted to be removed. I fought the action legally and received reprisal. In hindsight I realize as the R&R commander I had been interfering with illegal activities from R&R personnel and had to be removed.

Then Brigadier General Katkus directed that I was to be held responsible for missing weapons from a vault I had been responsible for two and a half years prior. I had completed a close-out inventory with our property book officer, accounting for all weapons, turned the vault over to my supervisor; mobilized and deployed to Iraq; and returned and been assigned elsewhere. Over the several years since I had been responsible for the weapons, at least 12 personnel had access to the vault, weapons, and hand receipts. However 4 separate officers investigated me, all finding me without fault. Criminal Investigations Division (CID) on Fort Richardson was given my name by Katkus to investigate. They also found me without fault but asked if I could identify weapons from photos from a recent case. I identified Sniper Rifles that were ours from their camouflage pattern. The weapons and a room full of stolen military property were found at [BOI] when he was arrested for child pornography and sexual assault. [BOI] was a friend of Katkus from [BOI/PR] Katkus was trying to have me held responsible for military property stolen by his friend. Katkus has directed that equipment security be compromised then to have subordinate personnel held responsible.

I received a General letter of Reprimand because I dared to take reports of criminal activity to the police. Along with the sexual assaults I told BOI/PR about a soldier that had come to me from R&R saying he wanted out of what he was involved in. He also let me know it was Katkus that had given them a heads up to get rid of evidence regarding Drug dealings from R&R. I later was told BOI/PR took part in giving Katkus the heads up on his people being investigated. For this I was reprimanded and BOI/PR was also reprimanded. BOI/PR. Several victims said their attackers were from R&R.

In October 2010 a Female Private has come forward and made a statement to our Inspector General confirming her own Rape, Drug Trafficking, and named several R&R personnel; including the one that originally came to me wanting out. No one has come back to me to further enquire on the original report I made.

BOI/PR BOI/PR His unit has been removed from its' position as a subordinate unit of the 38th Troop Command, by Katkus, and placed directly under him. No other unit in the state has this distinction. When it was discovered I had gone to the police, I was told by BOI/PR that "we're going to take care of you." In the following weeks my home began to be vandalized:

- Broken front upstairs window
- Broken back upstairs window.
- Missing cat.
- Broken parts on travel trailer.
- Garden hose removed from one area, placed in another area, then turned on full till we found it had flooded a part of our yard and created a 3 foot deep and 5 foot wide sinkhole.
- My neighbor catching a man who "looked military" peeking into a downstairs window, and literally chasing him out of our yard running.
- When my wife and I went on emergency leave to be with her mother as she passed away, our horses were let loose. The neighbors who helped animal control catch and return them to the yard told us that the chain/latch on the gate wasn't just left open but was completely taken apart and left on the ground.
- And our son called us long distance to let us know when he came home from work someone had been inside the house, opening doors, and had unscrewed a water outlet in a bathroom allowing it to drain an inch of water on the floor. I found that the window the strange man had been looking in had apparently been pried open.

BOI/PR

A little over a year ago I was the Operations Officer for our Regional Training Institute, and the senior full time person at the schoolhouse. We run a class which is a prerequisite to Officer Candidate School. At the conclusion of one of our classes my subordinates contacted me complaining they were being directed to Falsify Documents for a soldier to attend Officer Candidate School. I soon found myself being intimidated and directed to produce false documents on this soldier myself. The soldier in question never attended the Pre-OCS but we were to create documents, and sign them, saying he had. BOI/PR said he had given this soldier all the training he needed. This soldier was a senior member BOI/PR. After myself and all other RTI personnel refused to create and sign false documents for this soldier to attend OCS, BOI/PR approved them himself. This soldier is now a commissioned officer in the United States military.

I presented this information to the FBI. Our discussion turned toward Anti-Terrorism subjects and I was asked if I could acquire any information on that subject. A person I was talking to about the subject gave me 2 receipts from R&R Credit Cards paid out to Jordan and Hungary. He said he was scared at what he was seeing. The receipts are from a Fraud Alert but he said trying to get them investigated by anyone was not happening.

I point this out to show a pattern:

- Narcotics
- Sexual assault
- Planting personnel into the organization
- Religious extremism
- Funds to Foreign locations
- Cult-Like Atmosphere
- Cover-Ups

Every disaster has a series of mistakes leading up to it. Afterwards the Warning Signs seem obvious. In the packet of an investigation that lead to my reprimand; one sworn statement by the soldier named by the assaulted private and the one who originally came to me wanting out, says: BOI/PR is the most squared away hard nose commander this command has ever gotten." And the investigating officer in his concluding paragraph says: "If civilian law enforcement is involved with activities inside the AKNG without the knowledge of the AKNG chain of command, this must be challenged".

These are from an investigation on me, involving sexual assault; narcotics; and police investigations. But they demonstrate the cult-like atmosphere of answers and statements which are completely inappropriate in these documents.

The "party-line" comments are re-enforced and understood more clearly when you understand that Katkus has made no secret that he monitors meeting rooms and conversations. Even though the door is closed, the monitoring system can be turned out without anyone in the room being aware of it. Those that don't realize it will think they are brainstorming or speaking freely, only to find they have displeased the general in some way and are removed or receive reprisal without realizing it. Those aware of the possible monitoring will know to speak only what they believe the general wants them to say. Others in the room will hear comments and be swayed in a direction they may think is coming from an honest dialogue, and their perception of reality will be strongly influenced.

Myself and others have also noted there are 2 particular soldiers that seem to be literally following us. I have actually tried an experiment of walking from one end of the National Guard Armory to the other, and find that the same soldier will pass me 3 or more times. If I have a visitor to my office I will regularly see one of these two pass my door looking in. The same vehicles seem to show up even when I take different routes. When another soldier and I set up an after-hours meeting in Anchorage with Katie TePas to report the contents of this document, one of the soldiers in question showed up in the immediate vicinity. Both of the soldiers following us answer to [BOI/PR].

There is much more than this and other personnel with their own similar stories.
My name has been spoken of as a trouble-maker and always causing problems. I have been reprimanded both verbally and in writing. When this has happened it has always been because I was following Law and Regulations. I will speak freely with any investigator on any subject and have nothing to hide.

Whatever anyone may think of me I ask that the following be investigated:
I, as a commissioned officer in the United States military, reported to Anchorage Police Department sexual assaults and attempted to coordinate meetings between APD and the victims. The police officer I spoke to was ordered to stop all communications with me and involvement with anything I brought to him. I was ordered to stop all activities as well. The police and senior officers in the room never showed any interest in continuing to coordinate any support for the victims or interest in the reported crimes. They repeatedly directed me to reveal the names of the victims to them. I was reprimanded for my efforts to refer sexual assault victims to local law enforcement.
The persons responsible for this are Major General Thomas Katkus (AKNG), [BOI/PR] (AKARNG), and [BOI/PR] (APD).

I am sending this out to many who have seen or know of wrongful doings in the Alaska National Guard. This is a suggestion only and not meant to coerce anyone. Also sending to AK citizens who may have an interest in doing the right thing. If you're up to it, please add your name instead of sending anonymously. Thank you. Just cut and paste into a document, print, and mail to our Governor.

Dear Governor Parnell,

As a constituent, I respectfully ask you to accept the resignation of Major General Thomas H. Katkus from his position as Commissioner, Department of Military and Veterans Affairs. During his tenure, multiple acts of moral turpitude have run rampant throughout the Alaska Army National Guard. Drug trafficking, sexual assaults/rape, illegal use of aircraft, importation of illegal weapons and theft/sale of government equipment are a few examples of what is being hidden within the organization. Incidents are swept under the carpet and ignored by the general and his top staff. Members of the AKARNG who have seen or know about wrongful acts are intimidated and fearful of reprisal for reporting the truth. I would urge that you commission an investigative committee to look into General Katkus, his actions, and what goes on within the organization. I would also ask you to conduct an audit into financial expenditures as well. An outside investigation would bring out many of the hidden facts and truths General Katkus is not a leader fit to sit at the head of the Alaska National Guard. He leads by intimidation and coercion rather than by law and regulation.

I do respectfully ask you to NOT accept the resignation of General Julio Banez. General Banez is an officer with character and moral purpose. It is my understanding that General Katkus is forcing General Banez into retirement in order to allow one of his camp followers to be promoted to Brigadier General.

I am submitting this request anonymously out of fear for reprisal or retribution against myself or my family. Thank you for your consideration of my request.

Sincerely,

not a leader. We have soldiers who have COLOR's and are allowed to stay (do an extension) cause they have info on staff personnel. Even APD officers have told me you poor bastard you've got Katkus as leader. So sad.

Well this could be rather interesting. Could the camp follower to be promoted to BG last name start with a "D"? General Banez should not be retiring, he's a great leader and officer. I guess a lot happened after they forced me to retire. It's funny how they systematically got those hip to their games out of there.

Re: Back Up Details for Meeting on 3 December 2010

Dear Governor Parnell,

Thank you for meeting w th us to discuss these important issues for the Alaska National Guard (AKNG). My perspective on this matter is based upon my eleven years in the AKNG and prior experience Outside. The AKNG is built out of hard work and determination that its almost 4,000 members pour into its missions to serve Alaska and America. The foundation upon which the AKNG is built is integrity. Erosion in this foundation is undermining the organization. Without a sound foundation of integrity, there is not a basis upon which to build the structural supports necessary to hold the organization together, such as: confidence leaders are directing efforts to serve Alaska and this great nation and not just to further their own careers; confidence that they can speak up when they see questionable activity without fear of retaliation and that the issue will be fairly addressed, not just covered up; and, confidence in the internal selection, promotion, and other administrat ve processes as being transparent and merit-based. The following paragraphs provide additional detail to the matters we discussed.

BACKGROUND

The leadership issues beatting the AKNG did not arise overnight, they developed over years. For the Alaska Air National Guard (AKANG), many of the challenges that have so distracted the organization from proper focus on its state and federal missions were born when Brigadier General McManus became the AKANG Commander in November of 2007. She demonstrated disdain for operational issues while focusing on personnel manipulation. She started a system of promotions based upon cronyism and withheld favorable personnel actions based upon ex post facto arbitrary and capricious "standards" that were not consistently applied. Similarly, she blocked the promotion of a female officer and recognition of the accomplishments of others she felt diminished her own prominence. More troubling, Lieutenant General Campbell and then Major General Katkus ignored and even supported this misconduct.

About a year-and-a-half-ago ago, just after the 176th Wing completed its Pacific Air Forces Operational Readiness Inspection, the organizational climate in the AKANG took a turn for the worse. At that time, the group commanders started to voice to the wing commander the need to focus our energy on three major tasks: safe flying, maintaining the 24/7 rescue mission, and conducting the BRAC-mandated relocation from Kulis ANGB onto JBER in FY 11. These concerns were raised as JFHQ-AK (AKNG State Headquarters) continued to press for substantial participation in a state exercise without clear taskings other than to centralize decision-making authority, new recruiting initiatives, new joint undertakings contrary to existing policies and regulations, and new state missions without adequate resources. In addition, a large deployment was moved forward. Although your four priorities for the Alaska National Guard were made known, there was no evident attempt to address them.

In June 2010, the 176th Wing completed a USAF Safety Center Operational Safety Assessment that showed it to be at elevated risk due to workplace stress and strain levels above the average of the US workforce, Air National Guard and even the active duty Air Force. In late June or early July 2010, there was a heated discussion between Brig Gen Foster, 176th Wing Commander, and his vice wing commander and group commanders. At that meeting in response to requests from the colonels to approach Brig Gen McManus and/or MG Katkus to reduce the requirements on the wing due to its heavy workload, Brig Gen Foster stated that it would not be credible to TAG that the 176th Wing was over-extended until we crashed an airplane because we had in the past said we were over-extended and nothing came of it. Incidentally, I have twice in my 30-year career called for a reduction in flying activity due to safety concerns and been overruled; the other time was in 2005 when Lt Gen Campbell ignored my advice not to deploy a pilot and commander; he had a Class C mishap while flying a UH-60 in Haiti.

On 27 July 2010 at a meeting of the same group when the group commanders and vice raised safety concerns and asked Brig Gen Foster to use the Operational Safety Assessment results to demonstrate why we needed to reduce workload, Brig Gen Foster said that TAG was not going to see the OSA results. These meetings on the eve of the largest mishap in AKANG history vividly demonstrate how the coercive atmosphere created by MG Katkus and Brig Gen McManus had instilled in Brig Gen Foster a fear of raising important safety and mission issues.

On 28 July in a meeting in my office, I had a heated discussion with Brig Gen Foster where I said that we were outside of safe parameters for flying and that if he could not get authority to reduce workload, he needed to send Brig Gen McManus to a unit that had just crashed an airplane so she could see what it was like before it happened here. In the course of this discussion, Brig Gen Foster admitted that we had lost focus on flying but needed to assume the risk. In short, even with acknowledging we were unsafe, the command climate created by MG Katkus and Brig Gen McManus was such that putting Airmen at undue risk was considered preferable to advising his superiors that we needed to adjust our operations. That evening, Sitka 43, a C-17 manned by 176th Wing and 3rd Wing aircrew, crashed while practicing the demo flight for an upcoming airshow, killing all four on board.

On 10 Aug 10 while the Wing was prosecuting two very difficult rescue missions, Brig Gen Foster had another heated discussion with his group commanders and vice wing commander where he pushed us to commit to a new recruiting initiative for the 176 Maintenance Group in Guam and the group commanders voiced significant concern about it being too much additional workload, exacerbating an already unsafe situation. Basically, MG Katkus and Brig Gen McManus had a plan to outsource AKANG jobs to Guamanians and we were directed to assume further risk excess workload and reducing training capability to make it happen. In addition, the diversion of training and readiness resources to spend over $100K per year per Guamanian to transport them between Guam and Alaska in the plan envisioned by the generals raised significant concerns for fraud, waste, and abuse as well as Anti-Deficiency Act purpose violation legal exposure for the colonels involved in the discussion.

That afternoon, Brig Gen Foster came to my office to ask that I be a good wingman and attend a meeting with Col Keese and Lt Col Wilbanks on 13 Aug to discuss with Brig Gen McManus and MG Katkus (Brig Gen Foster was going to be on a trip where a C-17 was taken to MN for one of the Sitka 43 funerals) the plan for recruiting 176 Maintenance Group Airmen in Guam. During this meeting, I again raised safety concerns about workload and the loss of focus on flying and he again brushed them aside. That evening, an AKARNG UH-60 crashed while attempting to assist with one of the rescue missions, fortunately with no loss of life or even injury.

MISCONDUCT/ETHICAL LAPSES

Abuse of Authority. In September of 2009, the 176th Wing senior leaders attempted to realign base operations support staff whose positions were being eliminated by the BRAC move from Kulis to JBER into aircraft maintenance positions that needed to be filled as we stood up the C-17 mission. 176th Wing leadership started executing a plan coordinated between the losing and gaining units, the workforce and the labor union, ACT. Although this task was to carry out Brig Gen McManus' directive to take care of these Alaskans while reprogramming them from excess to needed positions, she ordered that all of the transfers be cancelled and MG Katkus froze all personnel moves throughout the Wing when it became evident that the transfers would raise a unit's strength over a threshold set by McManus so that its commander would be eligible for promotion, which Brig Gen McManus opposed. Incidentally, the same moves were carried out six months later in the same manner once the unit reached the same strength threshold so that the gain became moot. As a result of the delay, the two dozen Alaskans whose jobs were eliminated were subjected to months of uncertainty, incurred substantially longer than six-month school delays, and lost opportunity for promotions due to Air Force-wide rank changes in the interim.

Denial of access to the IG, chain of command and elected officials by Brig Gen Foster, Brig Gen McManus and MG Katkus. On 12 Aug 2010 at approximately 0930 Local at Kulis Air National Guard Base Alaska, Brig Gen Foster ordered three witnesses and myself to stay after a routine meeting for an "executive meeting." After having Col Keese announce his planned retirement in January (for family reasons), Brig Gen Foster led off with saying this was a meeting where he would do the talking, not listening.

Brig Gen Foster stated that this meeting was to implement the guidance he had been given by Brig Gen McManus the day before on the need to quash any "nay-saying" by 176th Wing personnel when meeting with MG Katkus. This "executive meeting" was in preparation for a meeting with MG Thomas Katkus, on 13 Aug 2010 at Joint Base Elmendorf-Richardson, Alaska to discuss recruiting in Guam to fill 176 MXG vacancies. The proposed plan raised significant logistical, regulatory and waste and abuse issues; there was particular concern on the need for candor with AKNG/TAG on risk incurred by the plan's requirement to commit hundreds of C-17 and/or KC-135 O&M flying hours to transport the Guam Guardsmen between Alaska and Guam, creating a bill in the millions of dollars for tens of Guamanians to be AKANG members. Brig Gen Foster instructed that there was a chain of command and the only level where it was acceptable to raise these concerns was to him. It was unacceptable to raise concerns or challenges in the TAG meeting, and further that the only thing we could display at this meeting for the plan was "ebullience." He went on to explain that the military was a hierarchical organization and furthermore that he, Brig Gen McManus and MG Katkus were the extent of people to whom it was remotely acceptable to discuss this matter because AKNG/TAG was the pinnacle of the chain of command. This was a follow up to a discussion two days before where I raised the right to contact elected officials, particularly the Governor, and made a reference to other military review channels, e.g. IG and USAF Audit Agency, when there is an issue about whether actions are proper. Reference to the appropriateness of contacting you as our commander-in-chief drew a scowl.

By the way Brig Gen Foster spoke, he indicated that we were not allowed to contact these external channels to the Foster-McManus-Katkus chain but within the military and government. He repeatedly directed that no discussion of this matter was allowable accept for within these three general officers and that only positive comments were acceptable above his level.

Reprisal and abuse of authority by Brig Gen Foster and Brig Gen McManus. See narrative above. Brig Gen Foster deliberately started this meeting with the Col Keese retirement announcement because I am one of the most qualified to be the next vice wing commander. Upon information and belief (a statement from Brig Gen Foster's wife), when Col Keese was selected for this position, I was Brig Gen Foster's first choice when he filled the position but Brig Gen McManus directed that he select Col Keese instead. The implication of having the retirement announcement with this meeting was to stifle my expressing of any concerns at the meeting on 13 Aug by creating the impression that my consideration for the WG/CV position depended upon whether I raised concerns. Brig Gen Foster explicitly stated that anyone who would not abide by his orders not to raise issues above him in the chain of command was unfit for his/her current position and needed to resign. He further stated that we needed to contact him in the next day or two to affirm that we acquiesced to these terms of employment where we could not exercise the open door policies of those above him in the chain of command or by implication other protected communications (IG and elected officials such as yourself). I left the meeting and work that day with the impression that if I raised any concerns or challenges before TAG on Friday I would not be considered for advancement to the WG/CV position and would be fired if possible. At least one other participant in the meeting shared my perception.

Retaliation by Brig Gen Foster and Brig Gen McManus for contacting your office. See narrative above. Brig Gen Foster indicated that his comments in this conversation were "targeted" at me and Lt Col Wilbanks. Immediately after he made this statement, he attempted to re-phrase or soften it. The basis for us being selected as targets for this action was that Brig Gen Foster was aware that the two of us had gone to the Governor's Office in October 2009 to complain about abuse of authority by Brig Gen McManus and MG Thomas Katkus at an Alaska National Guard Officers Association meeting a few nights before. Specifically, the two generals along with Brig Gen Dieffenderfer attacked the ANGOA Board for its candor in sending a letter to your office that indicated that Brig Gen McManus was not considered a most-qualified candidate based upon association membership feedback and using criteria very similar to that used for Alaska Bar Association judicial recommendations. After 45 minutes of berating the board and demanding that the letter be retracted because they contended that even in a private capacity we lacked the right to provide your office with feedback contrary to their opinion, they stormed out. These generals were aware of the meeting with your staff because by an unfortunate coincidence MG Katkus had a meeting scheduled with another member of the Governor's Office as the same time and we ran into him in the lobby as we met with Mr. Hinger.

Undue command influence by Brig Gen McManus and MG Katkus. On 6 August 2010, the 176 FSF uploaded to ARPC (Air Force Reserve Personnel Center) a discharge and separation packet on MSgt [redacted] based upon NGB guidance to address his failure to disclose pre-existing medical conditions incurred while in the AKARNG when he enlisted in the AKANG in order to get a promotion. The packet was processed by all applicable wing agencies (e.g. FSF, SJA, etc.) and then sent to ARPC for their action, who in turn found that the applicable regulations were met so that the discharge was appropriate and necessary. On 15 August 2010, Brig Gen McManus sent an email to Brig Gen Foster directing that he cease and desist all wing efforts to discharge MSgt [redacted] pending her review of the situation. This unheard of interjection in the fully prescribed discharge process constitutes an abuse of authority in that she has no decision-making authority in this matter per the applicable AFI and ANGI and state policies. Instead, she directed that we ignore the applicable regulations and get ARPC to undo the discharge action. Subsequently, MG Katkus told me in a conversation that he had known [redacted] for years, wanted to get him promoted, and wanted make sure he was taken care of.

Retaliation. On Friday 24 Sep 2010, I met with Brig Gen Foster. We had just finished a regularly-scheduled meeting where representatives from all of the MSG flights/squadrons had updated him on the issues they were working. After the main meeting, Brig Gen Foster and I stayed back to discuss how to address a fulltime manning issue in the MDG, which I oversee during the week as a civil service technician when the Drill Status Guardsman commander is unavailable. At the end of this meeting, I told him that I was interested in competing for the 176 WG/CV position, which will be vacated early next year when the incumbent, Col Keese, retires.

In response, Brig Gen Foster replied that in accordance with a directive by MG Katkus and Brig Gen McManus, me and Lt Col Wilbanks would not be considered for the 176th Wing Vice Wing Commander even though I would be a graduated group commander because of "that ANGOA thing" last Fall, i.e. our providing feedback of the association in response to your office's request for public input. He further said that I am to be selectively non-retained at the end of next year prior to my MSD (mandatory service date), which is contrary to AKNG TAG statements of retaining officers until at MSD and contrary to AKANG force management policy and practice of retaining dual status technicians/Drill Status Guardsman, for the same reason.

On Saturday 25 Sep 2010 and Sunday 26 Sep 2010, I had meetings with MG Katkus. The first one was by my request (and which he conducted like a police interrogation) and the second one was a side conversation at a fund-raising event. He indicated that he would not tolerate illegal activity; that Brig Gen Foster's statements were most likely the result of a miscommunication with Brig Gen McManus; that he would take this issue to the AKNG/HRO to assure that personnel policies not by a key staff selection without competition. These actions do not change the underlying malfeasance of Brig Gen McManus and Brig Gen Foster in this matter. Although these communications demonstrate MG Katkus' full knowledge of these unlawful actions, his follow up as discussed further below reflects that he is interested in covering up the misconduct, not stopping it.

On Tuesday 28 September 2010, Brig Gen Foster stopped by my office to discuss transfer options for a rape victim for whom I oversaw the Line of Duty process. After this discussion, he reiterated that I would not be considered for the vice wing commander position position and that he is planning colonel personnel moves in February 2011.

Failure to report/stop misconduct. Reference the narrative above, Brig Gen Foster's failure to elevate or report Brig Gen McManus' retaliatory misconduct and MG Katkus' failure to stop the illegal acts constitutes misconduct in itself.

Fostering a climate of fear to suppress safety concerns. Looking back on the last year, I believe that Brig Gen Foster developed a belief that we lacked the authority to adjust the OPTEMPO due to safety concerns. His actions reflect his belief as to the AKNG command climate and his actions reflect how he understood he was supposed to act. I believe he also interpreted that anything we said other than WILCO to JFHQ-AK taskers and direction, even if safety concerns were involved, would not be addressed on the merits, but instead as a pretense to affect leadership changes in 176th Wing, i.e. remove him and insert Col Scott Wenke from up north despite the substantiated IG complaint against Wenke.

Failure to address misconduct. Sometime in November 2010, Brig Gen McManus learned the full extent of the communications I had with MG Katkus about what Brig Gen Foster had said. She directed that I prepare a sworn statement about Brig Gen Foster's statements. Once I prepared this statement, she and MG Katkus declined to exercise their command authority to meet their command obligation to investigate and address the misconduct, instead sending the complaint off to the Air Force Inspector General which will trigger a collateral investigation six months to a year from now.

Failure to adopt transparent and merit-based selection process. This week, Brig Gen McManus announced that they were going to adopt a system to make the colonel position selection competitive by gathering a list of all colonels and lieutenant colonels interested in competing for colonel positions in the AKANG and publishing a listing. As further explained by Brig Gen McManus and Brig Gen Foster, this is not a competitive process but window-dressing on the existing practice of cronyism-based hiring. First, there is no defined process for how the colonels will be ranked. Second, the selecting official is not bound to select the top-ranked colonel, but instead can pick any colonel on the list; it is in short not a true order of merit listing. As perceptively stated by Brig Gen Foster at the December 1st meeting where this was explained: "This way we can keep doing key staff (i.e. non-competitive) appointments but be able to say they are competitive." Third, this process was announced two days ago for how the 176th Wing Vice Commander position would be filled, but already it is evident it is not being used for two appointments AFTER this position. Specifically the 168th vice commander position has already been formally announced as a non-competitive appointment to Col O'Brien and MG Katkus has already told several that he has selected Col Wendy Wenke as the next Vice Chief of Staff even though this position does not come open until April. In short, an attempt has been made to disguise the intent to make a cronyism-based hiring decision for the 176th wing vice commander position and then continue to use force management tools in a retaliatory manner. There are no credible indicia of a change in the underlying misconduct of retaliation.

CONCLUSION

The Alaska Guard has Guardsmen who truly demonstrate what it means to be the best when things are at their worst. I respectfully request your attention to these leadership issues to assure that they are focused properly on performing their state and federal missions, and not having to negotiate an unhealthy organizational environment. Please feel free to call me if you have any questions.

Sincerely,

MEMORANDUM FOR Governor Sean Parnell
PO Box 110001
Juneau, AK 99811-0001
Phone: 907.465-3500

SUBJECT: Sexual Assault and Reprisal

1. On 5 November 2010 Major General Tom Katkus and BOI/PR had a meeting with senior personnel from the AKARNG. Several senior officers present at the meeting told me that although my name was not specifically mentioned, it was still clear that I was the topic of the conversation. Of course even if I wasn't the officer being spoken of, the results are the same. MG Katkus and BOI/PR told everyone in the room that an officer that wasn't present had reported to the FBI and the Alaska State Troopers that there had been Sexual Assaults in the AKARNG. They said this officer should have given the information to them instead of law enforcement. They said that this officer was not a team player. This officer was not the type of officer that they wanted in the organization. And they said they expected loyalty from everyone else in the room.

2. They admitted that this officer had reported crimes to Law Enforcement and now their actions could not only keep others from cooperating in the future with law enforcement, but also prevent anyone else from reporting sexual assaults. Personnel in the room could be turned against the officer that did report the crimes, and cause them to be prejudiced against him in any future boards, actions, or other events. Drug Dealers are involved in the Sex Crimes, and I have now been identified as the person working against them, thus placing my life and the lives of those around me in danger.

3. Military Regulations are clear that proper procedures for assisting Sexual Assault Victims is to report to Law Enforcement Authorities and the Sexual Assault Response Coordinator, which is what I did. Unlike the Regular Army, the National Guard has no Uniform Code of Military Justice and no Law Enforcement Authority. Reporting crimes to Civilian Law Enforcement is the proper and legal procedure to take. Nowhere is there a legal necessity to report to the chain of command, but rather it is imperative to prevent anyone without a need to know from finding out Victims' information. The police and SARC will provide what is pertinent and legal.

4. MG Katkus and BOI/PR have indicated that their subordinates must do exactly the opposite of what is legal and regulatory. They have attempted intimidation for those who won't disobey what is legal. Considering this was a Council of Colonels called by the Chief of Staff and given the rank, positions, and titles of Major General Katkus and BOI/PR; their statements are tantamount to Direct Orders and Policy to the senior leaders present in the room. If a person in an influential leadership position knows of reported crimes and/or ongoing law enforcement investigations, and then uses direct influence to turn people against the person reporting the crimes and prevent further reporting to law enforcement; this activity can be considered a crime in and of itself.

5. The women in the Alaska National Guard are trained to close with and destroy the enemy. They are willing to fight Terrorism on foreign shores. They have volunteered to deploy from their homes and families to defend their Nation in time of War. However, because of the actions of MG Katkus and BOI/PR, the women in the Alaska National Guard can now be Raped with no ability for them to fight back. Weather by penetrating her when she is passed out from chemicals put into her drink or if a gun is literally held to her head, she has no recourse but to go along with it and keep her mouth shut afterwards. If she tries to report the Rape she will be re-victimized with the senior personnel in the guard covering up the truth. If she goes to any sympathetic officer and tries to get help from him, she now knows that that officer will be punished for helping her, and the credibility of his reports will be dismissed. The Security of every member of the Alaska National Guard has now been officially compromised. A false institutional knowledge has been implanted amongst senior personnel that will direct them to violate the law, victims' rights, and perpetuate sex crimes within the organization.

6. As stated in a previous document, victims indicated their fear of the chain of command. So the question arises: "what about the victims?" Not the past victims, it's too late for them. Any naive notions they had of official policies that would help them have been dashed by the actions of Katkus and BOI/PR But what about the future victims? With the policies established of keeping leaders in that protect rapists and punishing those following law and regulations, there will be future victims, and the public will know that the rapists will get away with it.

7. The victims spoke of Katkus and BOI/PR as interfering with attempted reports of the assaults and reprisal for doing so. The meeting held on 5 November is proof of what the victims were afraid of. They can't take back what they have done. No amount of apologizing or false policy memos will correct the damage or change the facts of their own words, in their own meeting, and directives to their subordinates. If the persons that created this environment are allowed to stay in their positions of leadership and influence, everyone will know that there is no punishment for violating victims' rights or interfering with proper law enforcement investigations into crimes.

8. This Commissioner and Chief of Staff have now compromised the integrity of the Governor's Office and his policies against sex crimes within the state. With so many witnesses in the meeting the word is already getting out and will continue to get out. Morale will continue to drop and civilians will no longer wish to join the National Guard, unless they are looking for an organization that will allow them to get away with committing crimes.

9. POC this matter is the undersigned at Kenneth.blaylock1@us.army.mil, (907) 428-7523 work, or BOI cell.

I have been informed that at least the following personnel were present in addition to Major General Katkus and BOI/PR:

SSG Jeremiah Ladenburg, COS assistant
Major Joe Lyon, COS assistant
Major Elijah Waters, 1-297 CAV SQDN
Lieutenant Colonel Dan Collins, JAG
Lieutenant Colonel Rick Koch, Senior Chaplain
Lieutenant Colonel Todd Lowe, Senior Army Advisor
Lieutenant Colonel Jane Lowery, Counter Drug and EO officer
Lieutenant Colonel John McShane, G1
Lieutenant Colonel Peter Savage, BfSB S3
Lieutenant Colonel William Smith JFHQ
Lieutenant Colonel Joe Streff, Deputy USP&FO
Lieutenant Colonel Mike Thompson, DOMS/G2
Lieutenant Colonel Emma Thyen, Deputy G1
Colonel Leon bridges, DOL/G4
Colonel Dave Osborn, BfSB Commander

Upon receiving letters on 10-15-10 from Mr. [BOI/PR redacted] & LTC Kenneth Bloyloch outlining several concerns including National Guard members in inappropriate, questionable and possibly illegal activities & Referencing General Kathys & [BOI/PR redacted] I discussed the matter with the Governor & Cindy Sivers Deputy Chief of Staff

After Consultation it was decided to seek outside law enforcement to request an investigation into the reported allegations.

I had requested our Chief of Security in the Governor's office to try & obtain a direct number for the Agent in Charge at the F.B.I.

On or about 10-19-10 I called & Scheduled a meeting with SAC Kevin Fryskie at the F.B.I. later that week I had a personal meeting with him explained that I needed his assistance in investigating a member of our Cabinet General

Tom Kraus. I explained what had been disclosed to me & the source & the many allegations of potential criminal activities happening at the Department of Military and Veterans affairs, specifically the Alaska National Guard.

SAC Frydlie listened to my description of these allegations and at the conclusion of that conversation he had indicated that he would look into it & get back to me.

Several weeks later not hearing from him I left several messages for him to call me with any updates he might have. It took another few weeks before I made contact with him.

At the point I finally made contact he indicated to me that all that had been investigated and there was nothing to these allegations (sort of blowing me off in his response to me). He mentioned he these claims had been looked into before.

I briefed the Governor on to the response I got from MR. Frydrie.

This was approximately sometime in late Nov early Dec 2010.

Dear Governor Parnell:
I am writing to you because of my deep concern for the morale and welfare of the men and women of the 176th Wing at Kulis ANG Base. It is my opinion that the unethical behavior of the commander of the Alaska Air National Guard and her obvious lack of respect for the 176th wing leaders is causing serious morale problems within the wing. In addition, I believe that BG McManus' misguided and overly ambitious vision has damaged our reputation as a whole with respect to how we are viewed in the eyes of National Guard Bureau (NGB) and other units nationwide. BG McManus' questionable behavior and actions are causing the overall deterioration of the best Air National Guard Wing in the nation. Before I go into detail, I will take this opportunity to introduce myself and provide you with my background which will hopefully demonstrate to you that my concerns are credible.

My name is BOI I recently retired from the 176th Wing with over BOI years of total military service. Approximately BOI years was served within the 176th Wing. I have also worked as a BOI for approximately BOI years. I spent two of my BOI years at other ANG units. I have several skill sets and have worked in several squadrons over the past BOI years. Because of my unique career, I have either worked with or have a friendship with airman all over the wing. Everyone I talk to is concerned.

For the past two years, I have seen morale continue to decline within the wing and, equally important, our once excellent reputation with NGB has come into question. Yes, there will always be some disgruntled employee or member with a wing our size but for the first time since my ANG career began, poor morale and concerns for the unit is wide spread. Every decision the wing commander has made regarding necessary personnel cuts and changes were publically overridden by BG McManus. It is so public, that it is obvious to all in the fulltime force. The current wing perception is that the 176th Wing is operated by BG McManus not BG Foster. BG Foster is a brilliant man and a great leader, yet in the past year all major decision affecting the 176th wing have come from State HQ.

It is common knowledge within the wing that NGB chastised State HQ for demanding and procuring an additional mission (C-17 associate) when the Alaska Air National Guard had the lowest end strength in the nation. I recently learned from a friend and colleague that the State Command Chief Dennis Hogan, at the direction of BG McManus, was interfering with the wing non-participation program within the Maintenance Group. The State Command Chief has been calling members who under the guidelines of the program were receiving punitive action. My friend stated that he was calling these members promising no punitive action if they would come back and participate for at least a few more months.

Another widespread perception is that BG McManus will "take care" of the ANG members that she likes personally. She demonstrated this by moving a member whose position was lost to the State HQ while others are left to take their chances. The member had worked in vehicle maintenance most of his career; and was moved to an administrative position with no known experience. Members of the wing also believe that the opposite is true as well. It is believed that if a member's actions are derogatory towards her leadership or have negatively impacted her career, BG McManus will take reprisal. This has been demonstrated by refusing to promote the Maintenance Group commander to Colonel. The Maintenance Group commander is assigned to a Colonel billet, has received the appropriate approval from higher headquarters, yet after two years she is still not promoted. Holding a promotion at State level after all other approvals have been granted is to my knowledge unprecedented.

Ask any full time 176th wing member why and the answer will be "because she somehow got in BG McManus' bad side".

BG McManus demonstrates a total lack of regard and respect for the 176th wing commander. The "final straw" that prompted me to this action was the announcement of the change in command. I had heard a rumor that BG Foster was being replaced so I did what I always do. I went to his office and asked his assistant. The assistant said that apparently the rumor is truth. She had been receiving calls from the Air Guard unit in Fairbanks. BG McManus had visited the 168th Air Refueling Wing and announced that their current wing commander would be leaving to become the new 176th wing commander. She also stated that BG McManus denied the action however one week later it was officially announced. I was appalled by the fact that she had not given BG Foster the courtesy of meeting with him in person first to announce her decision.

BOI I was hired and transferred to BOI I witnessed first hand how poor leadership and a poor reputation in the eyes of NGB affect a wing. Unfortunately, all the warning signs are in place at my wing in Alaska now.

Many years ago a leader and member of the 176th questioned me about my loyalty to the wing. This was my reply. "I joined this unit at BOI years old because the recruiter told me that the guard was a family. I BOI BOI/PR I have many brothers, sisters, uncles and aunts and while sometimes we are a dysfunctional family, we are a family and god help the person that bad mouths or does harm to it."

We were a family however most will tell you that we are not anymore. I personally attribute that to the misguided leadership of BG McManus.

I love the 176th wing and I know that it was the absolutely best unit in the nation. Until recently, I would beam with pride when I talked of my membership in the wing. My retirement came as a blessing; not exactly how I thought I would feel.

Please save the 176th Wing.

Governor Parnell,
I will be brief as I know you are busy. It is very important that you have this information.

As a chaplain, I spend a lot of time with our Air National Guard Members. I am an advocate for the airman and an advisor to the Commander. Without me digging or planting information, these letters represent a consistent voice throughout the ANG. The individuals who talk with me would normally be able to work in their chain of command, but I continue to hear the chain is broken. It is with that in mind, I appeal to you on their behalf. You are the Commander and Chief of the Alaska National Guard. I am asking you to please hear the voices of the people being impacted. I am consistently hearing, as is reflected in the letters I have been sending you, our crisis rests with two primary individuals. There are several other individuals who have spoken with me, who have the experience and expertise to speak to the current situation.

Thank you for your consideration on these very important matters! I am constantly in prayer for you!

The Honorable Sean Parnell
Governor of Alaska
P.O. Box 110001
Juneau, AK 99811-0001

Dear Governor Parnell,

I am writing to express my grave concern regarding the developing negative situation in the Alaska National Guard. Serving in the Alaska Air National Guard was a highlight of my life and I consider it my life's work. Even from a distance, I continue to be interested in preserving its fine name, heritage, capability and welfare. I have been contacted, unsolicited, by current and former members of the Alaska Air National Guard regarding the intolerable conditions and declining morale due to the actions and poor leadership of Brig Gen McManus.

Through these contacts I have come to believe that Brig Gen McManus has created a hostile work environment, has issued inappropriate orders, has practiced profound micro-management, has abused her power, has surrounded herself with "yes men" and has practiced reprisals against good, dedicated, professional, high-performing Air Guard members. Any one of these could be grounds for removal.

I joined the Alaska Air National Guard from the Air Force in 1976 as a young Captain and over 28 years later I retired in 2005. In all of those years I was never aware of such inappropriate and morale-destroying behavior on the part of an Air Guard senior leader until now. I have been acquainted with Brig Gen McManus for about 20 years and I believed that she was a professional, competent officer with a bright future who had the best interests of the organization at heart. But I now believe the old adage "absolute power corrupts absolutely" applies. It appears that since attaining senior officer rank she has put her personal interests above those of the organization. I believe the future survival and success of the Alaska Air National Guard is at stake.

Specifically, I understand that she has repeatedly blocked the promotion of a fine Maintenance Group Commander, Lt Col Patricia Wilhanks, with whom she does not get along, to the rank of Colonel. This is ironic since I believe Brig Gen McManus bills herself as a champion of women's rights. It also hurts the unit because the Wing has a diminished voice, when dealing with the Air Force and other units, when one of its group commanders is not allowed to hold the rank of full colonel. I also understand that she materially slowed the promotion of Maj Thomas Stephens to Lt Col for unjustified reasons.

I understand that when the Alaska National Guard Officer's Association (ANGOA), at your request, sent recommendations to you for Adjutant General, they did not include Brig Gen McManus on the list. This evidently caused her to become infuriated with ANGOA President, Col Bob Doehl. I understand that she subsequently directed a superb leader, 176th Wing Commander Brig Gen Charles Foster to selectively non-retain (fire) Lt Col Wilbanks and Col Doehl, demonstrating reprisal. When Gen Foster balked, she reportedly said something to the effect that she couldn't fire Wilhanks and Doehl but she could certainly fire him (Foster). Now I understand that it has been announced that Brig Gen Foster is being neutered via a transfer to a staff position at Air Guard State Headquarters. I believe to further punish the 176th Wing, Brig Gen McManus plans to bring in a friend from outside of the 176th to replace Gen Foster. Furthermore, the spouse of Gen Foster's pending replacement is being considered to temporarily fill the vacant 176th Wing Vice Commander position, a proposal so wrong that it's hard to find words to express it. These situations regarding the 176th Wing leadership send a terrible message to the members of the 176th Wing that none of their senior officers has what it takes, which is patently untrue.

I believe the negative environment has driven off some exceptionally outstanding officers who grew weary of the buffoonery at the top and retired or transferred rather than being continually subjected to it. The list includes Brig Gen James Robinson, Brig Gen Tony Hart, Col Timothy Grams, Col Donald Keese, Lt Col Peter Katinszky, Lt Col Laura Kelm, Lt Col Karen Mansfield and (then) Maj Marie Wauters.

I believe Maj Gen Katkus is probably aware of or has concurred with some of Brig Gen McManus' inappropriate behavior and actions but hasn't intervened. He should have taken steps along the way to rein her in and discipline her when appropriate, but I now believe that this has gone on far too long and he too must be held accountable.

I don't believe in bringing up problems without offering solutions. The people and mission of the Alaska National Guard are far too valuable and important to the State and Nation to suffer any longer under the present top leadership. The troops deserve better. With the exception of the present top leadership and their cronies and sycophants, I believe few with knowledge of the situation and the people involved would find fault with the following recommendations.

My recommendations for Adjutant General are Brig Gen Charles Foster, ARNG COL Michael Bridges, Col Robert Doehl, Col (ret) Alan Barber or Col (ret) Janice Stritzinger.

My recommendations for Assistant Adjutant General (Air) are Brig Gen Charles Foster, Brig Gen (ret) Tony Hart, Col Robert Doehl, Col (ret) Alan Barber, Col (ret) Janice Stritzinger or Brig Gen (ret) James Robinson.

My recommendation for Assistant Adjutant General (Army) is ARNG COL Michael Bridges.

My recommendations for Commander 176th Wing are the continuance of Brig Gen Charles Foster or Col Carlisle Lincoln, Col Timothy Cathcart, Col Timothy O'Brien, Lt Col Mark Hedlund, or Lt Col Thomas Bolin.

My recommendation for 176th Vice Commander is Col Robert Dochl.

Most senior military leaders have some kind of power base. I have given a lot of thought about what constitutes Brig Gen McManus power base. I believe she does not derive her power from the usual sources: from the respect and admiration of her troops, from politics, peers, professional competence or community contacts; rather I believe her power-base is built on fear and intimidation, which is a sad state of affairs. Although her inappropriate actions have been going on for a while, her troops are afraid to complain because they fear the result would be reprisals against them.

On a personal note my wife Kathleen and I were very pleased to meet you briefly in the Fall of 2006 at the Palin/Parnell campaign rally at Tanglewood Golf Dome in Anchorage. Also, I received a nice "thanks but no thanks" letter from you after I applied, via my 12 August 2009 letter, to become your Adjutant General/DMVA Commissioner.

I know you are concurrently receiving similar input from other reliable sources and I urge you to digest all of it and then do what's right to protect, preserve and promote that very special resource: the members of the Alaska National Guard. They deserve it.

Thank you for your attention in this matter. I will be attending the Kulis ANGB Fly Away Closure Ceremony on February 12th and hope to see you there. In the meantime, if I can be of any more assistance, please contact me at my above address or via phone at home [BOI] or cell [BOI].

Very Respectfully and Sincerely,

Gene L Ramsay

Reference: Retaliation in Alaska National Guard

Dear Governor Parnell,

Thank you for your ongoing concern about senior leadership ethics and morals in the Alaska National Guard. The Alaska National Guard's members play a crucial role in responding to both federal and state missions. They will only be effective however if their leaders are both focusing on readiness for these missions and acting in such a way to instill full trust and confidence in them by members of both the Alaska National Guard and the general public.

Unfortunately, two actions very recently by Major General Katkus and Brigadier General McManus are creating the perception that they are responding to queries your office has made by retaliating against those they suspect to have provided you information. The two individuals were officers of the Board of the Alaska National Guard Officers Association when it ranked TAG applicants and did not rank Brigadier General McManus as highly qualified; it appears that Alaska National Guard senior leadership has decided that ANGOA is behind "the letter writing campaign to Governor Parnell" that they have complained about to both the Alaska Army National Guard and 168th Air Refueling Wing colonels. It appears that the two individuals, whom I believe have not provided information for your queries, have been found guilty by previous association with a group who spoke in candor to you for the welfare of the Alaska National Guard.

Last week PR Brigadier General McManus instructed Brigadier General Foster to place a hold on PR 's promotion three days before it became effective PR . The purported reason was because PR Blocking a promotion three days beforehand for a condition that has existed for a substantial period of time PR , is an unprecedented abuse of authority. It is also completely inconsistent with direction General McManus has personally provided in at least a half dozen other personnel matters in the last six months. If blocking this promotion was based on leadership concern and not pretense, the initial intent to block the promotion would have been done by memo and provided PR an opportunity to respond and provide PR position. Moreover, it would have been done six months ago when this promotion was first forecast to allow PR time to correct the condition if it is indeed unacceptable. A verbal notice three days before the promotion date ignores the normal personnel practices to assure fairness and empower the individual to meet leadership's reasonable expectations. Instead, this lifetime Alaskan's career has been blind-sided.

Yesterday, General Katkus instructed Brigadier General Banez to tell Colonel Mike Bridges that he had changed his mind over the weekend and that COL Bridges would not move into the Alaska Army National Guard Chief of Staff (COS) position next month as previously announced. He provided no explanation other than that he has changed his mind. Note: although both positions are militarily "colonel" positions, the Chief of Staff position is a higher federal pay grade, GS-15 vs. GS-14, for the weekday duties performed by the incumbent. The financial impact on COL Bridges and his family could be tens of thousands of dollars per year. Instead, General Katkus has decided to place COL Cathy Jorgenson in the COS position. COL Jorgenson has not commanded a unit in rural Alaska like COL Bridges did when he voluntarily moved to Nome for three years to command a battalion. COL Jorgenson has not deployed like most of the Alaska Army National Guard has and COL Bridges did when he worked in Iraq for a year assisting the Iraqis with nation building. In short, two of the best publicized career enhancers do not support this eleventh hour change. The appearance is that some other animus is driving General Katkus. Frankly, the most apparent motivator is frustration with the information provided to you and Mike Nizich's recent queries about the Alaska National Guard, which General Katkus has described as frustrating.

Neither of these personnel actions have been publicized beyond the affected individuals and a few involved in the personnel processes. In order to avoid further retaliation against them, I respectfully request that any queries into their circumstances be done in a manner as to not make it appear that they provided this information to you. Please feel free to call me if you have any questions. Thank you again for your attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

Re: Retaliation Actions by Leaders in the Alaska National Guard

Dear Governor Parnell,

Thank you very much for listening and taking action regarding our concerns with the current leadership in the Alaska National Guard. I wrote to you last month and outlined my specific situation regarding Brig Gen McManus' mistreatment of me and the complaint I filed with the Secretary of the Air Force Inspector General (IG). Recently, I learned that two people whom I serve with on the Alaska National Guard Officer's Association (ANGOA) board were denied promotional opportunity and I felt compelled to tell you the ANGOA story and to further elaborate on the retaliation actions against me and my squadron commander, Lt Col Griesbaum, since we first started writing to you in December 2010.

When I first met MG Katkus, I liked his personality and straight forward demeanor which is one of the reasons I voted for him when ANGOA was asked by you to give our recommendation for TAG position in fall 2009. This request caused our 10-person board quite a bit of consternation. The majority of us agreed early on that we could not produce a generic eligibility letter because of the large volume of emails, calls and side-bar conversations with our members voicing concerns with current leadership. Prior to the vote, two board members abstained from voting and three others gave their votes as proxies to other board members because all of them feared retaliation if Generals Katkus and McManus were not top in the ranking list. Five board members (I was one of them) met to vote on TAG nominees; one was a retiree and four of us were actively employed by the Alaska National Guard. We decided to not meet in our normal location in the armory because it is known that MG Katkus routinely monitors communications in that room. Instantly the vote produced four clear leaders with Brig Gen McManus and MG Katkus tied for number five. We discussed writing a letter with only four most qualified nominees, but decided that wouldn't be fair since it didn't follow the rules identified from the beginning. So we voted again to break the tie for position number five. It was obvious from the beginning that the Army was voting for Brig Gen McManus and the Air was voting for MG Katkus; if either one of these individuals were good leaders, their respective organization would have carried them, even if only out of service paternalism. In the end, MG Katkus made the fifth position by a single vote. When we sent our recommendation forward, we deliberately did not numerically rank order the candidates, but MG Katkus learned that he was number five and almost didn't make the most qualified list. Needless to say, he was extremely angry with ANGOA believing it sent a message of no-confidence for senior Alaska Guard leaders.

MG Katkus showed his displeasure with ANGOA when he and the AKNG generals attended the October 2009 board meeting, which was the first meeting any of these individuals had ever attended. Their sole objective was to berate this non-profit board for providing a recommendation to you and to attack our process. For 45 minutes, a heated discussion ensued with MG Katkus leading the charge. It was because of their behavior Col Doehl and I met with Ward Hinger of your office a week later to voice our concerns regarding potential retaliation and the immature attitude of these senior leaders. While I suspected they would not instantly retaliate against the board members, I knew in time all our careers were in jeopardy. I was the first person of the four voting members they could influence to feel their wrath.

In BOI/PR, Brig Gen Foster submitted me for promotion and Brig Gen McManus denied it. I elevated my opposition to MG Katkus. He upheld her decision stating that my unit had not met the recruiting standard set forth by the ATAG. During the meeting with Generals Katkus and McManus, he expounded upon how he does not tolerate retaliation in his organization. I found his words incredulous because two months prior he told me that he would support a promotion recommendation for me, and the only thing that had changed was my involvement in ANGOA and our visit to your office. Four months later, AKNG leadership proved me right when both of them approved a promotion recommendation for Lt Col Stevenson, 168 MSG/CC, to colonel even though his unit manning was below ATAG standard. Their decision to deny my promotion because of unit manning was just an excuse for their retaliatory behavior. I never elevated this issue to your office but instead decided to submit a retaliation complaint to the Secretary of the Air Force Inspector General (SAF/IG) as an addendum to my original complaint of abuse of authority, of which both are currently in coordination at the Department of Defense.

Over the course of the year, the other three board members that voted that day have experienced similar fates. Col Doehl was told by Brig Gen Foster, 176th Wing Commander, he would not be considered for the Vice Wing Commander position, and would be non-retained this year, specifically because of his role in ANGOA. Major Spear-Budd was denied promotion this past month and Col Bridges was denied moving into the Army Chief of Staff position and was denied one of the general positions two months ago despite his high qualifications. While MG Katkus may say that he doesn't retaliate and he doesn't support those that retaliate, his actions speak otherwise.

Retaliation is rampant in the Alaska National Guard by our senior leaders, especially against those that speak candor as we are ethically obligated to do. They do this by denying promotions as the preferred method to exact revenge, but also by initiating repeated Command Directed Investigations (CDI). In my 20 plus year in the military, I've never been involved in a CDI as either a subject or witness, but in the past six months my unit has experienced four of them. CDIs are extremely stressful; raise havoc on a unit and can threaten a person's career and should be used only in rare circumstances. However, our current leadership routinely initiates them as a means to discredit commanders and wield as a weapon. So much so that when I called over to the Area Defense Council on JBER to inquire about the legal rights of subjects, I was told they've seen a high increase of CDIs by the Alaska Air National Guard and members requesting help.

Their intensity against Lt Col Griesbaum and I increased after we started to communicate with you in December. Because of my involvement in ANGOA and the complaints I filed with SAF/IG, it became apparent that senior leadership believed I was part of the letter writing campaign to your office. In mid December, they initiated a CDI directly against us for allegations by a disgruntled employee pertaining to some events that occurred years prior. We were never given the opportunity to explain our side of the story before an investigation ensued as should have happened as part of the screening process. In addition, they have abused the process by allowing the investigator, Lt Col Stevenson (168 MSG), to frame up the allegations which is a clear violation of the CDI regulation because of the obvious conflict of interest. More than 20 people were interviewed by the investigator, hundreds of man-hours were lost to investigate bogus allegations that were never pre-screened as required and are now proving unsubstantiated by the investigation.

To make matters worse, after you inquired about BOI/PR hostile work environment claim, they opened another COI against my organization to "address safety and security concerns within the 176th Maintenance Group". In reality, the allegation should have been against the individual that BOI/PR claimed was causing the hostile working environment. When I asked the investigator why the allegations were on my organization and not the accused, he explained that senior leadership did not want to narrow the scope directly to him. This is another perfect example of the abuse of process utilizing Command Directed Investigations. When this situation first appeared, they asked me for a timeline of events which I have attached to this letter.

The bottom line is that Generals Katkus and McManus won't stop retaliating once the ANGOA board members leave the guard. Retaliation is in their nature much like the fable the Scorpion and the Fox. MG Katkus chose Brig Gen McManus, Col DeHaas, Col Osborne and Col Wenke as his senior advisors because they depict his leadership traits. The frustration you are seeing from the masses is an accumulation of poor leadership and it starts at the top with MG Katkus. Everything rises and falls upon leadership and we desperately need new leadership. There are so many other qualified candidates from retirees to on-board guard members whom we can trust to lead our organization. Generals Katkus and McManus are not the only ones qualified for these positions. Thank you again for hearing our concerns and taking action to resolve this most complicated situation.

Sincerely,

BOI/PR

MEMORANDUM FOR 176[TH] Vice Wing Commander

FROM: BOI/PR

SUBJECT: Time line of Hostile Work Environment

1. Below is a chronology of recent events surrounding the Hostile Working environment involving BOI/PR and BOI/PR The information is true and correct and true to the best of my knowledge.

- March 2010-Oct 2010
  - BOI/... is told he will be non-retained in 2011 after 22 AGR years of military service. He is upset and begins acting erratically and making false allegations against MXG members
  - By-passes chain of command and sends emails/schedules meetings with Wing Commander, Command Chief and State Command Chief
  - 6 Oct 10 – I met with BOI/... concerning allegations to State Command Chief and Wing Command Chief ; requesting he identify his concerns via email so I could address them
  - 14 Oct 10 – I met with BOI... to address his concerns regarding lack of training. feedback, Performance Reports. I offer him counseling
  - BOI/PR and he request emergency leave to BOI/PR request is denied after coordination with 673[rd] ABW, PACAF and ANG

November 2010

- BOI/PR erratic ,angry behavior continues even after I meet with him
  - Refused to sign EPR without a "union" representative present, even though he's not a union member, he's an AGR
  - Made allegations that the unit didn't call him/or acknowledge him when his BOI/PR The squadron commander called him and I sent him a card
  - Accused me of receiving flowers from the unit for my birthday and that the unit didn't acknowledge his birthday; I actually received flowers from a friend outside the unit
  - Makes statements within the organization that BOI/PR for Brig Gen McManus and that Brig Gen McManus doesn't like me so she'll side with him
  - Supervisors and employees start to complain about his behavior – one minute he's happy, the next he is mad/sad. Very "bi-polar" tendencies
  - MOF Commander and Supervisor repeatedly offered help and counseling
- Ask Col Doehl what I should do about the situation and he recommends I contact HRO
- On 16 November 2010, I call HRO requesting help with the situation; told to document, provide counseling and do not retaliate

- December 2010
  - 8 Dec 10 – Met with Chief Streit, Wing Command Chief, about an email that BOI/PR had sent to him and BCC'd Chief Hogan, State Command Chief. The email accused both BOI/PR and I of "beating" up his wife regarding the Children's Christmas Party. The entire email was directed towards BOI/... and her involvement with KSEA and the party. BOI/PR was able to prove that I wasn't involved and that the other allegations were false. Chief Streit sent an email to BOI/... saying he talked to us but he didn't refute BOI/PR claims.
  - 8 Dec 10 – I call HRO, Col Jorgensen, to request help with the situation. I am told once again to document and that they will stop by on the 20 Dec to get "eyes on target" with the situation and talk to BOI/PR She also tells me she has to be careful because BOI/PR wife works for her.
  - 8 Dec 10 – I send out an email to Brig Gen Foster, Col Jorgensen and Chief Streit refuting BOI/PR claims that BOI/PR and I "beat up" his wife. No response from anyone on email.
  - 9 Dec 10 - BOI/PR is visibly upset with the accusations made by BOI/... and his recent behavior; she tells Lt Col Griesbaum and I that she went to MEO, IG and Security Forces to seek relief and that she is scared of BOI/... I tell her that my hands are tied because BOI/PR has jumped the chain of command to Brig Gen Foster and that basically my command authority has been undermined. I also remind her that HRO said that we can't retaliate against him for complaining. I agree to elevate the situation to Brig Gen Foster. She is not happy with the situation and I feel frustrated because I can't adequately address her fears without appearing retaliatory. In addition, I tell her I didn't have support from Brig Gen Foster because of his relationship with BOI/PR
  - 10 Dec 10 – Lt Col Griesbaum tells me that MSgt Shull came to him about her fears regarding BOI/PR He also tells me that he contacted Lt Col Leisa Foster, Wing IG, regarding the situation and asked for help.
  - 12 Dec 10 – BOI/... calls me at home during the dinner hour because BOI/PR filed a civilian stalking order against him. It was dismissed by the courts. He was extremely upset and mad at BOI/PR He demanded that I take action against BOI/PR because she is an AGR and she had no right to file in the civilian courts.
  - 12 Dec 10 – I call Col Wenke looking for help and explained the situation to her. She agrees to help and asks me to send her all of our documentation on BOI/PR
  - 13 Dec 10 – I engaged BOI/... in the morning to check on his mental stability and to offer help. He was exceptionally irritated and wanted to engage me on why I wasn't holding BOI/PR accountable for filing the claim. I told him the situation is being handled by the Vice Wing and Wing Commander. I instruct him to stay away from BOI/PR until this is resolved.
  - 13 Dec 10 – I met with BOI/PR to find out more about the civilian stalking charged. She shared with me the TAG's policy on Hostile Work Environment and why she was afraid of BOI/... I asked if she wanted to work from home for the next few days. She declined because she was working on a project in the office. Also, she would be leaving early today and coming in late tomorrow because of childcare issues. I directed that she stay away from BOI/... and that we were all here to help.

- 13 Dec 10 – Discussed relocation alternatives with Col Doehl. I wanted to move BOI/PR because his job duties were portable while BOI/PR supports the entire MXG senior staff. Basically, moving her was more of an impact to the organization. Col Doehl recommended the BRAC office for BOI/PR
- 14 Dec 10 – Provided documentation on BOI/... and BOI/PR statement to Col Wenke. I was told that Brig Gen Foster would review the information and provide a way-forward. She called me later in the afternoon to discuss a written military no-contact order. I was told that legal was producing written language to include in the military no-contact order, but I wasn't allowed to initiate them until Brig Gen Foster approved them. She told me that it looked like a CDI was being initiated by Brig Gen Foster to resolve the situation. She told me not worry about the CDI because it is a good thing and will help resolve this conflict.
- 15 Dec 10 – I drafted the military no-contact orders and met with Brig Gen Foster in the morning. He made changes to both letters. Both letters were given to them in the afternoon. During this meeting, he told me that he was initiating a CDI but it was not about the Hostile Work Environment. BOI/PR had sent him a six-page letter with several allegations and he was investigating his claims, apparently against me.
- 15 Dec 10 – After I gave the no-contact order to BOI/PR she expressed apprehension with both her and BOI/... working in the same building. I emailed Brig Gen Foster with her concerns and recommended that BOI/... be moved because his job was more portable. He did not agree with relocating BOI/... because BOI/PR was "uncomfortable" and he did not believe BOI/PR was a credible threat. He recommended moving both of them.
- 17 Dec 10- I emailed Brig Gen Foster and expressed my disapproval with the situation. I stated that I believed he was more concerned with addressing BOI/PR allegations than BOI/PR safety concerns. Furthermore, initiating a CDI on me and my organization was not helping the situation and actually ties my hands with any future actions.
- 17 Dec 10 – Chief Streit called me and said he was taking BOI/... out to lunch because he was feeling very down.
- 17 Dec 10 – Maria Pranke requests a meeting with me to discuss BOI/PR behavior and statements. According to her BOI/... has repeatedly pressured her to not say anything bad about him because they are friends. She is concerned by his irrational behavior and demeanor. She tells me he has a "hate" list but she doesn't know if BOI/PR is on it or not.
- 18 Dec 10 – Brig Gen Foster sent me an email asking me how I plan to resolve the conflict. This was a surprise to me because up to this point I had been told the Wing Commander was addressing the issue. He recommended I contact HRO.
- 18 Dec 10 – I see BOI/... at the Children's Christmas Party and he is working closely with BOI/PR at one of the booths. It created the appearance of favoritism when all parties should be neutral and supported BOI/PR previous "hallway" comments regarding his relationship with the Fosters.
- 20 Dec 10 – I email Brig Gen Foster's with a plan to physically relocate both individuals to other buildings. We met to discuss the new no-contact orders and relocating them to different buildings. He debated with me on the viability of BOI/PR claims. I told him that he needed to discuss this with BOI/PR not me. He stated that if BOI/... wants to talk to him, his door is always open. I passed this information on to BOI/PR

- 22 Dec 10 – I talk to HRO, SMSgt Karl Howard, about conducting some type of mediation. He said that a CDI was needed on the events surrounding BOI/... and BOI... before he would even consider reconciliation.
- 22 Dec 10 – I email Brig Gen Foster with HROs requirement for a CDI. He doesn't agree that a CDI is required, but now says it is my decision. He recommends that the CDI be used for information gathering and not accountability
- 23 Dec 10 – I reconnect with SMSgt Karl Howard to discuss opening up a CDI. We agree to initiate one after the Holidays. Both Karl and I would be on leave all week and BOI/PR was gone, too.
- 23 Dec 10 – I submit an EEO complaint on Brig Gen Foster for gender discrimination supported partly by his actions/statements about BOI/PR and the situation
- 2 Jan 11 – I sent an email to HRO stating that I don't believe that I have the authority to execute a CDI. If I do nothing, I'm derelict in my duties. If I initiate a CDI, it can be construed as reprisal. It's a lose/lose situation.

In discussion with several of my Adjutants General Army Peers in other states, the conversation immediately has turned to issues within the Air Guard. Many have expressed problems of character assignation and efforts to undermine the confidence in leadership. A lot of this stems from the significant changes that are occurring in our Air Force as missions and funding changes. Many don't like it and as a result, many of their governors are receiving many electronic communications similar to those our governor is getting. I don't know if it is coordinated or not, but it does seem to be the trend.

I provide this to you, as this is an exceptional step for the Director of the Air National Guard to transmit such a pointed and directed e-mail. Usually NGB positions are very "vanilla". I certainly look forward to your continued guidance in addressing Air Guard leadership, but I think it would be very prudent for us to be very deliberate in our approach. Lt Gen Wyatt will have much more to put out on this problem.

Thanks

Katkus

Subject: Core Values Regional Visits

Adjutants General,

Over the last 12 months, there has been a disturbing trend of events that indicate some in the Air National Guard have lost perspective on the Air Force Core Values. Most regrettably, some of these deviations have occurred in key leadership positions within our States and wings. As a result, we have been mired in discussions with Air Force and DoD leadership in explaining the actions of a few, which is distracting us from our primary responsibilities of moving the Air National Guard forward.

To counter this trend, I have directed ANG leadership to develop a "Return To Core Values" briefing. Over the next several months, we will conduct a series of regional visits to speak with ANG leaders across the country. The purpose of this briefing is to pause and reflect on the Core Values; Integrity First, Service Before Self, and Excellence in All We Do. We will be sending further guidance in the near future, but for now, please support me in this endeavor.

Good Morning,
In regard to the targeting, let me send you a letter outlining some of the thoughts expressed.

Please understand, I totally believe in the leadership of Governor Parnell, or I would have never contacted him in the first place. Because of everything that has happened to this point, there is a natural "uncertainty" that the concerns raised will go further than an expression and then a later retaliation. From your prior experience, I am sure you can empathize. The individuals who have been talking to me are uncertain change will take place. All hope it will because they love this organization they have given so much to and none are pushing for themselves to be elevated through this process. I have assured them that the process takes time; there are many state concerns being addressed; and our civilian leadership are people of integrity.

Again, I will work for unity and strength in the Alaska National Guard. I believe in peacemaking and reconciliation through honest communication. I personally have not one thing against any of the leadership in question nor have their decisions impacted me directly. If I can be of help, I am available to you.

Sincerely,
Chaplain Matt Friese

Subject: Following up...

Good Morning,
I know you have so many things on your plate, so I will be brief.

I am following up on the phone message I left for you yesterday. I have received information on an IG complaint that will come out in the next week. It has been in the works for over 2 years and if it goes the direction I think, it will have a significant impact on the senior leadership of the Alaska National Guard. Perhaps you already know, but if you don't, it would not be beneficial to be behind the curve on this.

Two questions I am having from commanders:

1. Is the information provided helpful, or do you have everything you need at this point? I absolutely realize this is one slice of a very large pie. For many, they have put themselves out there and feel vulnerable. Perhaps this is the time to keep quiet and stay out of the line of fire. What is being trickled down is that individuals are being targeted as a result of information provided. Please let me know if I have provided everything you need at this point, and I will discontinue.
2. Leadership is hearing everything is put on hold temporarily only to be implemented as planned later. Is that the case or can we anticipate real change to take place?

Although I can only imagine the amount of pressure you face with state concerns, I see the Alaska National Guard as one of high exposure. I have been really surprised at the high level of leadership who have taken a very intentional interest in what is happening. They have sought me out as I have done my normal ministry as a chaplain. I am thrilled to serve as a person of privileged communication, advocate, and advisor. When given the opportunity, I will speak the truth to individuals in any position and in every situation if it is helpful to them. I have nothing personally to gain through any of this and a lot to lose. I only want to see health and strength within the Alaska National Guard as I support my leadership.

Thanks for your help and leadership,
Chaplain Matt Friese

The Honorable Sean Parnell

Governor:

As a concerned senior enlisted member of the Alaska Air National Guard, I am writing this letter to request your assistance in correcting some issues that in my 18+ years in the Air National Guard with more than 12 of that in Alaska, I have never seen morale as low as I am seeing in the enlisted ranks now.

The main failure I see is the lack of trust in commanders as well as senior enlisted personnel and the continuous micro-management from the Alaska Air National Guard Commander, Brigadier General Deborah McManus. Commanders and superintendents cannot take care of their personnel and missions are suffering due to the never-ending barrage of data calls for information that personnel specialists assigned to Headquarters have the ability to obtain and pass along to the ATAG.

Another issue that has become a very hot topic since approximately the summer of 2010 is the personnel issues of excess and overgrades that were allowed under then Col McManus (while she was the Human Resources Officer) are being scrutinized (not saying they don't need to be fixed) but she has made comments that the "Wing" has been making this mess for years and now we have to fix it. While I agree with her about correcting the issues, the mess did not happen overnight, and therefore cannot be fixed overnight either. She, or her staff at her direction, have held promotions ransom until people have been re-assigned, causing personnel to lose money from the raise that was delayed.

Finally promotions to senior noncommissioned officer are virtually at a stand-still due to the scrutiny at the headquarters level. Commanders are not being trusted to promote personnel in a sound manner that supports progression, and this is beginning to cause a retention issue that will be detrimental in the future. No matter how good recruiters may be, if people are not here to train new personnel as they enter we will fail as an Air National Guard. The ATAG has published a new promotion regulation that supports in-equality between E-7 thru E-9 promotions and all others. This is evident with the requirement for all E-7 – E-9s to have a passing fitness score within six months of promotion while E2 – E-6s score must be current within the last twelve months. I personally do not mind the six month requirement, but it should be for all promotions, not just senior noncommissioned officers.

The final straw for me that forced me to write this letter was that I had a master sergeant come to me last week and ask, "What is going on around this Wing? It is broken and everyone is afraid for their jobs. Why are we focusing on paperwork and putting the mission second or third?" These remarks have been echoed amongst the most senior enlisted leaders, but now it is falling to the lower ranks and we cannot afford to lose outstanding personnel and that is happening daily. Please look into this issue, and may I recommend that you poll some of the people that have retired over the last two years. Many of these people were great leaders and had more years to give to our country and state, but their careers were cut short because they refused to bow to the whims of the ATAG.

Sir, thank you for your time and attention; I know you are extremely busy, but I also believe you care greatly about our people of Alaska.

MG Thomas H. Katkus

Dear General Katkus:

This responds to your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request dated May 27, 2014, for copy of IG case DIG 13-00087. Additionally, we're providing you with a copy of IG case DIG 12-60032, as these two reports will be released to the Channel 11 News Anchorage, Alaska, and to the Alaska Network on Domestic Violence & Sexual Assault (ANDVSA) in a few days in response to their FOIA requests. Accordingly, we're enclosing two releasable versions of DIG 13-00087 and DIG 12-60032. One version is what is releasable to you and the other is the version we intend to release to Channel 11 News and to the ANDVSA.

Enclosed are the IG reports that are responsive to your request. Please note that the redacted version we're releasing to you is more expansive than what we intend to release to Channel 11 News and to ANDVSA, in recognition of your privacy interests. Where boxed-in and noted within the reports, information has been withheld that is exempt from the mandatory disclosure provisions of the FOIA under exemptions (b)(6) and (b)(7)(C).

a. Exemption (b)(6) applies to information about individuals in "personnel, medical files and similar files," when the disclosure of such information would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

b. Exemption (b)(7)(C) applies to information contained in records compiled for law enforcement purposes, any release of which could reasonably be expected to constitute an unwarranted invasion of the privacy of any individuals who were mentioned therein, or who conducted and/or supervised the conduct of an inquiry and investigation. We withheld substantial amount of information from these reports because release of information pertaining to allegations against senior officials where the investigating agency found insufficient evidence to substantiate is a clearly unwarranted invasion of even a senior official's privacy interests.

This action constitutes a partial denial of your request. As the Initial Denial Authority (IDA), I partially denied your request. You may appeal this partial denial decision in writing within 60 days from the date of this letter. If you decide to appeal, please address your appeal through this office (ATTN: SAIG-ZXR), The Inspector General, 1700 Army Pentagon, RM 1E132, Washington, DC 20310-1700, to the Office of the General Counsel, Department of the Army. That office has the appellate authority for Army Inspector General initial FOIA determinations. In any such appeal, you should also provide a copy of this letter, along with sufficient justification upon which the Office of the General Counsel may base a decision.

There are no fees assessable for processing this request. If you have any questions concerning this response, please call Mr. De Ocampo or me at (703) 545-4591. Should you call, please refer to Case Number 14-676.

US ARMY INSPECTOR GENERAL AGENCY
REPORT OF INVESTIGATIVE INQUIRY
(Case 13-00087)

APR - 8 2014

NAME / POSITION: Major General (MG) Thomas H. Katkus, The Adjutant General (TAG), Alaska National Guard (AKNG)

ALLEGATION / FINDING: The allegation that MG Katkus failed to foster a healthy command climate was not substantiated.

BACKGROUND:

1. On 19 June 2013, Alaska (AK) Senator (SEN) Lisa Murkowski referred a complaint regarding the command climate of the AKNG to the Department of Defense Inspector General (DODIG). (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) AKNG, and (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) AKNG, alleged the command climate was not conducive to encouraging Soldiers to report allegations (specifically of sexual assault / sexual harassment) due to fear of reprisal or no action by the chain of command (CoC).

2. On 26 June 2013, DODIG forwarded the complaint to the Department of the Army Inspector General Agency (DAIG).

3. On 15 July 2013, The Inspector General directed an investigation by DAIG.

STANDARD: Army Regulation (AR) 600-20 (Army Command Policy), 18 March 2008, Rapid Action Review 27 April 2010, states in paragraph 2-1(l) that every leader will foster e healthy command climate.

DOCUMENTS / TESTIMONY:

1. A Joint Forces Headquarters – Alaska (JFHQ-AK) Memorandum, 4 February 2013, subject: AKNG Sensing Sessions, outlined MG Katkus' plan to reinforce command priorities, encourage discussion and generate ideas to promote success within the AKNG. Additionally, Soldiers were allowed to raise any other concerns they had privately with the command inspector general.

2. A JFHQ-AK Memorandum, 24 June 2013, subject: Sensing Session Results from the 176th Air Wing (AW), summarized the results of a sensing session conducted on 28-29 May 2013 that included officers and enlisted members of tha 176th AW. MG Katkus was one of four members of the command group that facilitated these sessions which identified forty-five (45) issue areas requiring command emphasis. MG Katkus's personal involvement demonstrated that HQ, AKNG, leadership took proactive steps to identify significant issues within the organization, determine root cause and seek resolution.

3. AKNG Memorandum, 9 September 2013, subject: Sensing Session Results from the 168th Air Refueling Wing (ARW), summarized the results of a sensing session conducted on 20 August 2013 that included officers and enlisted members of the 168th ARW. MG Katkus was one of three members of the command group that facilitated these sessions which identified twenty-one (21) issue areas and indicated that officers and non-commissioned officers (NCOs) wanted professional development and yearned for a level of trust that empowered them to run the unit within set parameters.

4. AKNG Memorandum, 12 January 2014, subject: Sensing Session Results from the 38th Troop Command (TC), identified sixteen (16) issue areas and indicated constructive feedback, developmental counseling and mentoring was desired at all levels.

5. AKNG Memorandum, 12 January 2014, subject: Sensing Session Results from the 297th Battlefield Surveillance Brigade (BfSB), identified fourteen (14) issue areas and indicated positive constructive feedback was essential in developing leaders.

6. (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C)

(b)(6) & (b)(7)(C)

7. (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) Sexual Assault Response Coordinator (SARC), AKNG, testified that since assuming her SARC position all cases of sexual assault have been reported to the US Army Criminal Investigation Command (CID), the National Guard Bureau (NGB) Office of Complex Investigation (OCI), or AK State law enforcement authorities. Any adverse criminal or administrative action against suspects is either pending or investigated by State of AK civilian law enforcement. Of the eleven cases reported to (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) in the last two years, ten were unrestricted reports and one was a restricted report. There were no instances where any sexual assault incident was covered up by MG Katkus or the chain of command (CoC).

8. U.S. Army Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Program (SHARP) Reporting Options, states unrestricted reporting procedures allow a Soldier who is sexually assaulted to access medical treatment, counseling, and an official investigation of the allegation. A restricted report involves confidential disclosure of the crime of sexual assault to specifically identified individuals (the SARC, VA, chaplain, or a healthcare provider) in order for the victim to receive appropriate medical care and treatment and counseling without triggering the official investigative process by CID, NGB OCI or civilian law enforcement.

9. Chief, National Guard Bureau Instruction (CNGBI) 0400.01 (Chief, National Guard Bureau Office of Complex Administrative Investigations), 30 July 2012, states the Office of the Chief, National Guard Bureau (OCNGB) will establish an Office of Complex Administrative Investigations under the National Guard Bureau-Chief Counsel (NGB-JA/OI). At the request of The Adjutants General (TAG) of the 54 States, Territories and the District of Columbia, the NGB OCI will provide specially trained personnel to perform complex administrative investigations involving alleged reports of sexual assault with a NG nexus. These investigations may include reports of sexual assault made by and against members of the National Guard while they are not in federal status. Investigations regarding allegations of sexual assault against military members performing duty in a federal status will be investigated by a Military Criminal Investigative Organization, such as CID.

10. In an email, dated 11 March 2014, subject: Request for update on cases, (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) sent a breakdown and current disposition of the eleven sexual assault cases that have occurred since she assumed duties as the SARC in February 2012.

11. (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) State Equal Employment Managar (SEEM), AK Air National Guard (AKANG), testified MG Katkua was very supportive of the sexual harassment program. In a recent case, he directed an AR 15-6 investigation immediately after it was brought to his attention. Every effort has been made to ensure sexual harassment allegations are reported and that each is investigated. No reported issues of sexual harassment were ever covered up by MG Katkus.

12. (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) testified the command climate under MG Katkua was tense. He waa aware of multiple instances of sexual assault and sexual harassment within the AKNG. He attributed it directly to MG Katkus, who had established a command climate that lacked trust and who had surrounded himself with senior officers and NCOs who were bullies.

13. (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) AK Army Support Chaplain, testified the command climate had improved a great deal since (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) former Chief of Staff (CofS), AKNG, departed. Since he had been in the AKNG, there were a few incidents of sexual assault and sexual harassment. He personally worked with ona male and one female Soldier from Fort Greely. The female Soldier's case was being investigated by (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) and the male Soldier did not want to be identified.

[IO Note: Since the male Soldier did not want to be identified, he was essentially filing a restricted report that would not have triggered an investigation by law enforcement or the CoC.]

14. (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) Executive Officer, 38th Troop Command (TC), testified when matters of sexual assault or harassment occurred within the command, (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) briefed MG Katkus on them. There were no instances where MG Katkus failed to act on sexual misconduct. The current command climate had improved since the arrival of (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) who created an environment conducive to reporting sexual misconduct.

15. (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) (b)(6) AKNG, testified the command climate was low on trust under MG Katkus. Many individuals did not like MG Katkus' leadership style; however, he did nothing wrong or illegal. MG Katkus did a good job and supported his own vision for the (b)(6) AKNG. MG Katkus did not say anything negative or use abusive language with anyone. MG Katkus provided the (b)(6) & (b)(an opportunity to complete the mission without being micromanaged.

16. (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) State Safety Officer, AKNG, testified the command climate seemed positive. MG Katkus placed emphasis on SARCs and ensured the chaplains were aware of any issues raised. MG Katkus promoted an ethical and moral climate by emphasizing his top three priorities: recruiting and retention, standards and safety.

17. (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) Commander (CDR), 297th Battlefield Surveillance Battalion (BfSB), testified the command climate had changed to an environment where victims felt free to come forward regarding sexual assault and sexual harassment incidents about two years ago. He attributed the change to the Army's focus on SARCs and unit victim advocates throughout the Army. He believed MG Katkus took sexual harassment and assaults seriously, and supported the Army's program. MG Katkus seemed disassociated with the truth of what was going on at the Soldier level. MG Katkus was upset about a sexual assault / sexual harassment article that appeared in a local Anchorage, AK, newspaper.

[IO Note: When (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) alluded to MG Katkus disassociation at the Soldier level, he was referring to MG Katkus visiting Soldiers. He was not referring to matters of sexual assault and harassment.]

18. (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) G-3, AKNG, testified MG Katkus made his position against sexual assault and sexual harassment widely known. The leadership at all levels had the assets to deal with such incidents when they arose. There were no inhibitors or implied obstacles that prevented someone from reporting an incident.

19. (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) AKNG, testified the current command climate was hostile under the leadership of (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) Chief of Staff (CoS), AKNG. MG Katkus empowered (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) to essentially run the command. MG Katkus chose to keep a low profile and allow (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) to interact with the staff instead of him. MG Katkus had not done anything to implement or foster a healthy command climate; however, he never blew up or lost his cool and was always very professional.

20. (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) CDR, 38th TC, testified the current command climate was very positive. Two years ago, the command climate was challenging, and there were some toxic leaders within the command that have since moved on. MG Katkus allowed officers the flexibility to lead and held a town hall meeting to give leaders an open forum to address concerns. Yet, no issues were specifically directed at MG Katkus.

[IO Note: In November 2009, MG Katkus assumed duties as TAG, and, prior to that, he was the Assistant Adjutant General (ATAG), AKNG.]

21. (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) CoS, AKANG, testified most AKNG service members understood the process to report incidents and had received training on the various reporting options available. The current command climate was fairly calm.

[IO note: The acronym for Air Force Lieutenant Colonel is LtCol.]

22. (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) CDR, 168th Air Refueling Wing, AKANG, testified the current command climate was very good. There was a great relationship between the Army and Air AKNG. MG Katkus was very proactive in bringing the two entities together. MG Katkus was direct, clear and concise and treated his staff well. Due to his high expectations for people and his command presence, MG Katkus could be intimidating. There was no doubt who was in charge when he walked into a room. MG Katkus was aggressive and proactive in sexual assault prevention and other high profile events that occurred within the AKNG. MG Katkus did everything possible to foster a healthy command climate.

23. (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) AKNG, testified she was sexually assaulted in March 2010 by an AKNG member. The following day, (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) filed a restricted report with (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) SARC, AKNG, and was treated at a local sexual assault response treatment center. Since the report was restricted, it did not trigger an investigation. (b)(6) & (b)(7) notified MG Katkus of the incident with no personal indentifying information. In January 2013, (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) changed her report from restricted to unrestricted. The Anchorage Police Department

(APD) would not pursue the case because they did not feel they could prove the charges against the suspect beyond a reasonable doubt. After APD's refusal to investigate, MG Katkus contacted the NGB OCI to conduct an investigation.
24. (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) Alaska State Judge Advocate, in an email, dated 19 March 2014, stated that APD declined to investigate (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) case and it was returned to the AKNG. MG Katkua requested NGB OCI investigate and they substantiated against the AKNG member. The NGB OCI investigation was sent to the Alaska State Attorney General's Office and they declined to prosecute. The matter is currently being reviewed for adverse administrative actions against the AKNG member.

ANALYSIS / DISCUSSION:

1. (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) and (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) alleged the command climate in the AKNG was not conducive to encouraging victims to report incidents of sexual assault / sexual harassment. In addition, they alleged thet no adverse action was being taken against suspects by the chain of command (CoC).

2. Evidance indicated that, over the past two years, MG Katkus was aware of at least eleven sexual assault cases by the SARC. All eleven sexual assault cases involved military victims; seven cases involved an AKNG member suspect and four involved a civilian suspect. When informed of sexual assault allegationa, (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) ensured prompt action was taken on all cases. MG Katkus enabled (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) to do this and took action as appropriate on disposition of these cases. The evidence also indicated that the sexual assaults alleged by (b)(6) & (b)(7) and (b)(6) & (b)(7) were investigated by the appropriate authorities (See SARC spreadaheet, TAB C8). (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) testified there were no instances where a aexual assault incident was covered up or delayed by MG Katkus.

3. The spreadsheet provided by (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) detailed the eleven sexual assault cases she has worked since becoming the SARC, AKNG.

a. Alaska State Statute, §26.05 (Military Code of Alaska) dictates that any offense committed by a member of the AKNG shall be investigated by Alaska civilian law anforcement and prosecuted in tha Alaska civilian criminal system. If the suspect was a member of the AKNG, ell criminal investigation and prosecution is required to be handled by Alaskan civil authorities. However, MG Katkus would be able to take adverse edministrative action against members of the AKNG. Evidence indicated that MG Katkus had taken adverse administrative action and is considering adverse action in e sexual assault case aubstantiated by NGB OCI. Additionally, the AKNG facilitated the transfer of victims, et their request, to new duty locationa.

b. The evidence provided by the SARC indicated, with the exception of one case investigated by CID, because the AKNG auspect was believed to be in a Federal status at the time, the remainder of the investigations were conducted by the AK state law enforcement agencies. Four of AKNG sexual assault victims reported that the suspect was a civilian not associated with the AKNG. MG Katkus had no ability to take any action against the civilian suspects.

[IO Note: The below Alaska State Statutes clarifies that the Alaska National Guard is the militia and any offenses committed by a militia member must be prosecuted by civilian authorities.

Alaska State Statute § 26.05.10 (Alaska Militia Established), states the Alaska militia specifically includes the Alaska National Guard.

Alaska State Statute § 26.05.300 (Statement of Policy on Military Justice), states "[a]n offense committed by a member of the militia, organized or unorganized, shall be tried in civil courts and prosecuted by civil authorities except offenses of a purely military nature."]

4. The majority of the witnesses testified the command climate was conducive to victims reporting incidents of sexual assault / sexual harassment. One witness indicated the sensing sessions allowed the voice of the service member to be heard and gave them an opportunity to address any of their issues of concern.

5. Ten out of twelve witnesses testified that MG Katkus actively supported and placed emphasis on the prevention of sexual assault and harassment. Evidence indicated that MG Katkua did not attempt to cover up any sexual harassment or assault cases and that through his SARC, sexual assault cases allegations were referred to the appropriate authorities with jurisdiction.

6. One witness testified MG Katkus was upset when he became aware of the sexual assault / sexual harassment article that appeared in the Anchorage, AK, newspaper. The witness stated that MG Katkus felt that the individuals going outside of the chain of command speaking with reporters did not have all of the facts and were not aware of the actions taken place by the AKNG.

7. Six of the nine witnesses question about the overall command climate testified that under MG Katkus the command climate was good or had improved over time. Of the three witness who believed there was an issue with the command climate, one believed that the climate was tense, another witness believed the climate was low on trust under MG Katkus, and one witness testified MG Katkus did not promote an ethical and moral climate because he allowed (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) too much latitude in the command. However, (b)(6) & (b)(7) is the senior Army commander and responsible for the day-to-day activities of the AKARNG, and (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) is the Chief of Staff for (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C)

[IO Note: (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) is the senior full time AGR officer for the AKNG. Therefore, (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) played a significant decision making role within the organization as MG Katkus's representative throughout tha week.]

8. From February 2013 to November 2013, the AKNG conducted four sensing sessions. During these senaing sessions, even when prompted, service members did not raise any issues or concerns regarding the command climate involving MG Katkus. Additionally, none of the sessions identified major concerns with regard to sexual assault / sexual harassment. In fact, according to (b)(6) & (b) these sessions helped the AKNG "identify gaps in communication, answer questions about rumors and . . . improve command climate and build trust in the organization".

CONCLUSION: The preponderance of evidence indicated the command climate of the AKNG was conducive to victims reporting sexual assault / sexual harassment actions. Although some witnesses did not believe actions were being taken with regard to sexual assault / sexual harassment complaints, both the SARC and SEEM disputed these claims. The SARC and SEEM both testified that MG Katkus was involved and took immediate action to include requesting assistance from NGB when AK state law enforcement was not responsive. The preponderance of evidence also indicated the command climate in the AKNG was fair/good and moving in the right direction under MG Katkus.

OTHER MATTERS:

1. An Alaskan State Statute requires the prosecution of Alaska National Guard (AKNG) members in state courts except for "... offenses of a purely military nature." This limits the Adjutant General's ability to prosecute members for allegations of sexual assault and requires the AKNG to rely on state law enforcement and prosecutors to perform this function.

2. Senator Murkowski's letter to the DODIG indicated two additional issues that were not investigated.

a. Funds were misused within the AKNG. The complainants provided no further credible evidence of such an occurrence. However, DAIG had previously investigated and addressed the allegation of misuse of government funds within the AKNG in DAIG Case # DIG 12-60032.

b. (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C)

(b)(6) & (b)(7)(C)

3. Both (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) and (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) cite (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) (b)(6) & (b) (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) AKNG, in their testimony as a major source for their allegations. In a memorandum, dated 13 April 2012, (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) alleged that MG Katkus covered up sexual assaults and protected rapists. A previous investigation (DAIG Case # DIG 12-60032) into the allegations made by (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) was referred to CID and found not to be credible. In fact, (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) testified he was aware of only one of the fourteen alleged sexual assault / sexual harassment issues referred to by (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) (b)(6) & (b)(7) testified that, with the exception of (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) allegations of sexual assault / sexual harassment, some of which CID found not to be credible, he was unaware of any other allegation of sexual assault / sexual harassment not being reported to, and investigated by, MG Katkus or any other senior AKNG official.

RECOMMENDATIONS:

1. Record the allegation that MG Katkus failed to foster a healthy command climate as not substantiated.

2. Refer Other Matter issue in paragraph 1 to the National Guard Bureau. Recommend they conduct a review to determine if this is an isolated issue or if it has a broader impact throughout the National Guard.

3. Take no further action on Other Matters paragraphs 2, 3, 4 and 5.

PRELIMINARY INQUIRY
(Case 12-60032)

NAMES/POSITIONS: MG Thomas H. Katkus, The Adjutant General, Alaska; (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) Alaska Army National Guard (AKARNG); (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) AKARNG; and (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) AKARNG

1. ALLEGATIONS/CONCLUSIONS:

a. The Criminal Investigation Command (CID) determined the allegation MG Katkus covered up sexual assaults within the Alaska National Guard and protected rapists was not a credible complaint.

b. CID (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C)

c. CID (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C)

d. CID (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C)

2. BACKGROUND:

a. On 17 April 2012, Department of the Army Inspector General (DAIG) received a memorandum, prepared by (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) subject: Corruption within the AKNG, dated 13 April 2012, from (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) AKARNG. The memorandum alleged potential criminal activity by MG Katkus, (b)(6) & (b)(7) (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) and (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) (EXHIBIT A)

[IO NOTE: (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) memorandum alleging criminal activity was extracted from DIG 12-00044.]

b. On 11 May 2012, after a thorough review, the alleged criminal activity was referred to CID for action as deemed appropriate. (EXHIBIT B)

c. On 6 February 2013, DAIG was notified by CID of the results of their inquiry into the alleged criminal activity reportedly involving MG Katkus, (b)(6) & (b)(7) and (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) (EXHIBIT C)

FOR OFFICIAL USE ONLY. DISSEMINATION IS PROHIBITED EXCEPT AS AUTHORIZED BY AR 20-1.

(1) The CID investigation revealed the sexual assault victims reported the assaults to law enforcement and not (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) as he alleged. During his interview, (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C) provided no details that would corroborate his allegation that he notified law enforcement of several sexual assaults or that MG Katkus protected rapists.

(2) (b)(6) & (b)(7)(C)

Good Morning,

I am sorry to read this breakdown. Mike, you have been a huge help over this last year in listening to us as you have with so many others in the chorus of concerns. We appreciate all you have done! Although I am not aware of what has most recently transpired, I do know we are always concerned about our confidentiality - which is not for our benefit. As you have stated, a breach of confidentiality at this level could have very negative impacts on one of many members of the NG who we are all very concerned about - namely Col Lincoln. If the TAG connected him in this through us, we have not only further hurt a great leader and dear friend, but we have harmed our ability to help senior leaders. Perhaps you would consider a 15 -30 min conference call for the 4 of us Chaplains just to share with you our heart. So much of communication is lost through text only. I believe all of our desires reflect a concern for the men and women of the Alaska National Guard.

Again, we appreciate you and know you have an extremely difficult job - must feel like a meat grinder most days!

Matt

Sorry you feel that way, not sure what prompted this message from you. I have been working very hard in trying to understand the issues and attempting to get to the truth and accuracy of statements and information I have received regarding the management issues at the DMVA/Alaska National Guard that have been areas of concern to many individuals.

Based upon the input received from multiple sources over the last year and a half I have in turn had many conversations with the leadership at DMVA trying to figure out what needs to change for the betterment of those that sever in the Alaska National Guard as well as what information and accusations are accurate vs. not. I have had endless meetings and conversation with DMVA leadership to convey concerns that I have heard from all that have called me, written to me in letter form, emails and voice messages. I have heard from individuals both active duty and retired and never breached confidence of those that have asked me to keep their conversations confidential.

I have served in the military and know all about the chain of command and the sensitivities of going outside those lines. Since my conversations with DMVA leadership (still on-going) there has been several positive changes made at DMVA and more on the horizon. These changes have not happened by coincidence.

I don't have much more to say to you except I am extremely frustrated right now and disappointed in receiving your communication suggesting that I breached the chaplains confidence.

Mr Nizich,

On the last issue with Colonel Lincoln and the TAG over DC contacting him with negative accusations it seems our confidentiality was compromised as chaplains. In that the TAG told Chaplain Koch, "A 176WG chaplain or chaplains have been a conduit to the governor." You understood that confidentiality for chaplains is dear and that we all have tried our chain of command and why Ch Friese contacted you in frustration. At this point in time I do not see you as a trusted agent for positive change and growth in the Alaska National Guard.

Sincerely

Ch Lt Col Rick Cavens
